The mandate of the Health Protection Branch is to protect the Canadian public from life– and health-threatening hazards in the food supply, pharmaceuticals and cosmetics, medical or radiation-emitting devices and the environment, and against health and safety hazards associated with consumer products and hazardous materials in the workplace. The mandate encompasses regulatory and field inspection activities, the investigation of disease outbreaks and product hazards, surveillance and research, voluntary agreements and other initiatives with industry, and the provision of information to the public and workers.

■ Food Directorate

The Food Directorate's function is to protect and improve the health and well-being of the Canadian public by defining, advising on and managing risks and benefits associated with the food supply. Areas of work include food additives, agricultural chemicals, veterinary drugs, chemical and microbiological contaminants, nutrients, novel foods and food components and food processes, such as irradiation.

The Directorate is responsible for the development of appropriate policies, procedures, regulations and guidelines directed towards the achievement of a high standard of safety and nutritional quality of foods. These responsibilities are carried out through coordinated programs of scientific research, evaluation and regulatory activities under the authority of the Food and Drugs Act and Regulations.

■ Drugs Directorate

The Drugs Directorate's function is to protect and improve public health by assessing and managing the risks and benefits associated with the availability and use of drugs and cosmetics. The Directorate's major result areas include: safe and effective drugs; a public that is well informed as to the risks and benefits of drug use; the timely evaluation of drug products; the rational use of psychoactive substances; the effective implementation of the provisions of international drug treaties; international harmonization of regulatory activities; recognized leadership in scientific research and drug regulation; promotion of pharmaceutical research and development of drugs for critical diseases; safe cosmetics; and an efficient and effectively managed scientific organization.

■ Environmental Health Directorate

The function of the Environmental Health Directorate is to protect the public from health and safety hazards associated with chemicals, radiation and medical devices, consumer products and hazardous materials in the workplace, and thereby improve the well-being of Canadians. To achieve this, the Directorate investigates, monitors and assesses the health risks arising from both natural and technological hazards and then provides Canadians with health and safety information. The Directorate's work revolves around main project areas involving such subjects as environmental pollutants, tobacco, electromagnetic fields (e.g. power lines), medical devices, drinking water, air quality and product safety — all issues of great concern to the public.

The Directorate is responsible for the development and implementation of programs for radiation safety and medical devices under the Radiation Emitting Devices Act, the Food and Drugs Act and the Canada Labour Code. The safety of consumer products is managed under the Hazardous Products Act. The potential risks of environmental chemicals are evaluated under the Canadian Environmental Protection Act.

■ Laboratory Centre for Disease Control Directorate

The Laboratory Centre for Disease Control (LCDC) under the National Health & Welfare Act is Canada's only national public health agency. LCDC monitors, investigates and manages risks to the health of Canadians, protecting the public from health risks posed by microbial, foodborne, drug-related and environmental hazards. Expert surveillance and investigative abilities in microbiology, epidemiology and disease prevention and control, as well as the Centre's disease control networks ensure significant national leadership in public health. LCDC is an active participant in and plays an important communication role for well established national public health networks encompassing provincial public health laboratories and epidemiologists, acute care hospitals, research agencies and public health units.

■ Field Operations Directorate

The mission of the Field Operations Directorate is to protect Canadians from health hazards by identifying, assessing and managing health and safety risks associated with the manufacture and sale of marketed food, pharmaceutical drugs, medical devices, radiation emitting devices, cosmetics and tobacco products through promotion and enforcement of industry compliance with the Food and Drugs Act, its Regulations and associated guidelines or codes of practice such as Good Manufacturing Practices. The Directorate inspects food, drug, and medical device manufacturing plants, analyzes domestic and imported products, and responds to product complaints from consumers. Field Operations Directorate also inspects pharmacies, manufacturers and distributors, and hospitals engaged in the legal distribution of psychoactive substances. A Drug Analytical Service for suspected illicit drugs is provided on behalf of police forces across Canada. The operations of this Directorate are conducted primarily from regional and district offices located across Canada as near as possible to the client base. Contact with the media, consumer associations, provinces, health-care agencies such as hospitals and poison control centres occur on a regular basis and the Directorate also works closely with provincial, regional and municipal public health authorities in communicating health hazards to the public.

Medical Services Branch

The objective of the Branch is to promote, improve and preserve the health of Canadian citizens whose care, by legislation or custom, is the responsibility of the Department. The clients include the Inuit and status Indians, all residents of the Yukon, federal public servants, international travellers, civil aviation personnel, and disaster victims.

■ Indian and Northern Health Services Directorate

Responsible for community health services, hospital services, dental services, a National Native Alcohol and Drug Abuse Program. Also responsible for the Native component of the Brighter Futures Initiative, the Canada Drug Strategy Initiative and the AIDS strategy. Direct program delivery is through eight regions across the country.

■ Health Advisory Services Directorate

Responsible for the provision of services and advice in the fields of civil aviation medicine, emergency services and provides medical advice to Human Resources Development.

■ Program Transfer, Policy and Planning Directorate

Supports the transfer of resources for community health programs to First Nations and Inuit communities south of the 60th Parallel and provides support to the transfer of health services to the Yukon Territorial Government. It also provides assistance, advice and coordination on policy issues, the Branch planning cycle, audits and evaluations, informatics and executive services.

■ Occupational and Environmental Health Services Directorate

Provides environmental health services to First Nations and occupational health nursing, medicine and employee assistance services to the Public Service. In addition, OEHS provides a range of regulatory services and health services to visiting VIPs. Provides medical advice on policy aspects of the immigration program to Citizenship and Immigration.

■ Non-Insured Health Benefits Directorate

Manages the Non-Insured Health Benefits which are a limited number of health-related goods and services which are not provided to Inuit and Registered Indians by provincial and territorial health insurance plans or programs or through other third party coverage. They include drugs, medical supplies, medical equipment, vision care, dental care, medical transportation, health insurance premiums and co-insurance fees.

Health Programs and Services Branch

The responsibilities of the Branch are to develop, promote and support measures designed to preserve and improve the health of Canadians by encouraging and assisting them to adopt a way of life that enhances their physical, mental and well-being. The Branch also provides leadership and coordination in assisting the provinces and territories to bring their health services to, and maintain them at, national standards. This includes the administration of federal contributions to the provinces with respect to hospital insurance, medical care and extended health care services programs.

■ Health Insurance Directorate

The Directorate's main functions are the administration of the Canada Health Act, the provision of advice to the Minister on matters pertaining to the interpretation of the Act, and making monthly transfer payments to the provinces and territories in respect of the Established Programs Financing (EPF) arrangements.

■ Health Services Directorate

The Health Services Directorate helps promote and improve the health of Canadians by collaborating with provincial governments and professional and voluntary health organizations. The objectives of these collective efforts are to develop self-care and preventive health practices and to improve the quality, efficiency and effectiveness of community health, mental health, and institutional and professional services and facilities.

■ Health Promotion Directorate

Develops and implements programs which promote health and encourage the avoidance of health risks. Its focus encompasses health issues (tobacco, alcohol, and other drug use; nutrition; cardiovascular health; and AIDS), the special needs of certain population groups (families; children and youth; women; seniors; the disabled) and health settings (communities, schools and workplaces). Major program activities include social marketing, education and training, intersectoral consultation/coordination/negotiation, research, funding of field projects, and the development of health promotion concepts and models. With respect to funding, the Directorate administers five funding streams to encourage national organizations and community groups to become involved in health promotion. Health promotion programs are developed and implemented in co-operation with provincial and territorial governments, professional and voluntary organizations, universities, and community groups.

■ Extramural Research Programs Directorate

The primary objective of the National Health Research and Development Program (NHRDP) is to support scientific activities related to national health issues. In addition to research, the Program provides support for the formulation of research protocols, the training and career development of health researchers in selected disciplines associated with public health and offers limited contributions towards the cost of health research oriented workshops and conferences.

■ Principal Nursing Officer

The Principal Nursing Officer advises federal officials, provincial and territorial governments, the general public, professional and voluntary associations and health care organizations on all matters related to nursing in the Department, as well as nationally and internationally.

■ Family Violence Prevention Division

Responsible for coordinating the Federal Family Violence Initiative (1991-1995) which addresses the abuse of children, women, seniors and disabled persons. It is also mandated to: liaise with the provinces, other federal departments and national non-governmental organizations; develop national policies and programs; provide information services to government officials and the public; promote the development of services relative to the prevention of family violence; provide funding for projects aimed at the prevention of family violence and the improvement of protection and treatment services.

■ Seniors Community Programs Division

The Seniors Community Programs are contribution programs that provide opportunities for older Canadians and a wide range of stakeholders to form effective partnerships to take action on issues that promote the independence and quality of life of Canada's aging population. Priority is given to projects that address the needs of those who are most at risk in our communities. The Seniors Community Programs consist of three funding elements: New Horizons, Seniors Independence Program and Ventures in Independence.

■ Seniors Secretariat

The Seniors Secretariat was established in 1988 as the focal point within the federal government for issues of importance to older Canadians. The Secretariat helps make seniors aware of the programs and assistance available to them, primarily by means of an information and referral service on federal government programs, and ensures that their concerns are given due consideration in federal program development. In addition, the Secretariat provides the Minister of State (Seniors) with administrative support and expertise on issues that have an impact on the lives of seniors.

■ Children's Bureau

The bureau's main role is to ensure the effectiveness of federal policies and programs relating to the health, welfare and development of children and families. To this end, the bureau will promote coordination with the federal government and non-government organizations and communicate federal initiatives relating to children.

■ Fitness Division

This program is committed to encouraging lifelong participation in physical activity and to encourage, promote and develop Active Living – a way of life in which physical activity is valued and integrated into daily life – thereby improving the overall fitness, health, well-being and quality of life of Canadians. In support of its federal role, Fitness Canada's core functions are to provide: federal policy development and leadership; planning and evaluation; knowledge development; infrastructure/capacity development; funding support; federal-provincial/territorial coordination and collaboration and inter/intra-departmental coordination.

■ Environmental Health Directorate

Chemical Hazards

Description: Information on hazards associated with chemicals and microbiological agents in the workplace (WHMIS), the quality of the indoor and ambient environment; and consumer products. Formerly HWC HPB 190. Topics: Air; drinking and recreational water; Great Lakes -St. Lawrence – Arctic; consumer products; UFFI; industrial chemicals (PCBs, waste sites, dioxins); pest control products; acid rain; ozone levels; global warming. Program Record Number: HWC 003 190

Consumer and Clinical Radiation Hazards

Description: Files on the assessment of radioisotope licences; testing and evaluation of X-ray and non-ionizing radiation emitting devices; consumer products; inspections, assessment and compliance of radiopharmaceuticals; occupational exposure and surveys. Formerly HWC HPB 210. Topics: Radioisotopes; licences; X-rays; non-ionizing radiation (including ultrasound, VDTs, electromagnetic fields);

radiation medicine; radiopharmaceuticals. Program Record Number: HWC 003 210

Environmental Radioactivity Hazards
Description: Information on radioactivity emissions from nuclear reactors; population exposure to radioactive fallout; and natural background radiation. Formerly HWC HPB 205. Topics: Reactors; population exposure; Federal Nuclear Emergency Response Plan; uranium mining; uranium refining; radon; environment; radioactive waste storage; whole body counting. Program Record Number: HWC 003 205

Medical Devices
Description: Files on the safety and effectiveness of new devices; the development of essential performance and safety standards; labelling; and correction or regulatory action in response to evidence of device failures. Formerly HWC HPB 195. Topics: Device recalls and problems, performance and test data; class studies; standards; notification; media broadcast scripts; interactions with provincial departments and associations; advisory committees; coroners' inquests; regulations; international transactions; premarket review and clinical studies. Program Record Number: HWC 003 195

Occupational Radiation Hazards
Description: Information on the measurement of occupational exposure of workers to ionizing radiation and studies involving all types of ionizing and non-ionizing radiation which affect the health of the population of Canada. Formerly HWC HPB 200. Topics: National Dose Registry. Program Record Number: HWC 003 200

Product Safety
Description: Information on compliance and enforcement, statistical data and programs within product safety. Formerly CCA BCA 070. Topics: Standardization control; correspondence; liaison with associations; societies; institutions; boards; councils; commissions; committees; Hazardous Products Act and Workplace Hazardous Materials Information system (WHMIS) legislation; injury data and statistics; Canadian accident injury reporting and evaluation (CAIRE); labelling; publicity projects; regulations; reports; Hazardous Products Program Review. Program Record Number: HWC 003 070

Products
Description: Information on regulations, company liaison, complaints and enquiries, reference materials, sampling and testing, and enforcement concerning specific products. Formerly CCA BCA 075. Topics: Alarm and protective devices; artist supplies and stationery; appliances; automotive; entertainment; furnishings; furniture; furniture care supplies; garden and yard equipment; home fuels; home structures and building material; insulation; housewares; infant and children's products; maintenance products; paper products and containers; personal use items; recreation equipment; sports and protective equipment; textiles; tobacco; tools and workshop equipment; toys; compliance. Complaints analysis – established to analyze product-related complaints by Branch. Program Record Number: HWC 003 075

Testing
Description: Information on testing and test methods for specific products. Formerly CCA BCA 080. Topics: Equipment design; fabrication and modification; legislative matters: test methods; chemical flammability; mechanical, electrical and textile testing of specific products. Program Record Number: HWC 003 080

Tobacco
Description: Files on the development of control policies regarding the social use of tobacco, by working co-operatively with other federal departments, provincial departments and the tobacco industry to promote the development of legislation, practices and products to minimize the health consequences of tobacco use. Formerly HWC HPB 155. Topics: Tobacco – monitoring of use and attitudes, health effects, chemical properties, sale, and legislation. Program Record Number: HWC 003 155

Description: Information collected from 1200 farm families, including name, address, race, colour, religion, age, sex and country of birth. Class of Individuals: Ontario Farm Families. Purpose: Information is collected for use in a study designed to assess potential relationship between pesticides and other hazardous exposures on the farm. Consistent Uses: Research and Statistical Purposes. Retention and Disposal Standards: To be determined. Related to PR#: HC HPB 165 TBS Registration: 002953 Bank Number: HWC PPU 037

Bureau of Dangerous Drugs

Amphetamine Control

Description: This bank contains diagnostic and other information from physicians on the perceived medical needs, for designated amphetamines. Class of Individuals: Only patients for whom designated amphetamines have been prescribed for non-listed conditions are included. Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to regulate the non-approved uses of a restricted class of drugs. The bank is part of the monitoring of the use of this class of drugs in conformity with the Food and Drugs Act and Regulations. Consistent Uses: Information from this bank may be released to provincial licensing authorities of the health professions. Retention and Disposal Standards: Practitioner files are kept two years after the death of a doctor; five years after the last correspondence or last record of registration if there is no history of drug-related problems; and ten years after the last correspondence or last record of registration if there is a history of drug-related problems. TBS Registration: 002731 Bank Number: HWC PPU 065

Drug Investigation (Users and Distribution) Files

Description: This bank contains information on people investigated under the Narcotic Control Act and Regulations, and the Food and Drugs Act and Regulations. It consists of reports prepared by the police departments, the Department of Justice, the Department of the Solicitor General, Crown counsel and lawyers on investigations concerning persons involved in illicit drug use and distribution. It also consists of information received as a result of the monitoring of drug importation, manufacture, distribution and prescription. It includes the following personal information: name, address, date of birth, fingerprints, sex, occupation, drug involvement, and details of the investigation, arrest and the case disposition, details of drugs, things, and assets seized and their disposition. Class of Individuals: In addition to the requirements indicated on the Record Access Request Form, requesters must provide their full name, date of birth and place of birth. In cases where the information is deemed to be of a sensitive nature enquirers will be required to provide appropriate identifying information about themselves at the time of access to ensure the personal information relates to them and not to another person of similar name and description. Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to ensure that the use of narcotic and controlled drugs is limited exclusively to medical and scientific purposes, to prevent diversion of those drugs to other uses and to facilitate administration of asset disposal. The information in the bank is used in making decisions in enforcing the regulations concerning the prescribing and dispensing of narcotic and controlled drugs by practitioners and pharmacists and the receipt and use of such drugs by individuals; in making decisions in connection with the disposition of drugs and things (including money, conveyances and other assets) seized under the authority of the Narcotic Control Act and Food and Drugs Act; to prepare statistics (drug use and conviction) for health planning purposes, on drug use in Canada and in the preparation of the annual report required by the United Nations Narcotic Commission. This information is not used for any administrative purpose and is not retrievable by the name of the individual. Consistent Uses: Information from this bank may be released to provincial licensing authorities of the health professions. Retention and Disposal Standards: Cannabis cases where assets or other drugs are seized are kept five years from the date of final disposition or last correspondence, whichever is later. Cannabis cases with international implications which are reported to the United Nations are kept until a final report is submitted to that organization. Such reports are kept for two years after the last action taken. Offence reports dealing with cannabis-only offenses, where no assets are seized, are kept for only two months or until the information has been extracted on a depersonalized basis and recorded for statistical purposes. Reports are then destroyed. TBS Registration: 002729 Bank Number: HWC PPU 055

Immigration and Refugee Board
Chapter 53

General Information

Background

The Board is an independent administrative tribunal created by a series of amendments to the Immigration Act, 1976. It consists of three divisions: The Convention Refugee Determination Division (CRDD), which deals exclusively with refugee claims, the Immigration Appeal Division (IAD), which hears appeals relating to removal orders and to refusals of applications for landing from sponsored "family class" members, and the Adjudication Division, which deals with refugees seeking admission to Canada at a port of entry and are considered inadmissible or immigrants in Canada who have been reported to have contravened the Immigration Act.

Responsibilities

The three divisions of the IRB are independent of each other in their decision-making, but they are affiliated administratively. Between them, the CRDD, the IAD and the Adjudication Division take on all the functions of the former Refugee Status Advisory Committee, the Immigration Appeal Board and the Adjudication Branch, formerly of Employment and Immigration Canada.

Legislation

- Immigration Act, R.S.C. 1985 (4th Sup.), c.28
- Convention Refugee Determination Division Rules, SOR/89-103
- Immigration Appeal Division Rules, SOR/90-738
- Immigration Regulations, 1978
- Adjudication Division Rules, SOR/93-47

Organization

The Chairman is chief executive officer of the Board. One member from the Refugee Division and another from the Appeal Division are designated as Deputy Chairmen. Assistant Deputy Chairmen head both divisions of the IRB in its regional centres. Members are appointed to cover all major centres across Canada as required by workflows. The Adjudication Division is headed by a Director General with Directors in the regions. Adjudicators are employed as necessary to carry out their duties under the Immigration Act.

■ The Immigration Appeal Division (IAD)

The former Immigration Appeal Board had a dual responsibility for immigration appeals and refugee redetermination. The new Board's Appeal Division is a court of record which has jurisdiction to deal with immigration appeals only.

■ The Convention Refugee Determination Division (CRDD)

Refugee determination in Canada was formerly a prerogative of the Minister of Employment and Immigration, acting upon the advice of an advisory body, the Refugee Status Advisory Committee (RSAC). Under the amended Immigration Act, the RSAC has ceased to exist and the Refugee Division of the IRB, which is an independent quasi-judicial body, assumes responsibility for adjudicating refugee claims in Canada. The Backlog Subdivision is a special group within the CRDD dedicated to determining claims of people who had claimed refugee status in Canada before January 1, 1989.

■ The Adjudication Division (AD)

The Adjudication Division conducts immigration inquiries which are initiated by a Senior Immigration Officer for certain categories of people believed to be inadmissible or removable under the Immigration Act. It also conducts reviews of the status of persons who have been detained under the Immigration Act.

■ Operations

The support organization for Board operations is highly decentralized. While a Director General, Operations, Policy and Planning at IRB headquarters provides overall supervision of administrative support to both the Appeal, Refugee and Adjudication Divisions, each regional operation is headed by a regional director, who has direct responsibility for all facets of the administrative support provided by that region.

■ Documentation, Research and Information

The Immigration and Refugee Board Documentation Centre supplies the information needs of both the Immigration Appeal Division and the Convention Refugee Determination Division, and serves as a public affairs and education resource in refugee and migration matters. The Documentation Centre also assists IRB spokespersons in promoting knowledge of the functions and responsibilities of the Board and actively develops and implements training programs. Its resources are open and accessible to the public.

■ Legal Services

The Legal Services Unit compiles and maintains an index of the Board's jurisprudence for the use of the members and staff of the Board and the general public. The index contains case law from the Federal Court and the Supreme Court of Canada. The unit provides advice or opinion in matters of procedure, substantive issues of law, or the interpretation of legislative provisions. Legal Services files and serves Notices of Intention to participate in the argument of appeals and applications before the Federal Court, as amicus curiae in appropriate cases.

■ Information Systems Directorate

Responsible for Information Resource Management to support the operational and administrative programs of the Immigration and Refugee Board to meet its National and International objectives. The Directorate is accountable for the design, development, implementation and maintenance of information systems; and the procurement of all computer hardware, software and data communications. It supports the technical infrastructure in six regional offices and Headquarters. The coordination, formulation and implementation of Information resource Management policies, procedures, strategies and Information Management Plans are also an important component of its mandate.

■ Finance and Administration/Personnel

Financial Section:

Responsible for the application of financial policies, systems and procedures in accordance with government acts, regulations and central agency directives. This section provides training and information to management, members and support staff at head office and regional offices.

Administration Section:

Indian Affairs and Northern Development Canada
Chapter 54

General Information

Background

The Department was established under section 15 of the Government Organization Act, 1966, now the Department of Indian Affairs and Northern Development Act (RSC 1985 c. I-6, as amended). The Department is an amalgamation of the responsibilities of the then Department of Northern Affairs and Natural Resources, and the then Department of Citizenship and Immigration pertaining to Indian people in Canada.

Responsibilities

The federal government's legislative responsibilities for Indians and Inuit derive from section 91 (24) of the Constitution Act (1867) formerly called the B.N.A. Act which gives the federal government the exclusive authority to pass laws relating to "Indians, and lands reserved for Indians". On the basis of this authority, the Indian Act, which remains the major expression of federal jurisdiction in this area, was passed and a series of treaties was concluded between Canada and various Indian bands across the country. Federal jurisdiction for Indian peoples under the Constitution Act was subsequently (in 1939) interpreted by the courts to apply to Inuit as well.

Within this legislative framework, the department has a number of interlocking responsibilities and objectives. The department continues to focus activities on the Native Agenda, an initiative announced by the Prime Minister in September 1990. The Agenda, which strives to build a new relationship between First Nations and the Government of Canada, includes settlement of land claims, improving economic and social conditions on reserve and addressing the concerns of Native peoples in contemporary Canadian Society. As well, the department initiates, encourages and supports measures that will respond to the needs and aspirations of Indian peoples and Inuit, encourages the orderly economic and political development of the Northwest and Yukon Territories, and coordinates all federal activities in the two territories; ensures that lawful obligations to Indian peoples are met and settles Native claims relating to traditional native use and occupancy of land in those areas of Canada where this traditional use has not been extinguished by treaty or superseded by law. Increasingly, the department is devolving its powers and responsibilities to the Native peoples and territorial governments directly concerned.

Organization

■ Indian and Inuit Affairs Program

Claims and Indian Government Sector:
Responsible for managing the negotiation and settlement of comprehensive, specific and special claims in respect of Aboriginal rights; developing program frameworks and policy positions to further self government among First Nations at the community level. It is involved in research, policy development, funding support, litigation support and implementation plans for any settlements reached.

Lands, Revenues and Trusts Sector:
Works to fulfil the fiduciary and statutory obligations of the Government of Canada in matters respecting Indians and the lands reserved for Indians in relation to lands, oil and gas, natural resources, revenues and trusts. It exists to protect and administer reserve lands and their resources; to administer the funds of bands and the estates of certain individual Indians; to administer the estates of deceased Indians who ordinarily live on reserve; to register entitlement to Indian status and band membership; and to administer the elections of band councils, the passage of bylaws, and the Crown's treaty obligations. It also exists to address environmental concerns affecting the health and safety, economic and social well-being of Indian people.

Policy and Strategic Direction Sector:
Responsible for developing and monitoring the implementation of the Government's national policy towards Aboriginal peoples, the Native Agenda. It is also responsible for integrating the Department's long term strategy for creating a new relationship with Aboriginal peoples; for managing the related policy analysis and development, basic research, consultation and legislative changes processes; and for coordinating the Department's input to the Royal Commission on Aboriginal Peoples. It will also manage department-level relations with First Nations, other federal interests, the provinces, foreign governments and international organizations. It will also provide a forum for internal circumpolar affairs. It is responsible for developing program frameworks and policy positions to further self-government among First Nations, both at the community level and constitutionally.

In addition, it is also responsible to inform DIAND'S client groups about the policies, programs and activities of the Department; to inform all Canadians about Indians, Inuit and the North; to provide the government and the department with feedback on the interests and concerns of Canadians with respect to DIAND'S responsibilities, and provide functional direction to communications officers in all regions.

Northern Affairs Program:
The program is responsible for managing natural resources in the Yukon Territory and the Northwest Territories; assisting northerners with political, economic and social development; participating in the negotiation of claims settlements and the transfer of resource management responsibilities to the territorial governments; coordinating the federal government's activities in the North; ensuring that the quality of the Arctic environment is maintained; fostering knowledge of the North through scientific investigation and technological development.

■ Administration Program

Corporate Services:
Responsible for the integrated management processes of the Department covering finance, management systems, administration, planning and informatics; for the determination of information/data requirement of the Department; for the audit and evaluation of departmental operations and programs and for the management of the human resources function.

It is also accountable for the acquisition, allocation and management of the departmental Indian Program funding process.

Departmental Secretariat:
Serves as a central link on such items as ministerial and executive correspondence, certain briefings, parliamentary relations and requests made under the Access to Information Act and the Privacy Act.

General Information

Background

Industry Canada incorporates organizational elements of the former departments of Communications, Consumer and Corporate Affairs and Industry, Science and Technology and Investment Canada.

Responsibilities

As the federal government's economic flagship department, Industry Canada's mandate is to encourage international competitiveness and growth of Canadian business, especially small and medium-sized firms, to promote a fair and efficient Canadian marketplace, and to protect, assist and advocate consumer interests. The department's major tasks include: to formulate, integrate and coordinate policies and regulations regarding industry, science, telecommunications, broadcasting, information technologies, investment and competition in the marketplace; to provide strategic intelligence, analysis and other vital business services; to help industry in developing and applying research and technology as well as to encourage business and science participation in international ventures; to ensure orderly development of advanced communications, broadcasting, and information systems and services for the benefit of Canada's consumer, business, industry and science communities; to defend Canada's interests in bilateral and multilateral negotiations regarding international radio wave spectrum allocations along with development and application of international, regional and national standards; to administer voluntary programs and, where required, to set and enforce regulations that help protect consumer interests; to establish a modern regulatory framework for the orderly conduct of business; to reduce internal barriers to trade; to give Canadian taxpayers better access to federal programs and services for business; to improve performance standards for measuring weighing and metering trade equipment; to promote Aboriginal business development across Canada; to encourage economic development in northern Ontario.

Organization

■ Industry and Science Policy Sector

The Industry and Science Policy Sector is responsible for leading development of industry, science, international business and economic framework policy in the Department, and for influencing policies of other government departments in order to enhance the business climate and to promote Canada's industrial competitiveness and scientific excellence.

Policy, Planning and Consultation Branch:

The Branch is responsible for strategic policy leadership, both within Industry Canada and inter-departmentally, with respect to the micro economic policy agenda. Specific functions include industrial policy analysis and integration, analysis and advocacy with respect to economic framework policies, corporate planning, evaluation of the department's programs and services, consultations with the private sector, coordination of federal-provincial relations and the management of the Cabinet briefing process in the department.

Micro-economic Analysis Branch:

Responsible for the provision of microeconomic analysis within the department. This analysis will focus on a range of products, including Monthly Economic Indicators, Fact Sheets, Electronic Briefing Decks, conferences, workshops and a variety of publications. These products will support the development plans in the areas of taxation and business finance, strategic investment analysis and strategic industry and trade analysis.

International Business Branch:

Provides leadership and coordination in the promotion of industrial, science and technology and investment policy as regards Canada's international trade and economic policies and related negotiating strategies, domestic policy initiatives which exploit opportunities and address challenges arising from new international trade agreements and business policy frameworks and policy and program initiatives undertaken by the Government to enhance the international business interests and capabilities of the Canadian private sector.

Science Strategy Branch:

To provide leadership in the development of policies and strategies in science, technology, and industrial innovation, so as to assist Canadian industry to maintain and enhance its competitiveness in the global economy. The principle activities of the Branch relate to the governance of federal S&T investments, technology diffusion policy and programs, science and technology intelligence and analysis and the management of the national S&T infrastructure.

Science Promotion and Academic Affairs Branch:

The Branch is responsible for policy development, program management, coordination and advocacy related to university-based research and technology transfer, the training of highly qualified personnel and college and university-private sector collaboration. It manages the Networks of Centres of Excellence Program, CIAR, the Canada Scholarships Program, industrial awards, the Prime Minister's Teachers Awards, Innovators in the Schools, Schoolnet and Computers in the Schools project. In addition, the Branch undertakes policy development,program management and national coordination related to the promotion of Science and technology with youth in the education system as well as the general public.

Corporate Governance Branch:

Responsible for all research and policy development activities which lead to legislative and regulatory reform of corporate law, intellectual property law and regulatory and standards policy in the department. The Branch develops and directs research activities, and participates in international and intergovernmental negotiations.

To enhance competitiveness, manage ISC's contribution to the development and implementation of corporate governance policy initiatives respecting regulations, standards, Internal Trade, and issues concerning harmonization and business framework legislation under the jurisdiction of ISC.

National Advisory Board on Science and Technology Secretariat (NABST):

The Secretariat provides policy advice, coordination and administrative services to NABST and its Committees. These responsibilities include the coordination, planning and prioritizing of Board activities, ensuring that the Prime Minister receives the benefit of the advice and counsel on science and technology from a comprehensive cross-section of prominent Canadians. In addition, the Secretariat provides guidance on the implication of Board recommendations, and ensures that strategies are developed so that the Canadian government can effectively respond to these recommendations.

Investment Review Directorate:

Responsible for identifying potentially reviewable foreign direct investment transactions; reviewing and assessing investment proposals to determine net benefit to Canada; and ensuring that formal plans and undertakings given by investors are carried out.

Federal Chief Negotiator, Internal Trade:

The Federal Chief Negotiator is responsible for the overall conduct of the federal government's participation in negotiations to eliminate barriers or impediments to trade within Canada.

Internal Trade Secretariat:

The Secretariat is responsible for serving all internal barriers negotiators, both provincial and federal.

■ Office of the Chief Scientist

The Chief Scientist provides advice to the Deputy Minister, Associate Deputy Minister and Industry and Science Canada Ministers on the state of Canada's base in science and research, including the government's own investment in this field. The Chief Scientist is also responsible for liaising with the Canadian scientific community to gauge concerns about the quality of S&T in Canada and with the international scientific community to construct a basis for comparison for the level and quality of S&T activities in Canada.

■ Manufacturing and Processing Industries Sector

The Sector promotes the international competitiveness of Canadian industry with particular emphasis on the development and diffusion of key technological capabilities which enhance industrial competitiveness. The sector covers Canadian industries in aeronautics; defence electronics; space; shipbuilding; automotive, urban transit and rail; industrial and electrical equipment; consumer products; natural resources; building products and packaging; materials; chemicals; biotechnology and medical devices.

Aeronautics Branch:

Responsible for sectoral analysis (including competitiveness analysis), the development of the sectoral knowledge base (including market intelligence), and for sectoral policy analysis and development to promote the development and expansion of the Canadian aeronautics industry. Develops industrial benefits policy for the achievement of industrial and regional benefits through federal government purchases of aerospace products and services.

Automotive Urban Transit and Rail Branch:

Branch is responsible for developing policies and programs and implementing strategies for the automotive, urban transit and rail industries, with the objective of improving their contribution to the manufacturing output, employment, balance of trade and regional development.

Consumer Products Branch:

The Branch is responsible for developing and maintaining a knowledge base for a wide range of consumer products, acting as a contact point for industry with government and for identifying and assessing emerging issues of importance to these sectors.

Industrial and Electrical Equipment and Technology Branch:

Promotes industrial development, export sales and investment in advanced equipment and technology in the agricultural, construction, electorial and energy, material handling, mining, pulp and paper, forestry and marine and ocean-industry equipment industry sectors. The Branch is also responsible for the development of the domestic market for the above-mentioned equipment.

Materials, Chemicals and Bio-Industries Branch:

The Branch is responsible for the development, promotion, implementation and delivery of policies, programs and strategies to promote the growth and international competitiveness of the material, chemicals, biotechnology, pharmaceuticals and medical devices industries. Through sectoral analyses, advocacy activity and on-going monitoring, the Branch provides advice and support on international trade negotiations, technology development and acquisition, foreign investment and policy concerns.

Resource Industries Branch:

The Branch is responsible for the Government interface with industries that process and manufacture resource products, with particular focus on forest products, metals and minerals and building products and packaging. The Branch develops, promotes and implements and delivers strategic policies, programs and services to stimulate the growth and international competitiveness of these industries.

Space, Marine and Defence Branch:

The Branch is responsible for program and policy development, sector intelligence, and providing services to businesses to promote the establishment, improvement, market development and general economic health of the space, marine and defence industries. Also responsible for developing strategies to ensure maximum benefits for this sector's industries through the participation in major government purchasing activities.

■ Spectrum, Information Technologies and Telecommunications Industry Sector

The objective of this sector is to facilitate the development, implementation and adoption of communications technologies, systems and services that serve the economic and social needs of all Canadians. This responsibility includes: formulating R&D and Telecommunications policies; providing a competent base of expertise in technical and strategic issues in the area of systems interconnection and related telecommunications and information technology standards; ensuring the availability and usefulness of communications and information services to all Canadians; improving the international competitiveness of Canada's information technologies industry; developing a policy which ensures the emergence of a thriving new media information industry and infrastructure in Canada; developing policies aimed at achieving Canadian interests in multilateral communications organizations such as the International Telecommunication Union (ITU); managing the department's bilateral telecommunications relationships; and, achieving international R&D cooperation and technical marketing. The Sector strives to ensure the accommodation of as many users of the radio frequency spectrum as possible with a minimum of interference; promotes the development and growth of radio; manages spectrum use by Canadian broadcasters, operators and radio licence holders; and, protects Canada's rights and interests regarding spectrum use through international agreements and regulations.

Broadcasting Regulation Branch:

Under the authority of the Radiocommunication and Broadcasting Acts, the Branch is responsible for the technical planning and regulation of all broadcasting facilities in Canada and all national and international negotiations and legal arrangements needed to ensure the orderly development of the Canadian broadcasting system, including the introduction of new technology. Its main activities include: planning for introduction of new technologies such as digital audio broadcasting, high definition television, direct broadcasting satellite, and video compression; certification of broadcasting facilities (CATV, television, AM and FM); management and planning of frequency allotments; broadcasting implementation strategies; development of broadcasting technical policy; promulgation of broadcasting standards, rules, procedures and regulations; international negotiations and Agreements; industry and public consultation; and, coordination of enforcement with respect to non-compliance, for example, illegal broadcasting stations and the use of illegally modified (chipped) satellite and cable decoders.

Communications Development and Planning Branch:

The Branch promotes the development, diffusion, early commercialization and use of advanced technologies and services, through the Canadian communications and information technologies industry sector. Its main responsibilities are to gather, analyze and disseminate information on technology, market and industry trends, research investment, end-user needs and the implications of new technologies for society; to design and deliver application development programs and projects; to prepare sector strategic plan, and provide advice on information policy issue; to protect, promote Canadian interests in multilateral, bilateral telecommunications negotiations; to assist Canadian telecommunications industries to access export markets and foreign technology; to provide a competent base of expertise in technical and strategic issues in the area of systems interconnection and related telecommunications and information technology standards; and to plan and coordinate financial, administrative and human resources activities for the Spectrum, Information Technology and Telecommunications Sector.

Engineering Programs Branch:

The Branch develops and implements the basic engineering plans and methodologies, technical rules and procedures, automated tools, and equipment certification services for the effective and efficient delivery of the Spectrum Management Program, the Terminal Attachment Program and the Canadian Interconnect Liaison Committee. Its activities include carrying out spectrum planning and engineering to provide channelling and allotment plans and engineering basis for spectrum management; testing and approving radio apparatus for use in Canada; providing the automated tools to efficiently manage the spectrum; providing advanced technology seminars; representing Canadian interests in international standards setting organizations; promoting the transfer of spectrum management technology to Canadian industry for export; ensuring the maintenance and staging of spectrum surveillance vehicles and Integrated Spectrum Observation Centre (ISOC) equipment; and providing engineering support to regional offices.

New Media Branch:

The Branch develops policies and programs which ensure the emergence of a thriving new media information industry and infrastructure in Canada. The Branch provides policy directions to facilitate the ongoing development of an advanced new media information infrastructure; develops policies for electronic commerce for Canada in both domestic and international spheres; develops policies which ensure that Canadian content has a core presence within new media services available in Canada; develops policies and undertakes programs in such areas as distance learning, copyright and the cultural industries; develops policy principles for the guarantee of access to information and the protection of personal privacy; identifies electronic databases with Canadian content and ensures their integrity and protection; conducts research in the economic, social and cultural implications of the new media information society; develops policies to guide and facilitate the orderly development of new media with regard to technical standards for interconnection, delivery systems, bandwidth availability and spectrum allocation; and defines and develops the domestic market for media products and services, so that their evolution, distribution and consumption are facilitated.

Radio Regulatory Branch:

Under the terms of the Radiocommunication Act, the Branch develops spectrum management regulatory and operational policies and procedures. The Branch also plans, authorizes and manages radio spectrum use by Canadian operators and radio licence holders. Principal activities of the Radio Regulatory Branch include: pursuing and protecting Canadian interests in all the International Telecommunication Union fora where International Regulations, allocations and standards and planning methods are developed; drafting legislation and regulations required for the spectrum management program; licensing the operation of radio facilities including mobile radio systems, satellites, microwave relay stations, amateur radio stations, etc.; developing long term strategic directions for the spectrum management program; developing and promulgating all operational policies and procedures; negotiating agreements with other administrations on the orderly use of the spectrum; providing national program direction for spectrum control and authorization activities; operating, maintaining and updating the automated spectrum management system (SMS) used by all departmental spectrum field offices; conducting examinations for radio operators, and; planning for the continuity of telecommunications in the event of a national emergency.

Telecommunications Policy Branch:

The Branch formulates policies, recommendations, regulations and legislation governing and promoting the orderly development and efficient operation of the telecommunications facilities and services required by Canadians for national and international communications, including the present and future use of the radio frequency spectrum. The Branch develops policy proposals related to the structure of the industry providing telecommunications services; develops policy proposals fostering the orderly development and use of Canadian national and international telecommunications facilities and networks, including radio licensing policies and technical standards; develops financial and regulatory policy proposals affecting the telecommunications industry, including regulatory reform proposals, and analysis and recommendations respecting regulatory decisions; and develops policy proposals for the present and future use of the radio frequency spectrum, including the use of the geostationary orbit.

Information Technologies Industry Branch:

The Branch is committed to improving the competitiveness of the information technologies (IT) industry through its business analysis, trade, technology and investment activities. To fulfil this role, It liaises closely with the computer hardware, instrumentation, software, computer services, microelectronics and telecommunications industries. The Branch develops and promotes strategic information services, delivers R&D programs, formulates sector campaigns (currently, for the software, telecommunications, microelectronics and photonics sectors) and is responsible for the delivery of programs and services under the auspices of the campaigns.

■ Communications Research Centre

The Communications Research Centre conducts communications research in cooperation with other federal government departments and agencies, provincial governments, academia and the private sector. Its primary objectives are to: develop and promote communications technologies, systems and services; support the efficient use and management of the radio frequency spectrum; contribute to the development of national and international standards in communications technology, systems and services; provide communications research and development services, advice and facilities; transfer technology to Canadian industry for exploitation; contribute technical expertise in support of government policy initiatives; and facilitate and participate in international research and development programs.

■ Service Industries and Small Business Sector

The Service Industries and Small Business Sector (SISB) supports the development of an internationally competitive Canadian service sector, provides policy development and leadership with respect to national programs affecting the small business community, conducts special analytical projects and promotes the development and diffusion of scientific and technological capabilities of environmental industries. It also supports and promotes the international competitiveness and excellence of the Canadian tourism industry. Under the auspices of the Aboriginal Economic Program, it promotes the expansion of the Aboriginal business sector through a range of programming which directly and indirectly supports Aboriginal businesses and financial institutes.

Tourism Canada:

Tourism Canada supports and promotes the international competitiveness and excellence of the Canadian tourism industry. The Branch focuses on the international marketplace, working with industry and the provinces and territories to create satisfied customers. It provides leadership to the Canadian tourism industry through its policy, research, industry development and international marketing activities.

Corporate and Industrial Analysis Branch:

This Branch, working with corporations, analyses major projects and related business plans potentially requiring government support and negotiates appropriate levels of support based on sound financial and economic analysis. Also working with corporations in selected industrial sectors, it undertakes competitiveness benchmarking analyses against major foreign competitors on a cost-shared basis. It is also responsible for developing sectoral data bases and promoting sectoral development in ISC. The Branch provides its industry coordination and analytic support to the Sector, as well as the Manufacturing and Processing Industries and the Spectrum, Information Technology and Telecommunications Industry Sectors.

Entrepreneurship and Small Business Office:

The primary role of the branch is to identify SME (small and medium enterprise) needs, develop the appropriate knowledge base and direct and influence federal policy and program development. Main activities focus on: access to financing; development of international markets and competitive management skills; and access to strategic information and government programs and services. The branch works in partnership with other government organizations and with key private sector organizations (eg. CCC, CFIB, CMA, CBA, etc.) to achieve its mandate.

Aboriginal Economic Programs (AEP):

AEP promotes the expansion of the Aboriginal business sector. The program provides direct financial support to Aboriginal businesses, and also to Aboriginal financial institutions. Building the capacity of Aboriginal business institutions is also a major objective. In partnership with the program, several Aboriginal institutions now play a very significant and increasing role in program delivery to clients located in rural and remote areas. Within the federal government, AEP acts as an advocate for the interests of Aboriginal business. ISC is a partner in the government's Canadian Aboriginal Economic Development Strategy, also involving Indian and Northern Affairs and Human Resources and Labour Canada

Environmental Affairs Branch:

This branch fosters the development of Canada's environment sector to ensure a vibrant and successful environment industry, domestically and internationally; strives to maintain a balance between industrial growth and environmental protection; coordinates and integrates the department's input to the government's environmental regulatory initiatives; and promotes the development and diffusion of key environmental science and technological capabilities to enhance industrial competitiveness.

Business Services Industries Branch:

This Branch has responsibility for a large group of service industries that provide professional, value-added and information-intensive services to business. It will also be giving close consideration to emerging personal services industries, a growing sector of the "new economy". The mission of the branch is to promote competitiveness by providing strategic intelligence products and services; influencing the policy environment to remove impediments and create opportunities; developing comprehension of competitiveness factors in business and government; and, in selected instances, mounting program initiatives with industry.

Distribution and Construction Industries Branch:

This branch encompasses a multitude of service sectors (including transportation, freight management, utilities, wholesaling and retailing) and the construction and related capital projects industries. The mandate of this new branch is to improve the global competitiveness of these sectors in their own right, and as critical components in the value chain of other sectors through economic and industry analysis; provision of strategic information and intelligence services and programs, market development services, shared initiatives with private and public sector partners and informed policy advocacy

Regional Operations:

The Sector provides leadership, advocacy and program support for enhancing the performance of business enterprises and client organizations at the regional level, and to provide a framework to regulate the creation and existence of federal corporations to maintain order and fairness, and to restore resources from corporate bankruptcies to more productive use.

Regional Offices:

The Regional Offices in all provinces and territories are Industry Canada's front-line delivery points for programs and services, particularly to small – and medium sized businesses. They also serve as the delivery and co-ordination points for the international trade services and programs of DEA through International Trade Centres in each office. A wide range of support is thus provided in the areas of intelligence and business information, trade and market development, technology and industrial development. Regional Offices also offer a window for Industry Canada on the industrial, technology, investment and market development needs and opportunities with the provinces. They liaise with other federal departments and agencies, manage the Department's relations with provincial governments, administer federal-provincial agreements, and are reasoned advocates for their clients.

In addition, the regional operations of the department provide the inspection and enforcement activities associated with the acts and regulations affecting the packaging, labelling, advertising, quality and quantity for the promotion and protection of the consumer interest in the marketplace. So too the regional operations of the department provide the planning, authorization and management of radio spectrum used by broadcasters, operators and radio licence holders.

Corporations Branch:

The Branch administers the Canada Business Corporations Act, the Canada Corporations Act, and several other statutes, through the examination of applications for federal incorporation, continuance, amalgamation and dissolution of corporations; the management of a database on federal corporations; and the collection, assessment and verification of information made available to the public. It issues exemptions from certain requirements of the Canada Business Corporations Act and monitors and enforces compliance with various statutory requirements

Bankruptcy Branch:

The Branch is the administrative designation of the Office of the Superintendent of Bankruptcy which supervises the administration of the bankruptcy and insolvency process in Canada.

Under the authority of the Bankruptcy and Insolvency Act, the Superintendent of Bankruptcy is reponsible for supervising the administration of commercial and consumer insolvencies so as to ensure integrity of the process and to promote public confidence in the credit system; keeping records of bankruptcy and insolvency proceedings and providing public access to this information; responding to complaints from creditors, debtors and the general public; and the licensing of private sector trustees to administer estates, and the setting and enforcement of professional standards for estate administration.

Regional and Program Services Branch:

The Regional and Program Services Branch provides support for the management of a network of regional offices. It is also a corporate centre for the management and design of funded programs and services and for ensuring program integrity in delivery.

Services to Business Branch:

Develops, markets and delivers specific services and programs of a horizontal nature that help Canadian business, particularly small– and medium-sized enterprises (SMEs) in all sectors and regions become aware of, access and pursue opportunities, and deal with competitiveness issues. In particular, the branch carries the mandate of developing initiatives to enhance the usage of quality standards and benchmarking practices, and is a key manager and developer of information products including market information. It manages the Technology Outreach Program which, in partnership with the private sector, promotes best practices diffusion on a number of broad fronts. The branch disseminates information to business through the network of Canada Business Service Centres; and also serves clients in government, some of which are also stakeholders in the services and products offered, e.g., sector and policy branches and regional offices. The science and technical community are also supported by promoting linkages between business, academia and government laboratories.

■ Bureau of Consumer Affairs

The Bureau of Consumer Affairs aims to promote a safe, orderly and equitable marketplace for both traders and consumers. In consultation with other departments and agencies and the private and non-profit sectors, the Activity establishes and enforces regulations and administers voluntary programs to promote protection of the interests of consumers in the Canadian marketplace, fairness in the identification and presentation of products and accurate and equitable marketplace transactions based on measurement.

The Activity is comprised of four operational sub-activities. Weights and Measures is responsible for the enforcement of legislation to minimize accurate measurement and inequity in trade of goods and services provided on the basis of measurement. Electricity and Gas is responsible for the enforcement of legislation to minimize inaccurate measurement and to ensure equity in trade of electricity and gas. Consumer Products is responsible for the enforcement of legislation and the administration of volumtary programs to prevent product misrepresentation in the marketplace. Consumer Policy identifies and analyses marketplace consumer issues and articulates strategies to resolve problems.

■ Canadian Intellectual Property Office

The Canadian Intellectual Property Office (CIPO) is responsible for granting or registering intellectual property rights in Canada and for ensuring that the information acquired, in exchange for such rights, is made available to the public. The development, management and exploitation of intellectual property is important to Canada's economic development and international competitiveness. CIPO's role is to ensure that intellectual property contributes to an acceleration of Canadian economic development and that the benefits of the intellectual property system accrue to Canadians.

Automated Systems Branch:

The prime responsibility of the Automated Systems Branch (ASB) is to facilitate automation of the operations of the Canadian Patent Office (CPO) to enable the information contained in patents to be electronically disseminated throughout Canada. This 10-year, $76 million project known as TECHSOURCE, is scheduled to be completed by March 1996. The ASB role is to ensure that the prime contractor (IBM Canada) delivers the system as specified, on time, and within the contract budget, and that the system meets user requirements.

ASB is also responsible for maintaining an integrated approach to informatics projects throughout CIPO, and for developing informatics policy positions with respect to international intellectual property matters.

Copyright and Industrial Design Branch (CIDB):

The Copyright and Industrial Design Branch (CIDB) is responsible for the maintenance of the Copyright Register, the Industrial Design Register and the Integrated Circuit Topography Register. These registers are sources of information for the public and provide presumption of rights. The branch furnishes information about the registration processes and provides registration documents following the processing and analysis of applications

Patent Appeal Board (PAB):

The Patent Appeal Board (PAB) reviews final rejections of applications for the grant of patents and for the registration of industrial designs, resolves conflicts between patent applicants whose claims cover the same invention, and oversees the re-examination of patents. The Board may hold formal hearings as part of the review procedure.

Patent Branch (PB):

The Patent Branch (PB) processes patent applications filed directly in the Canadian Intellectual Property Office, as well as those filed indirectly through foreign Receiving Offices under the Patent Cooperation Treaty (PCT). The Patent Branch verifies the form and contents of the applications against the requirements of the Patent Act and Regulations, lays the applications open to public inspection, examines the technological contents of the applications in light of prior art to determine the patentability of inventions which are claimed in the applications, prosecutes the applications to ensure that the scope of patent protection will be in accordance with Canadian law and practice, and grants patents when applications are found to be allowable. The Patent Branch also assists the Canadian business and research communities by providing patent information on state-of-the-art technologies.

Operational Research Branch:

Operational Research Branch (ORB) is accountable for research and planning in support of the Canadian Intellectual Property Office (CIPO) operations. Responsibilities include the management of a program to advance Canada's intellectual property concerns internationally; directing the strategic and business planning processes for CIPO; the implementation of intellectual property legislation and regulations related to special powers of the Commissioner of Patents and the Registrar of Trade-marks; and implementation of regulatory reviews and amendments.

Trade-marks Branch:

Trade-marks Branch (TMB) determines which trade-marks are entitled to exclusive use by owners, and maintains the Trade-marks Register and associated records of trade-marks for the disclosure of trade-mark information to the public. Trade-marks applications which have been examined and deemed acceptable are advertised in the weekly "Trade-marks Journal" to enable persons to oppose any marks that they feel may interfere with their existing rights. The Branch maintains a search room and indexes of registered marks for the public.

Information and Technology Exploitation Branch:

The primary role of the information and Technology Exploitation Branch (ITEB) is to make our clients aware of the intellectual property systems and their benefits, and to disseminate the technical and business information found within CIPO data-bases. This is done mainly through i) patent classification services and advice; ii) administration of the Technological Information Service and the Extended Search Service; iii) administration and maintenance of the patent and trade-marks public search rooms and document search files; iv) maintenance of patent microfiche and paper reproduction services; v) maintenance of the Patent Agent Register; vi) providing IP inquiries and information services; vii) preparing and updating IP publications; viii) managing CIPO communications; ix) delivering CIPO public education program; x) managing an Intermediary network for serving target client groups; and xi) managing a network of IP regional advisors.

Trade-marks Opposition Board:

The Trade-marks Opposition Board (TMOB) administers two separate adversarial proceedings arising under the Trade-marks Act: a) oppositions to the registration of trade-marks; and b) summary proceedings for amending or expunging of trade-mark registrations (Section 45 proceedings).

The Board oversees each of the proceedings from their initiation to the rendering of final decisions, including all rulings made during the course of the proceedings. All final decisions rendered by the Board are subject to appeal to the Federal Court, Trial Division and any interim rulings made during the course of the proceedings are subject to possible review by the Federal Court.

■ Bureau of Competition Policy

The Bureau of Competition Policy promotes competition and efficiency in the Canadian economy through the administration of the Competition Act concentrating on enforcement, public awareness and submissions on public policy matters.The Director of Investigation and Research is a statutory appointment with the responsibility of administering and enforcing the Competition Act as the head of the Bureau of Competition Policy which consists of four Enforcement Branches and two Directorates.

Civil Matters Branch:

Responsible for administering the reviewable section of the Act (excluding mergers). The Civil Matters Branch is also responsible for the Director's representations before Boards, Commissions and other Tribunals.

Mergers Branch:

Responsible for the administration of the merger provisions of the Act (including the notifiable transaction requirements) in all sectors of the Canadian economy.

Marketing Practices Branch:

Responsible for enforcing the misleading advertising and deceptive marketing practices provisions of the Act. The Branch is decentralized with 11 offices across Canada.

Policy Directorate:

Provides economic, policy and strategic analysis and advice to the Director and other units of the Bureau dealing with enforcement and policy issues. The Directorate also participates in departmental and interdepartmental development of government policies and legislation with relevance to the Act, and is responsible for Canada's participation in and construction to the work of international organizations such as the Organization for Economic Development and United Nations Conference on Trade and Development in the field of competition policy.

Compliance and Coordination Directorate:

This Directorate is comprised of two branches:

Compliance and Coordination Branch:

Coordinates the Bureau's public information program, assists in the development and dissemination of Bureau policies and procedures and provides research assistance to the enforcement branches. The Branch also develops and coordinates internal operational training for Bureau staff.

Management Policy and Services Branch:

Responsible for Bureau strategic, operational, and resource planning and reporting; operational review; information systems and support; and financial, administrative and personnel services.

■ Office of the Assistant Deputy Registrar General

The Assistant Deputy Registrar General administers the government's Conflict of Interest and Post Employment Code for public office holders and provides policy advice to the government, the Privy Council Office and deputy heads.

■ Corporate Services

Corporate Services comprises five branches each delivering support to ISC's mission. The principal services are in the areas of financial management and reporting; human resource management, including staffing and classification; information management, including technology, libraries, user services, and facilities management; communications; and internal audit.

Finance Branch:

Maintains the financial framework for the management of grants and contributions and operating budgets, protects the Crown interests through recovery action on defaulted loans, loan guarantees and contributions, and collects revenues on the Department's behalf. The branch also manages the contracting and procurement process for the Department as a whole, and manages the delegation of financial authority and accountability to responsibility centre managers.

Human Resources Branch:

Staffs and classifies positions, provides training and development services for staff, promotes healthy staff relations, and manages the employee assistance program, employee recognition awards, and official languages. The branch also provides policy advice regarding performance evaluation, implements government security policy, and oversees the PS2000 initiatives. Other responsibilities of the function include bringing current human resources issues to the attention of line managers through the corporate planning process.

Information Management Branch:

Provides the framework for the management of information holdings and their efficient dissemination in support of corporate goals, and promotes the optimum use of modern information technology in acquiring, using, storing, and disposing of information. The branch further provides direct services to users in information retrieval, and ensures Departmental compliance with relevant government legislation and policies. The branch also manages accommodation facilities for the Department, and provides all data and voice communications services.

Internal Audit Branch:

Conducts audits consistent with Departmental and central agency policies and provides a program audit function by completing specific, independent, post-reviews of Departmental projects.

Communications Branch:

provides advice, services, and products which enable ISC to fulfill its mandate. As the focal point for relaying information about ISC programs, policies, and projects, the Branch plays a key role in developing clear, positive messages and delivering these to employees, clients, and the general public. The Branch also provides communications advice to departmental decision-makers through plans, strategies and environmental analyses, and is responsible for coordinating the production of publications, audio-visual materials, speeches, and media materials.

■ Office of the Corporate Secretary

The Office of the Corporate Secretary provides executive support to ISC Ministers across the broad spectrum of their overall portfolio responsibilities, and to the Deputy Minister and the Associate Deputy Minister, in the form of management of the decision-making process, parliamentary relations, and operation of the executive offices. The Office also promotes the application of the Access to Information Act and the Privacy Act within ISC. The Corporate Secretary is the primary catalyst for the provision of advice and support to departmental executives and the dissemination of information related to senior management decisions.

Access to Information and Privacy (ATIP) Office:

Oversees the administration and policy development of the Access to Information Act and the Privacy Act as related to the Department. It processes formal requests, advises senior management on the administration of the legislation and the disposition of cases, and promotes awareness of the legislation within the Department.

Broadcast Engineering Database

Description: This bank contains technical and administrative information related to broadcasting certificates. The information is used in the issue, renewal and amendment of certificates under the Radiocommunications Act and in providing technical certification to the Canadian Radio-Television and Telecommunications Commission (CRTC) to permit the issue of broadcast licenses under the Broadcasting Act. It is also used in meeting the technical criteria in bilateral agreements with the U.S.A. and agreements administered by the International Telecommunications Union (ITU). Some of this information is shared with: the Department of Transport to ensure that transmission of FM broadcasting stations do not interfere with aircraft communications; Energy, Mines and Resources Canada in preparing topographical maps; CRTC; Federal Communications Commission of the U.S.A. (FCC) related to the above agreements. Note: This record is also part of the Regional Offices. Program Record Number: COM SMB 201

Communications Application Research

Description: Information on the development, implementation, testing and marketing of new or improved communications and information technology products and services to meet the requirements of industry, governments and special needs groups such as people with disabilities, aboriginal peoples, seniors and those in remote locations. This involves project management resulting from the application of policy and R & D developed by the Department and its partners. Topics: Social and informatics applications, disabilities, native syllabics, database industry. Program Record Number: COM DGI 191

Community Cable Television Database

Description: This bank contains technical and administrative information related to broadcasting certificates for cable television distribution systems. The information is used in the issue, renewal and amendment of certificates under the Radiocommunications Act and in providing technical certification to the Canadian Radio-Television and Telecommunications Commission (CRTC) to permit the issue of licenses under the Broadcasting Act. Parts of this information are shared with: the Department of Transport to ensure that transmission towers do not interfere with aircraft communications and navigation, and with the CRTC. Note: This record is also part of the Regional Offices. Program Record Number: COM SMB 202

Emergency Telecommunications

Description: Information on emergency telecommunications planning in support of the Department's mandate summarized in Emergency Planning Order PC 1981-1305 dated May 21, 1981. Topics: Emergency preparedness and crisis management; interdepartmental, intergovernmental and international committees on civil emergency planning; emergency telecommunications programs and contingency plans; national warning system emergency planning and support by regions; NATO and U.S./Canada military and civil exercises. Note: This record is also part of the Regional Offices. Program Record Number: COM RDR 205

Engineering

Description: This class of documents contains information on technical standards and procedures for radio equipment and systems, the development and implementation of radio frequency plans and frequency assignment criteria. It also contains the Terminal Attachment Program standards and procedures. Topics: Equipment type approval; technical methods, practices, procedures and standards; development and engineering. Spectrum management: assignment and licensing subsystems, research, special projects, pilot projects, spectrum surveillance system, automated systems development. Note: This record is also part of the Regional Offices. Program Record Number: COM SMG 210

Industry Development Program

Description: Involves the complementary activities of economic development; and industry development to promote effective government leadership in support of the satellite, informatics, telecommunications industries and to meet the needs of end-users. Topics: Program planning; policy reports and studies; industrial objectives and opportunities; industrial capabilities and requirements monitoring; government support; development of statistics, reports and studies on industrial research and information technologies, radio communications, satellites and mobile communications, disabilities, native syllabics, database industry support. Program Record Number: COM DGI 111

Management and Plans

Description: Information on ADMRS sector management and planning activities. Topics: Budgets, financial accountability reports, person-year reports, staffing, classification, training, Treasury Board submissions, contracts, Main Estimates Science Addendum, data bases on international travel, conference attendance and personal computer usage. Program Record Number: COM DMG 196

Regional Operations
Description: Information on relations and activities between the Department and its regional offices on all matters related to the portfolio. Topics: Information on regional programs; intergovernmental committees, meetings and conferences; profiles of provinces; regional development, coordination and liaison; communications – provinces and territories; cultural affairs – provinces and territories. Program Record Number: COM RGS 065

Spectrum Management Operations
Description: This class of documents contains information on the application of the Radiocommunications Act and the development and administration of regulations. Topics: Call signs; procedures; standards and practices; regulations; spectrum management. Computer system operation: data management, Assignment Licensing System (PIB 2004), General Radio Service Licensing System. Interference: complaints and suppressions; prosecutions for unauthorized installations; Radio Operator Certification Records. Frequencies: coordination, amateur, experimental, private and public commercial, radio telephone, ships; monitoring (spectrum surveillance). Note: This record is also part of the Regional Offices. Program Record Number: COM RDR 195

Systems Interconnection Research
Description: Information on research and development in computer/data communications and information technology. Particularly comprehensive data on Open Systems Interconnection and standards. Information is held in the form of reports, studies, national standards, international standards and standards committee working documents. Topics: Open Systems Interconnection, Integrated Services Digital Networks, Standards, Conformance Testing, Systems Architecture, Text and Office Systems. Program Record Number: COM TIP 048

Technology and Policy Planning
Description: Information about technological trends and priorities and the technical, economic, institutional, regulatory and social impacts of those key technologies. Topics: Technology assessment, research environment, telecommunications program design and assessment; artificial intelligence, new video technologies, electronic publishing, information technology; Vision 2000 Project. Program Record Number: COM DGI 081

■ Communications Research Centre

Advanced Devices and Reliability
Description: Information pertaining to research and development of new microelectronic devices and circuits, particularly those based on compound semiconductor materials such as gallium arsenide (GaAs), and the evaluation of these materials in regard to their suitability for device and circuit fabrication. Topics: Device and circuit fabrication processes and evaluations; GAAs high-speed logic optoelectronic devices and circuits for data processing; and broadband switching applications. Program Record Number: COM ADR 141

Behaviourial Research
Description: This bank contains reports, studies, field trial evaluations, surveys and interviews involving individual reactions, views and opinions related to the intellectual, creative and productive capabilities of human beings in information communication and related processes, especially human perceptual and cognitive processes, human behaviour, and the interaction between people and communications technology. The reports themselves, published or unpublished, reflect collective human behaviour and not personal information about an individual. Personal information may be obtained in the process of preparing a report to establish the identity and credibility of the source. This form of personal information is normally retrievable only if specifics are provided concerning the report involved. Program Record Number: COM BRT 155

Broadcast Technologies Research and Development
Description: Information on research and development in broadcasting and related technologies, systems and services. Topics: Television; sound (radio); datacasting; imagery; video and film generation; interactive home-services; behaviourial research; broadcast standards and networks. Program Record Number: COM BRT 151

Components and Subsystems
Description: Information pertaining to research and development on the design, testing and application of GAAS monolithic microwave integrated circuits (MMIC), miniature hybrid microwave integrated circuits (MHMIC), components for use in the EHF frequency band, and the design and application of silicon very large scale integrated circuits (VLSI). Topics: MMIC components and devices; EHF MHMIC components; high speed digital components; and phased array antennas (for communications, radar and microwave landing system application). Program Record Number: COM CCS 142

Mobile Satellite Program
Description: The Mobile Satellite (MSAT) Program, begun in the latter part of 1980, exists to foster development of new mobile telecommunications services in Canada. The program has changed from a government demonstration system to a commercially led Canada-U.S. joint venture supported by both the Department and NASA. Under the revised program Telesat Canada is to seek agreements with an American commercial operator to be licensed by the FCC. Telesat is to design the system and procure the spacecraft. The Department's responsibilities during the implementation phase include supporting technology development for the spacecraft and ground terminals, supporting Telesat in negotiation of business arrangements in Canada and the United States, ensuring adequate spectrum allocation and sharing arrangements with the United States, issuing supportive telecommunications policies, and supporting Telesat by the sharing of technological and market risk in the first generation system. Topics: Program and project control; system and service

description; committees and working groups; international liaison; domestic and international agreements; program development; contracts and studies plan; spectrum sharing and allocation; policy and regulatory issues. Program Record Number: COM CTR 090

Optical Communications Technologies
Description: Information pertaining to research and development on optical communications and electrophotonics that have application in communications and informatics. Topics: Research on standards; field trials; optical computing and switching; optical and passive waveguides; military applications; fibre optics local networks. Program Record Number: COM COM 140

Radio Communications Technologies
Description: Research and development in the area of radio communications technology, and the performance of radio communications equipment in its operating environment for military and civil applications. Topics: Radio communications technology; radio frequency environment, radio systems techniques; radio networks; military communications. Program Record Number: COM CTR 135

Radio Propagation
Description: Information on the transmission of radio waves in the very low-frequency (VLF) through the extra high-frequency (EHF) bands and the design and management of analog and digital communication systems for both civilian and military applications. Topics: VHF/UHF propagation studies, experiments and modelling; Space Shuttle/Waves in Space Plasmas project; VLF/LF/MF/HF studies and models; microwave propagation studies; wireless local area networks; UHF/VHF prediction Program and Topographic Database. Program Record Number: COM CTR 130

Satellite Communications
Description: Information on the research and development of communications and other space systems and subsystems. Topics: Space communications systems research; military satellite communications; search and rescue satellite (SARSAT); mobile satellite communications; communications signal processing; low-cost satellite telephony terminals. Program Record Number: COM CTR 170

■ Quebec Sector

Canadian Workplace Automation Research Centre
Description: This class of documents contains information about the projects carried out at the Centre. Topics: Organizational research, multimedia systems, processing of natural languages, standardized technologies, implementation management, knowledge-based systems and cultural applications of information and communications technologies. Program Record Number: COM WKP 190

■ Bureau of Consumer Affairs

Consumer Policy and Services – General
Description: Information on consumer issues, policy, marketplace trends and correspondence. Topics: Branch issue management; marketplace intelligence; compliance and enforcement policies, reports, credit card issues, electronic funds transfer, privacy issues. Program Record Number: CCA BCA 031

Consumer Policy and Services – Government Sector
Description: Information on government programs, policies and legislation affecting the marketplace, and the administration of the Tax Rebate Discounting Act. Topics: Liaison with other departments and agencies; consumer advocacy, consumer resource exposition and guide; intervenors representation, consumer issues, Special populations; reports and returns; projects; Tax Rebate Discounting. Storage Medium: EDP Systems. Tax rebate system – established to control data-report information, to reduce data storage space requirements of system, and to monitor tax discounter transactions for violations of the Tax Rebate Discounting Act. Program Record Number: CCA BCA 046

Consumer Policy and Services – Private Sector
Description: Information relating to consumer issues and the involvement of business. Topics: Liaison with associations, boards, councils, commissions and companies; complaints and enquiries; projects; conferences, meetings, seminars and symposia, surveys and studies, motor vehicle complaints resolutions and mechanism; refund and exchange policy. Storage Medium: EDP Systems. Consumer services mailing labels system – established to print labels and alphabetical lists for mailing purposes. Program Record Number: CCA BCA 036

Consumer Policy and Services – Voluntary Sector
Description: This class covers information on technical assistance to new consumer groups, training, financial assistance in the form of grants and contributions to consumer groups. Topics: Conferences, meetings, seminars, symposia; liaison with associations, institutes, councils and organizations; reference material; reports and returns; applications for funding; Canadian consumer week; National consumer week. Program Record Number: CCA BCA 041

Consumer Products – Packaging and Labelling
Description: This class covers information on regulations, interpretations and rulings, complaints and enquiries, correspondence, inspections, seizures, prosecutions, statistical data, sampling and testing concerning non-food products. The portion relating to agrifood and labelling has been transferred to the department of Agriculture Canada. Topics: Surveillance and liaison with Canadian General Standards Board. Access: Files arranged by subject with a case file arrangement for company enquiries by name. Storage

Medium: A system on magnetic tape is used to evaluate the compliance of various commercial establishments with the different consumer protection laws. Program Record Number: CCA BCA 015

Consumer Products – Precious Metals and Fur Garment Marking
Description: This class covers information on regulations, interpretations and rulings, complaints and enquiries, correspondence, inspections, seizures, prosecutions, statistical data, sampling and testing concerning precious metal products and fur garments. Topics: Fur: garment marking, liaison, surveillance and enforcement; precious metals marking: liaison, surveillance and enforcement, foreign government marks, national mark, trade marks. Access: Files arranged by subject with a case file arrangement for company enquiries by name. Storage Medium: A system on magnetic tape is used to evaluate the compliance of various commercial establishments with the different consumer protection laws. Program Record Number: CCA BCA 020

Electricity and Gas
Description: Information on the electricity and gas program. Topics: Electricity – approvals, imports and exports, statistics, inspection regulations and reports, calibrations, registration applications; gas – inspection regulations, approvals, calibrations, technical information, inspection reports, metric conversion standards and equipment, and registration applications. Storage Medium: EDP system. Program Record Number: CCA BCA 055

Foods
Description: Information on food inspection programs. Topics: Inspections; legislation; surveys and studies; technical information; advertising; liaison with other departments, associations, boards, councils, companies; liaison with Canadian Radio-Television Commission (CRTC); processed products; surveillance; complaints; enquiries. Program Record Number: CCA BCA 010

Legal Metrology
Description: Information on metering, specifications, symbols and standards, metric conversion and international measurement. Topics: Calibrations; liaison with associations, councils and international organizations; technical enquiries; metric conversion; misleading advertising and standards. Program Record Number: CCA BCA 050

Legal Metrology Programs
Description: Information on international standards, Canada's participation in international working groups and Canada's comments and votes. Topics: Organisation internationale de métrologie légale – general, international recommendations secretariat. Access: Files arranged by subject. Program Record Number: CCA BCA 065

Product Safety
Description: Information on compliance and enforcement, statistical data and programs within product safety. Topics: Standardization control; correspondence; liaison with associations; societies; institutions; boards; councils; commissions; committees; Hazardous Products Act and Workplace Hazardous Materials Information System (WHMIS) legislation; injury data and statistics; Canadian accident injury reporting and evaluation (CAIRE); labelling; publicity; projects; regulations; reports; Hazardous Products Program Review. Program Record Number: CCA BCA 070

Products
Description: Information on regulations, company liaison, complaints and enquiries, reference materials, sampling and testing, and enforcement concerning specific products. Topics: Alarm and protective devices; artist supplies and stationery; appliances; automotive; entertainment; furnishings; furniture care supplies; garden and yard equipment; home fuels; home structures and building material; insulation; housewares; infant and children's products; maintenance products; paper products and containers; personal use items; recreation equipment; sports and protective equipment; textiles; tobacco; tools and workshop equipment; toys; compliance. Complaints analysis – established to analyze product-related complaints by the Branch. Access: Files are arranged by product. Storage Medium: EDP System. Program Record Number: CCA BCA 075

Testing
Description: Information on testing and test methods for specific products. Topics: Equipment design; fabrication and modification; legislative matters; test methods; chemical flammability; mechanical, electrical and textile testing of specific products. Access: Files are arranged by test and product. Storage Medium: Magnetic Disk (testing and sampling tracking system). Program Record Number: CCA BCA 080

Textile Labelling
Description: Information on regulations, interpretations and rulings, complaints and enquiries, correspondence, company registration, inspections, seizures and prosecutions, sampling and testing of textile products. Topics: Textile labelling and legislation; liaison with the Canadian General Standards Board; Canada standards size program; care labelling program; liaison with other departments, provinces, boards, councils, industries, associations; identification numbers (CA); importation; laboratory compliance program; surveillance and enforcement; investigations; surveys; testwork; upholstered and stuffed articles; reference material. Program Record Number: CCA BCA 025

Weights and Measures
Description: Information on the measurement of volumes, linear and cubic area, and mass. Linear and cubic area – approvals, calibrations, statistics; mass and volume – approvals, calibrations, technical information, metric conversion, tests and test methods; interpretations, specifications, prosecutions, standards, testing and international measurement. Storage Medium: EDP system. Program Record Number: CCA BCA 060

Classes of Personal Information

Enterprise/Industrial Development and Assistance
The Department and its predecessor departments have administered a number of enterprise/industrial development and assistance programs. These programs have been aimed at encouraging enterprise and industrial development in a wide variety of ways. Personal information may be collected in the course of these departmental activities. Programs and activities which may have involved the storage of personal information include the Program for Export Market Development, the Defence Industry Productivity Program, the Microelectronics and Systems Development Program, the Technology Outreach Program, the Sector Campaigns, including the Prosperity Initiative, the St. Lawrence River Environmental Technology Development Program, the Advance Manufacturing Technology Application Program, the Strategic Technologies Program, the Science Culture Program, the Pharmaceutical Industrial Development Assistance Program, the Credit Reinsurance Program, the Shipbuilding Industry Assistance Program, the Advanced Technology Program – Waterloo Centre for Process Development, the Small Business Investments Grants, the Government Procurement Projects, the Industry Energy Research and Development Program, the Major Crown Projects, the Aboriginal Capital Corporations Programs, the Aboriginal Economic Programs Research and Advocacy Program, Aboriginal Business Development and Joint Ventures Program, Native Economic Development Program, Special Agricultural and Rural Development, Aboriginal Business Loan Insurance Program, the Western Transportation Industrial Development Program, the FEDNOR Core Industrial Program, the Rural Small Business Program – FEDNOR, the FEDNOR Loan Insurance Program, the FEDNOR Tourism Program, and Grants and Contributions to non-profit organizations to promote economic cooperation and development.

Personal information may include particulars such as the names, addresses, social insurance numbers, financial interests, management capabilities, employment histories, remuneration, age, health, marital status and educational background of individuals. Such personal information is stored as part of the general subject files where records are not normally retrieved by name of individual or other personal identifier. This form of personal information is normally retrievable only if specifics are provided such as the program area, the corporate/project name, the location of a facility and the approximate date of submission/award.

General Development Agreements, Economic and Regional Development Agreements, Subsidiary Agreements and Related Initiatives

The Department has collected data needed for the administration of subsidiary agreements entered into with the provinces, consistent with the terms and conditions of general development agreements previously signed with all provinces, except Prince Edward Island, and the new economic and regional development agreements entered into with the 10 provinces. The general development agreements, which expired on March 31, 1984, established the framework for development and identified development opportunities for implementation under subsidiary agreements. The economic and regional development agreements with the provinces, as well as the subsidiary agreements signed under the economic development agreements with the Territories, provide a framework for co-operation and consultation on matters relating to economic development in each province and territory. As opportunities are identified, individual subsidiary agreements are formulated. These opportunities are normally unique to a province and, as a result, subsidiary agreements cover a broad range of specific programs.

Personal information may be stored in administering a number of subsidiary agreements. This information may include financial, employment, demographic and educational data on individuals. Such data, however, would be stored as part of the general subject files where records are not normally retrieved by name of individual or other personal identifier. This form of personal information is normally retrievable only if specifics are provided such as the name of the project or program that may be related thereto and the approximate date of submission/award.

Other Programs and Agreements

This class reflects other programs and agreements not specifically covered under the other classes. These other programs and agreements are aimed at resolving specific problems of a limited nature or in specifically defined areas of the country. For example, federal-provincial agreements, such as those under the Agricultural and Rural Development Act (ARDA), are concerned with rural problems of unemployment and social disadvantages. Special ARDA agreements have been used as a vehicle to improve the economic circumstances of native people by providing financial and other assistance to create job opportunities. A Native Economic Development Program was established to increase economic self-reliance and development for Canada's native people. A 15-year development agreement, the Prince Edward Island Comprehensive Development Plan, was signed by Canada and P.E.I. in 1969, under the authority of the Fund for Rural Economic Development Act. The plan has allowed for the design and implementation of a broad range of programs to stimulate economic growth, create jobs and raise per capita income. In addition, under the Federal Development Strategy, the Department has been involved in providing further economic development activities in P.E.I.

Personal information may be stored in administering programs falling within this class. This information may include financial, employment, demographic and educational data on individuals. Such data, however, would be stored as part of the general subject files where records are not normally retrieved by name of individual or other personal identifier. This form of information is normally retrievable only if specifics are provided, such as the name of the program concerned, the name of the specific project and the approximate date of submission/award.

■ Formerly Consumer and Corporate Affairs Canada

Inquiries (Bureau of Consumer Affairs)

This class contains inquiries concerning the following Acts, which are administered in whole or in part by the Department: Canada Agricultural Products Standards

Act; Consumer Packaging and Labelling Act; Electricity; Gas and Inspection Act; Fish Inspection Act; Food and Drugs Act; Hazardous Products Act; National Trade Mark and True Labelling Act; Precious Metals Marking Act; Textile Labelling Act; Weights and Measures Act. This class contains records on establishments that have been inspected with respect to the requirements or the legislation listed above. It contains inspection and incident reports, complaints, warning letters and other correspondence, and reports of prosecution. The names of individuals who are sole owners of companies appear in the files. These files are kept for several years in order to plan inspection visits and monitor the compliance level in relation to the regulatory requirements of the legislation administered by the Department.

Complaints, Investigations and Inquiries Class (Bureau of Competition Policy)
This class contains personal information relating to the administration and enforcement of the Combines Investigation Act and the Competition Act. The material may relate to the legislation in general, or to any category of product or service. Most filing is done according to standard industrial classification coding; the key reference for retrieval purposes is the industry or company involved. There is limited cross-referencing to and recording of incoming correspondence which may contain personal information. (Such correspondence includes complaints and requests for information as well as information obtained from the Canadian Police Information Centre, U.S. Department of Justice and from O.E.C.D. anti-trust authorities.) Personal information held by the Bureau may be provided to federal or provincial departments and agencies to ensure a proper level of service to the person identified.

Technological Information Services Requests (Intellectual Property Directorate)
This class includes the names, addresses and telephone numbers of individual inventors and entrepreneurs who have submitted requests for technological information. Also included is background information relating to the requests, the purposes of the requests and the specific areas of interest. The purpose of this service is to provide a technology search to assist in the development of new or improved products and processes and to avoid duplication of research and development. Requests are received via intermediary agencies (such as provincial research councils), and files are maintained by agency, not by name of individual. Requests are retained for a minimum of two years.

Mailing Lists (Bureau of Corporate Policy and Strategic Planning)
This class of personal information contains the names and addresses of individuals who are on a mailing list to receive specific information or publications on departmental programs and activities. The lists are used by all bureaus to distribute departmental information and to respond to requests by individuals. The lists are updated on a continuing basis. The lists are maintained for a minimum of two years.

Program Evaluation (Bureau of Corporate Policy and Strategic Planning)
This class of personal information contains data collected from departmental employees for departmental program evaluation studies. The aggregate data are used to support program evaluation, policy analysis and program development activities. All data are retained at headquarters with study files retained for a minimum of two years. Files are retrievable by study only. The names of individual participants are not retained.

■ Research and Spectrum Sector

Behaviourial Research
This bank contains reports, studies, field trial evaluations, surveys, and interviews involving individual reactions, views and opinions related to the intellectual, creative and productive capabilities of human beings in information communication and related processes, especially human perceptual and cognitive processes, human behaviour and the interaction between people and communications technology. The reports themselves, published or unpublished, reflect collective human behaviour and not personal information about an individual. Personal information may be obtained in the process of preparing a report, to establish the identity and credibility of the source. This information is not used for administrative purposes and is not arranged by or retrievable by personal identifiers. This form of personal information is normally retrievable only if specifics are provided concerning the report involved. The retention of information depends on the length of time it is needed for related research. It is active for the fiscal years in which the project is active; otherwise, it is active for the current fiscal year; thereafter it is inactive but retrievable for the next two years, after which it is transferred to the National Archives of Canada.

International Development Research Centre
Chapter 56

General Information

Background
The International Development Research Centre (IDRC) was established as a public corporation by the International Development Research Centre Act of 1970.

Responsibilities
The IDRC initiates, encourages, supports and conducts research into the problems of the developing regions of the world and into the means of applying and adapting scientific, technical and other knowledge to the economic and social advancement of those regions. The Centre's activities are concentrated in five sectors: environment and natural resources; health sciences; information sciences and systems; social sciences; and corporate affairs and initiatives. The IDRC is financed solely by the Parliament of Canada; its policies, however, are set by an international Board of Governors.

Legislation
- International Development Research Centre Act, 1970
- General Bylaw of the IDRC

Organization
The IDRC's headquarters are in Ottawa where it has an international staff. Regional offices in Asia (Singapore and New Delhi), East Africa (Nairobi), West Africa (Dakar), South Africa (Johannesburg), Latin America and the Caribbean (Montevideo) and the Middle East (Cairo) link Ottawa with the researchers and policy makers of the developing countries, encourage and assist the development of research proposals, and monitor ongoing projects within their regions.

The IDRC's 21-member Board of Governors is appointed by the Canadian government. Under the International Development Research Centre Act, the chairman, vice-chairman and nine other governors must be Canadian citizens; the other ten are non-Canadians.

The president of the Centre holds the rank of deputy minister and is responsible to Parliament through the Minister designated for that purpose by the Governor in Council (currently the Secretary of State for External Affairs). A management committee composed of officers appointed by the Board of Governors assists the president in the Centre's operations.

The Centre's research activities are carried out by five program divisions.

■ Environment and Natural Resources (ENR)
This division supports technical and policy research into the sustainable utilization of natural resources in the broadest sense. This encompasses strategic, applied, and adaptive research on the transformation and marketing of natural resource products, green technologies, and food production systems, as environmental research with a particular emphasis on the promotion of integrated, participatory approaches to research in these fields.

■ Information Sciences and Systems (ISS)
This division aims, through research and the design and establishment of appropriate information-communication systems, to improve the flow and use of scientific, technical, and other information. Promotion of the use of modern information tools and methods, as well as the continued development of the MINISIS database management software, are also part of the program.

■ Health Sciences Division (HS)
This division promotes integrated approach to health research and focuses on people. The emphasis is on identifying health risks in the living and working environment; on understanding the effects of local knowledge, circumstances, and behaviour on health; and on enhancing the effectiveness, efficiency, and sustainability of health systems and services.

■ Social Sciences Division (SS)
This division is organized to support two lines of research: economic and technology policy research including areas such as macroeconomic adjustment and trade and economic integration; and applied social policy research focusing on the conditions, planning, implementation, management, and outcomes of social policy processes in relation to strategies for human development.

■ Corporate Affairs and Initiatives (CAID)
This division supports research on cross-cutting development issues such as gender and development, evaluation and the management of effective innovation and research systems. It also provides non-administrative program services of Centre-wide application, such as public information, scientific and development research information, administration of awards, and initiatives to involve Canadian institutions, individuals, and communities in the Centre's work.

Labour Canada
Chapter 57

General Information

Background

The Department of Labour (Labour Canada) was established in 1900 under the Conciliation Act. It now operates under the Department of Labour Act. Labour Canada will be merged with Human Resources Development.

Responsibilities

The Minister of Labour is responsible for the administration of the Canada Labour Code, the Fair Wages and Hours of Labour Act, the Penitentiary Inmate Accident Compensation Regulations, the Government Employee Compensation Act, the Merchant Seamen Compensation Act and the Labour Adjustment Benefits Act. The Department collects and publishes information on labour conditions and conducts enquiries into important industrial questions.

- Fair Wages and Hours of Labour Act, R.S.C. 1985, c. L-4
- Government Employee Compensation Act, R.S.C. 1985, c. G-5
- Hazardous Products Act and Regulations for WHMIS
- Labour Adjustment Benefits Act, R.S.C. 1985, c. L-1
- Merchant Seamen Compensation Act, R.S.C. 1985, c. M-4 as amended
- Non Smoker's Health Act, R.S.C. 1985, c. N-23.6
- Penitentiary Inmates Accident Compensation Regulations

Organization

■ Corporate Management Services

Corporate Management Services consists of Financial and Administrative Services, Corporate Planning Resourcing and Reporting, Safety and Security Services, and Information Management Branch. It is responsible for the implementation of corporate systems and policies in the general area of administration, finance, safety and security and information.

■ Communications Directorate

The Communications Directorate informs workers, employers and the general public on a wide range of labour-related matters, including the Department's objectives, programs and services. It advises the departmental management on all aspects of communications and co-ordinates communications activities including strategic and operational planning. It is also responsible for media relations, audio-visual services, editorial and creative writing services, and publishing, advertising and development of promotional/special events plans.

■ Human Resources

The Human Resources Branch is responsible for the Department's personnel relations: human resources, classification, pay, staff relations and employee services. In addition, it looks after the Department's official languages plan, language training and employment equity.

■ Merchant Seamen Compensation Board

The Merchant Seamen Compensation Board administers the Merchant Seamen Compensation Act, which provides workers' compensation coverage for seamen who are employed on vessels registered in Canada and who are not covered by a provincial workers' compensation act.

■ Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service

The Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service consists of the Legislative Development and Operational Research Branch, the Legislative and Special Projects Branch, the Arbitration Services Branch, and the Mediation and Conciliation Branch. It is responsible for the administration of the dispute resolution provisions of the Canada Labour Code.

Legislative Development and Operational Research Branch:

Analyses labour board and court decisions to ensure the maintenance of an appropriate framework for labour-management relations. Legislative developments in provincial jurisdiction are also monitored. The Branch provides advice on the labour implications of various government initiatives and policies.

The Branch also carries out specialized research activities and projects pertinent to the resolution of labour-management disputes. It provides operational research support to conciliation officers and mediators in the field and at headquarters. In addition, it analyses developments and trends in industrial relations in Canada, the United States and other countries.

Arbitration Services Branch:

Responsible for effecting the ministerial appointment of grievance arbitrators under collective labour agreements, of adjudicators to hear complaints of alleged unjust dismissal made by non-unionized employees and the appointment of referees with respect to wage recovery appeals. The Branch also maintains an inventory of all arbitration/adjudication decisions. These decisions are analyzed, indexed and summarized in scope note format in the monthly publication, Arbitration Services Reporter.

Mediation and Conciliation Branch:

Provides neutral third-party assistance to labour and management to resolve disputes arising during the negotiation of collective agreements by appointing conciliation officers, conciliation commissioners or boards and mediators under Part I of the Canada Labour Code. It also helps improve labour relations between specific parties through the practice of preventive mediation during the term of a collective agreement, and the general labour relations climate through the appointment of Industrial Inquiry Commissions.

■ Policy Program

Consists of the Women's Bureau, the International Relations Branch, the Federal-Provincial Relations Branch, the Policy and Strategic Analysis Branch, the Older Worker Adjustment Branch, the Bureau of Labour Information and the Labour Outreach Branch. It is responsible for the management of programs that offer funding or services to groups and individuals, for advising officials on labour policy and for publishing data and discussion papers on policy options. It also co-ordinates the Department of Labour's relations with provincial governments, international organizations and the Canadian private sector.

Women's Bureau:

Established in 1954, the mission of the Women's Bureau is to advance the full and equal participation of women in employment by working with key partners to effect changes in workplace policies and practices. The Bureau regularly consults and collaborates with unions, employers, women's groups and other federal departments, provincial and territorial governments, and international bodies and agencies. The Bureau administers the Marion V. Royce Memorial Grants Program and the Workplace Equality Fund which encourages labour-management cooperation on projects that promote equity in the workplace. Current initiatives of the Bureau focus on work and family responsibilities, occupational segregation and non-traditional occupations, women's occupational health and safety, sexual harassment, and older women workers.

International Affairs:

Manages Canada's participation in the International Labour Organization (ILO), coordinates Labour Canada's involvement in other international labour activities and monitors international labour affairs trends and developments. As well, the Office promotes and coordinates visits to Canada of high-level delegations from other countries interested in learning more about various aspects of Canadian labour laws and practices.

Federal-Provincial Relations Branch:

The Federal-Provincial Relations Branch oversees the management of a co-operative working relationship between the federal government and provincial/territorial governments. The Branch provides analysis of labour laws and regulations existing at the federal and provincial/territorial levels (and in other countries as required) and supports the development of federal labour-related legislation and economic and social policies. The Branch also maintains an information base on labour law covering federal, provincial and territorial jurisdictions. As well, it provides secretariat services to the Canadian Association of Administrators of Labour Legislation (CAALL) and manages the initiative on the harmonization of occupational safety and health legislation/regulations in co-operation with provincial/territorial governments and employer and labour groups.

Federal-Provincial Relations prepares publications that summarize labour legislation and regulations throughout Canada, which it markets on a cost-recovery basis. These reports contain information on industrial relations, occupational safety and health and employment standards. Publications include Labour Law Update, a review of new legislation in Canada published six times a year, and Employment Standards Legislation in Canada and Industrial Relations Legislation in Canada, reference works published every two years.

Policy and Strategic Analysis Branch:

Studies major economic and social issues and ensures that labour concerns are fully integrated into the government's policy-making process. Among other responsibilities, Policy and Strategic Analysis provides information and analysis from a labour perspective on issues that are likely to be discussed at Cabinet meetings.

Older Worker Adjustment Branch:

Responsible for the policy, planning, management and monitoring of the Department's labour adjustment programs: the Labour Adjustment Benefits Program, the Program for Older Worker Adjustment, the Plant Workers' Adjustment Program (co-administered with Fisheries and Oceans Canada), and the Income Supplement Program for Older Workers. The Branch also contributes to the overall policy, planning and program development work of the federal government in the area of labour and industrial adjustment.

Bureau of Labour Information:

Collects, analyses, publishes and disseminates information relating to industrial relations and labour. Particular consideration is placed on information pertaining to major collective bargaining settlements, including developments in negotiated wage increases and the incidence of various provisions in collective agreements. Information on work stoppages due to strikes and lock-outs, labour organizations and union constitutions is also available. As well, the Bureau maintains a computerized database containing information on major agreements and an extensive library of collective agreements from all jurisdictions in Canada. The Bureau provides direct service to clients seeking information on the above matters. The Bureau also retains copies of non-confidential labour union returns received under the Corporations and Labour Unions Returns Act (CALURA). These are available for public viewing.

Labour Outreach Branch:

Labour Outreach Branch is responsible for managing three contributions programs: The Labour-Management Partnerships Program (LMPP), the Workers with Disabilities Fund (WDF) and the Labour Education Program. The LMPP is designed to encourage labour-management cooperation and to promote productive, innovative and fair workplaces. The program provides financial assistance and technical advice for projects that promote the adoption and diffusion of workplace innovations and cooperative labour-management practices throughout the economy, as well as providing financial assistance for temporary work assignments of senior officials, between unions, the federal government, and labour-management organizations. The WDF promotes collaboration between labour/labour-management bodies and organizations representing people with disabilities. The fund provides financial assistance for joint projects and staff assignments that focus on the workplace concerns of people with disabilities. The Labour Education Program is designed to encourage labour organizations to provide the training necessary for their members to deal with the increasingly complex problems of modern industrial relations.

■ Operations Program

The Operations Program consists of the Labour Standards and Equal Pay Branch, the Occupational Safety and Health Branch, the Fire Prevention Branch, the Program Services and Systems Branch, and the Regional Operations. The Program is responsible for implementing policies and delivering services designed to foster the economic and social well-being of working Canadians, for administering the labour standards and occupational safety and health provisions of the Canada Labour Code and other legislation under the Department's labour jurisdiction, and minimizing fire risks to life and property. Its work is conducted at departmental headquarters in the National Capital Region and across Canada through the Department's 6 regional and 23 field offices.

Labour Standards and Equal Pay Branch:

Concerned with improving working conditions in the federally regulated private sector through the interpretation, application and periodic review of Part III (Labour Standards) of the Canada Labour Code. As well, the Branch promotes, educates and provides technical advice and guidance to employers and unions, and makes inspections for the implementation of equal pay for work of equal value.

Occupational Safety and Health Branch:

Develops policies and programs to promote safe and healthy working conditions through the application of Part II of the Canada Labour Code (Occupational Safety and Health). It also provides industrial safety and hygiene engineering and laboratory services and is responsible for policy development and claims adjudication in the area of compensation for work-related injury for federal employees and penitentiary inmates.

Fire Prevention Branch and the Fire Commissioner of Canada:

Provide policies and programs to promote fire prevention. The unit also provides fire protection services to the Treasury Board, as the employer such as building plan reviews, standards development, fire inspections and investigations.

Regional Operations:

Responsible, through its 6 regional and 23 field offices, for delivering the Department's programs that cover occupational safety and health, conditions of work, fire protection services, education and injury compensation. They also serve as focal points for information about other Department activities.

Laurentian Pilotage Authority Canada

Chapter 58

General Information

Background

As a result of recommendations made by a Royal Commission on Pilotage in Canada, the Pilotage Act was assented to by Her Majesty and the Governor-in-Council and proclaimed in force February 1, 1972.

The Pilotage Act created four pilotage regions with specific authorities, thereby replacing a large number of local pilotage districts. The four Pilotage Authorities – Atlantic, Laurentian, Great Lakes and Pacific – are Crown corporations, responsible to Parliament through the Minister of Transport.

The Laurentian Pilotage Authority, a Crown corporation, was established on June 30, 1971, and became effective as of February 1, 1972, governed by the Pilotage Act and Regulations. For the purpose of the Financial Administration Act, the Authority is a corporation specified in Schedule III, Part I of that Act.

Responsibilities

The objects of the Authority are to establish, operate, maintain and administer, in the interest of safety, an efficient pilotage service within the region.

The Chairman is the Authority's chief executive officer. The board is composed of a maximum of seven members, appointed by the Governor in Council. The head office is located in Montreal.

Legislation

- Pilotage Act and Regulations, RSC, 1985, c. P-14

Organization

■ Board of Directors

The Authority's board of directors is appointed by the Governor in Council, to a maximum of seven members. The chairman is the chief executive officer.

■ Administration Branch

This Branch attends board meetings, keeps minutes and takes care of files and records.

■ Operations Branch

This Branch provides pilotage services by assignment, and dispatches qualified pilots to ships navigating within the Authority's region.

Information in this bank includes Orders-in-council appointing them to the board, correspondence and travel expense claims. Class of Individuals: Members of the public, pilots and representatives of the shipping industry. Retention and Disposal Standards: Files are retained for five years and are then transferred to the National Archives of Canada. Bank Number: LPA PPU 027

Register of Pilots
The purpose of this bank is to retain a register of certificates and qualifications required under the Pilotage Act. This bank contains information on physical characteristics, licences, certificates and accidents. The retention period for this bank is indefinite during the active period of the holder up until retirement; it is then retained for a period of seven (7) years. Access to this bank will require name and address. Bank Number: LPA PPU 030

Classes of Personal Information

In the course of conducting the programs and activities of the Authority, categories of personal information may be accumulated which are not contained in the specific personal information banks previously described in this entry. Such personal information includes identification cards, staffing, training, grievances, official languages, disciplinary measures, occupational safety and health, parking and travelling expenses. This information is store as part of the general subject files, the records of which are not normally retrievable by name of individual or other personal identifier. Specifics must be provided concerning the subject matter, related program activity, as well as the date on which the information was received by the Authority and to whom it was addressed.

The personal information in these subject files is retained for the same period of time as the related subject information and is disposed of according to the appropriate subject records schedules.

Medical Research Council of Canada

Chapter 59

General Information

Background

The Medical Research Council of Canada is a corporation established by the Medical Research Council Act. Its objective as stated in the Act is to help attain the quality and scale of research in the health sciences essential to the maintenance and improvement of health services. To this end the Council has established a number of types of grants (to support research), awards (to support individuals) and special programs for which individuals may make applications for consideration in peer-reviewed competitions. The personal information in the banks in this chapter consists mainly of assessments of applications obtained by the Council in the peer review process. For grants and special programs, access to this personal information is automatic, that is, copies of all review reports are sent to the applicant along with notification of the Council's decision. For awards, access is available on request, either informally, by letter, or by submission of the Privacy Access Request Form to the Privacy Coordinator.

Responsibilities

According to the Medical Research Council Act, the Council's mandate is to promote and support health sciences research in Canada by funding research carried out primarily in faculties of medicine, dentistry, and pharmacy, as well as in affiliated institutions and hospitals. The Medical Research Council is accountable to Parliament through the Minister of National Health and Welfare.

Legislation

- Medical Research Council Act, R.S.C., c. M-9 amended 1976-77, c. 24, 34
- Queen Elizabeth II Canadian Research Fund Act, R.S.C. 1970, c. Q-1

Organization

The Council comprises a full-time president, who is also the chief executive officer, and 21 members, representative of the scientific and lay communities, who serve without remuneration and are appointed by the Governor in Council. Council meetings are held three times a year to discuss policy issues and to review and approve all program funding.

■ Executive Committee

The Executive Committee comprises seven Council members including the president and the vice-president. It carries out executive powers and functions under delegation from Council. There are usually five meetings each year. The Council also has standing committees to assist in formulating policies and procedures for priorities and planning, research and personnel funding, public affairs, and ethics in experimentation. Recommendations on grants and awards to be funded are made following an extensive examination of applications through a process of peer review. This peer review process consists of 24 grant and 12 award committees with a total membership of over 340 working scientists drawn chiefly from universities.

■ Secretariat

The Secretariat of the Council consists of 64 employees located in Ottawa. It is under the direction of the president and is divided into six responsibility areas:

Office of the President:

Includes the Secretary to Council.

Programs Branch:

Responsible for the delivery of programs approved by the Council.

University-industry Programs:

Responsible for the delivery of university-industry programs approved by the Council.

Corporate Management:

Responsible for the provision of central services such as financial, personnel, administrative and computer services.

Scientific Evaluation:

Responsible for administrating the peer review process including site visits and ensuring the process is reflective of the policies and objectives of Council.

Communications Branch:

Responsible for all aspects of public information including strategy development, public and media relations and a publications program for the Council.

Information Holdings

Program Records

Aids Program

Description: Medical research council identifies AIDS Program as an area of priority and, therefore, accepts applications at any time. Topics: Individual's application; committee decision; administration of the grant; general correspondence. Access: Information arranged by name of applicant. Storage Medium: Computerized data base and paper case files. Program Record Number: MRC MRC 245

Career Investigators
Description: Originally called the Associateship Program, the Career Investigators program was established in 1956 as a means of providing funds for salaries of a limited number of individuals of outstanding ability and training who made research a full-time career. No new appointments are being made by the Council. Career Investigators appointed in 1975 and earlier will continue in their appointment, subject to the terms and conditions under which they accepted the award. Topics: Individual's career investigator application; committee decision; administration of the award; general correspondence. Access: Information arranged by name of applicant. Storage Medium: Computerized database and paper case files. Program Record Number: MRC MRC 055

Centennial Fellowships
Description: Fellowships designed for outstanding young persons of distinguished academic standing who hold an M.D., D.D.S., D.V.M., Pharm. D., or Ph.D. degree and who wish to broaden their fields of interest and thus equip themselves for independent work in clinical investigation and interdisciplinary research in the health sciences. Awards are made for one to three years; no more than ten new awards are made in any year. Topics: Individual's application; committee decision; administration of the award; general correspondence. Access: Information arranged by name of applicant. Storage Medium: Computerized database and paper case files. Program Record Number: MRC MRC 070

Clinical Trials
Description: Council will consider the funding of clinical trials which assess, in a rigorous manner the efficacy of diagnostic and therapeutic procedures, as well as workshops or meetings of the prospective participants. Council will not provide support for the sole purpose of satisfying regulatory requirements. Topics: Applications; reviews by external referees; committee assessment; notification and administration of grants; general correspondence. Access: Information arranged by name of applicant. Storage Medium: Computerized database and paper case files. Program Record Number: MRC MRC 160

Clinician-Scientist
Description: The Clinician-Scientist Award is offered to highly qualified and motivated clinicians who have been identified by a Canadian medical school as having strong potential to become clinician-scientists. At the time of application, candidates will have recently completed their specialty clinical training (or will shortly do so). They should be undertaking, or intend to undertake, research training to be followed by a career as a clinician-scientist. Topics: Applications; committee assessment; notification and administration of the award; general correspondence. Access: Information arranged by name of applicant. Storage Medium: Computerized database and paper case files. Program Record Number: MRC MRC 165

Dental Clinician-Scientists Program
Description: Dental Clinician-Scientist Program is designed to assist the establishment of clinician-scientist as independent practitioner/researchers with a faculty appointment in a canadian dental school. Topics: Individual's application; committee decision; administration of the award; general correspondence. Access: Information arranged by name of applicant. Storage Medium: Computerized data base and paper case files. Program Record Number: MRC MRC 250

Dental Fellowships
Description: This program is intended to provide training for Dental Fellows in order to increase the number of dental clinician-teachers well versed in research methods and capable of independent research work. The research training may lead to a PhD degree, although this is not a prerequisite. Nevertheless, the program should be of similar duration and rigour. Topics: Applications; reviews by external referees; committee assessment; notification and administration of awards; general correspondence. Access: Information arranged by name of applicant. Storage Medium: Computerized database and paper case files. Program Record Number: MRC MRC 150

Development Grants
Description: Grants designed primarily to assist in recruiting or establishing new faculty members who have the potential for major accomplishments in research. They are intended to provide an impetus for research in those schools of medicine, dentistry, and pharmacy where a more vigorous research program is considered by Council to be necessary to support professional education and health care. Topics: Applications of the principal investigator and colleagues; executive and Council decision; administration of grants; general correspondence. Access: Information arranged by name of applicant. Storage Medium: Computerized database and paper case files. Program Record Number: MRC MRC 050

Equipment Grants
Description: Applications for Equipment Grants will be considered in relation to the proposed science of the project for which the equipment is required. Where equipment is required for a project for which an application is being submitted for an operating grant, the equipment should be included in it. A separate equipment application is required only in a year where an application for operating funds has not been made. Topics: Applications; reviews by external referees; committee assessment; notification and administration of grants; general correspondence. Access: Information arranged by name of applicant. Storage Medium: Computerized database and paper case files. Program Record Number: MRC MRC 020

Farquharson Research Scholarships
Description: Scholarships made available to undergraduates in medicine, dentistry, and pharmacy who wish to gain research experience in a health science department during the summer months. Funds are provided to the dean of each faculty of medicine, dentistry, and pharmacy in accordance with a formula based on undergraduate enrolment. Recipients of the awards are selected locally. Topics: Deans' reports; general correspondence. Access: Information arranged by name of applicant. Storage Medium: Computerized database and paper case files. Program Record Number: MRC MRC 085

Fellowships

Description: Fellowships offered in competition to highly-qualified candidates with an M.D., D.D.S., D.V.M., Pharm. D., or Ph.D. degree who wish to take full-time research training in the health sciences. Awards are tenable for a specific term to a maximum of three years and may be renewed under certain conditions. Topics: Individual's application; committee decision; administration of the award; general correspondence. Access: Information arranged by name of applicant. Storage Medium: Computerized database and paper case files. Program Record Number: MRC MRC 075

Fields of Research

Description: Information on areas peripheral to medical research for which the Council has some responsibility. Topics: Research in the fields of dentistry; schools of pharmacy; psychology; occupational health and safety; gerontology; surgery and veterinary medicine; space research; mental research; general correspondence. Access: File arranged by subject. Storage Medium: Computerized database and paper case files. Program Record Number: MRC MRC 115

Fund for Research in the Fields of Dyskinesia and Torticollis

Description: The Medical Research Council has responsibility for administering a fund for research in the fields of dyskinesia and torticollis. The fund was established by an anonymous donor and the income derived from it is to be used for the support of research, either basic or clinical or both, in the broad field of movement disorders known as dyskinesia and more particularly for research in the movement disorder known as torticollis. Topics: Individual's application; committee decision; administration of the grant; general correspondence. Access: Information arranged by name of applicant. Storage Medium: Computerized database and paper case files. Program Record Number: MRC MRC 111

General Research Grants

Description: Grants made each year to the dean of each school of medicine, dentistry, and pharmacy, to be used for the support of research at the discretion of the dean, except for the stipulation that they not be used for the payment or supplementation of salaries of academic personnel, construction costs or overhead expenses. Topics: Notification of the grant to the dean; financial statement; general correspondence. Access: Information arranged by university. Storage Medium: Computerized database and paper case files. Program Record Number: MRC MRC 045

International Scientific Exchange

Description: Council participates in a number of exchange programs each with a separate agreement, which are intended to foster collaboration between scientists in Canada and those in Argentina, Brazil, East European Exchange Program, the People's Republic of China, France and Italy. Topics: Applications; reviews by external referees; committee assessment; notification and administration of grants; general correspondence. Access: Information arranged by name of applicant. Storage Medium: Computerized database and paper case files. Program Record Number: MRC MRC 185

Maintenance Grants

Description: The costs of maintaining instruments that are not shared facilities should be included as part of an application for operating funds. Council will consider applications for the maintenance of equipment used by a single investigator in a year when an application for operating funds is not being submitted. Topics: Applications; reviews by external referees; committee assessment; notification and administration of grants; general correspondence. Access: Information arranged by name of applicant. Storage Medium: Computerized database and paper case files. Program Record Number: MRC MRC 025

Maintenance Grants for Multi-User Equipment

Description: Council will consider applications for Maintenance Grants to cover the costs of maintaining facilities which are shared by groups of researchers within a department, faculty, university or region. The number of investigators is unlimited and it must be clear that multiple research programs will benefit from the maintenance requested. Facilities such as electron microscopes, analytical ultracentrifuges and gas-liquid chromatography/mass spectrometer systems that are operated under the general supervision of the applicant (but not necessarily requiring the active collaboration of the applicant in the various projects for which the facility is to be used), are appropriate for Maintenance Grants for Multi-User Equipment. Topics: Applications; reviews by external referees; committee assessment; notification and administration of grant; general correspondence. Access: Information arranged by name of applicant. Storage Medium: Computerized database and paper case files. Program Record Number: MRC MRC 175

Medical Research Council Groups

Description: Medical Research Council groups provide full support for teams of accomplished investigators who wish to develop collaborative programs in what appear to be especially productive areas. The members of a group are expected to devote their entire research effort to the program of the group and to be freed of the ordinary responsibilities of a faculty member. Topics: Application of group director and colleagues; executive and Council decisions; administration of the group; general correspondence. Access: Information arranged by name of applicant. Storage Medium: Computerized database and paper case files. Program Record Number: MRC MRC 030

Medical Research Council Scientists
Description: This program provides salary support for independent investigators of outstanding ability who have shown promise of becoming leaders in their respective fields. Topics: Individual's application; committee decision; administration of the award; general correspondence. Access: Information arranged by name of applicant. Storage Medium: Computerized database and paper case files. Program Record Number: MRC MRC 060

Multi-User Equipment Grants
Description: The Council will consider applications for multi-user equipment grants to augment the research capabilities for a large number of funded investigators within an institution or region. The number of investigators is unlimited and it must be clear that multiple research programs will benefit from the equipment requested. Examples are electron microscope facilities, imaging, spectroscopy, DNA/protein sequence-synthesis capabilities. Topics: Applications; reviews by external referees; committee assessment; notification and administration of grants; general correspondence. Access: Information arranged by name of applicant. Storage Medium: Computerized database and paper case files. Program Record Number: MRC MRC 180

NHRDP-MRC Joint Program for Development of Research in Nursing
Description: As part of its National Health Research and Development Program (NHRDP), the Department of National Health and Welfare, in conjunction with the Medical Research Council of Canada, offers a program designed to develop research in schools of nursing. Topics: Notification of the grant to the dean; financial statement; general correspondence. Access: Information arranged by university. Storage Medium: Computer database and paper case files. Program Record Number: MRC MRC 170

Operating Grants
Description: Information about operating grants to provide support for new or continuing research activities by individuals or small groups of investigators working in collaboration. Topics: Applications; reviews by external referees; committee assessment; notification and administration of grants; general correspondence. Access: Information arranged by name of applicant. Storage Medium: Computerized database and paper case files. Program Record Number: MRC MRC 010

Partnerships
Description: Information related to MRC's Partnership Research Program which aim to increase the number of grants, awards for training and other forms of salary support. Topics: University-Industry Programs, Joint Programs with private, Government or non-profit Organizations. Access: Information arranged by name of applicant. Storage Medium: Computerized database and paper case files. Program Record Number: MRC MRC 240

Program Grants
Description: Information about program grants to facilitate the further growth of team research in Canada. Topics: Applications; reviews by external referees; committee assessment; notification and administration of grants; general correspondence. Access: Information arranged by name of applicant. Storage Medium: Computerized database and paper case files. Program Record Number: MRC MRC 015

Queen Elizabeth II Canadian Research Fund/Medical Research Council Scientists
Description: the Queen Elizabeth Canadian fund to aid in Research on the diseases of children/Medical Research Council Scientist Program is intended to provide a contribution to the salary of an investigator wishing to pursue research in the disease of children. Topics: Individual's application: committee decision; administration of the award; general correspondence. Access: Information arranged by name of applicant. Storage Medium: Computerized data base and paper case files. Program Record Number: MRC MRC 255

Queen Elizabeth II Visiting Professorships
Description: These awards are designed to enable Canadian departments of paediatrics to invite scientists of international calibre to help strengthen the departments' scientific and research efforts in childhood diseases. Each visiting scientist will be known as the "Elizabeth II Visiting Professor". The recipient will be expected to spend from three to five days in the host department. Topics: Applications; committee assessment; notification and administration of the award; general correspondence. Access: Information arranged by name of applicant. Storage Medium: Computerized database and paper case files. Program Record Number: MRC MRC 145

Research Survey
Description: Information on surveys established by the Council to gather general statistical data on selected aspects of the research community for use by the Council in determining the research requirements of the health science community across Canada. Topics: Graduate students; medical research support; research personnel; research trainees; research costs; health science research funding; academic degrees; fellowships and scholarships from other agencies; tropical and infectious diseases. Access: File arranged by subject. Storage Medium: Computerized database and paper case files. Program Record Number: MRC MRC 120

Scholarships
Description: Scholarships provide salary support, for a period not exceeding five years, to a limited number of young health science investigators who show particular promise as independent researchers. Topics: Individual's application; committee decision; administration of the award; general correspondence. Access: Information arranged by name of applicant. Storage Medium: Computerized database and paper case files. Program Record Number: MRC MRC 065

Special Projects
Description: Council will consider projects in those subject areas which do not fall within the terms of reference of the Operating Grants Program. A preliminary proposal, in the form of a letter, should be made, providing the title of the project, a clear description of its objectives, the name(s) of the applicant(s), the amount requested and the anticipated duration of support required. Topics: Applications; reviews by external referees; committee assessment; notification and administration of grants; general correspondence. Access: Information arranged by name of applicant. Storage Medium: Computerized database and paper case files. Program Record Number: MRC MRC 195

Studentships
Description: Studentships provided in competition to highly-qualified graduates with a B.Sc. degree who are undertaking full-time training in research leading to an M.Sc. or Ph.D. degree under the supervision of members of departments of schools of medicine, dentistry, or pharmacy, and under certain circumstances, schools of nursing or physical education. Awards are tenable for a specific term to a maximum of three years and may be renewed. Topics: Individual's application; committee decision; administration of the award; general correspondence. Access: Information arranged by name of applicant. Storage Medium: Computerized database and paper case files. Program Record Number: MRC MRC 080

Support for Workshops and Symposia
Description: As part of its program for research in the health sciences, the Council is prepared to support a limited number of applications for the support of workshops and certain types of symposia held in Canada. Topics: Individual's application; committee decision; administration of the grant; general correspondence. Access: Information arranged by name of applicant. Storage Medium: Computerized database and paper case files. Program Record Number: MRC MRC 112

Travel Grants
Description: Limited funds for travel grants are available to Canadian health scientists who wish to spend short periods of time (maximum length of stay is 30 days) in a specific laboratory for the purpose of furthering their research. Topics: Applications in form of a letter; committee decision; administration of the grant; general correspondence. Access: Information arranged by name of applicant. Storage Medium: Computerized database and paper case files. Program Record Number: MRC MRC 113

U.S. National Institute of Health International Research Fellowships
Description: Initial screening of Canadian candidates for International Research Fellowships offered by the U.S. National Institute of Health, for which the Council is responsible. Topics: Individual's application form; general correspondence. Access: Information arranged by name of applicant. Storage Medium: Computerized database and paper case files. Program Record Number: MRC MRC 110

Visiting Professors
Description: Visiting professorships intended to encourage collaboration and exchange of information among scientists in Canadian universities. Awards are made to the universities on a formula basis, following submission of proposals by the deans of health science faculties. Topics: Individual's application; committee decision; administration of the award; general correspondence. Access: Information arranged by name of applicant. Storage Medium: Computerized database and paper case files. Program Record Number: MRC MRC 105

Visiting Scientists Awards
Description: Awards made in limited numbers each year to enable investigators to spend three to 12 months in laboratories other than their own. Proposals may be submitted by the deans of Canadian health science faculties on behalf of foreign scientists, or by Canadian investigators who wish to spend some time in another university in Canada or abroad in order to advance their research. Topics: Individual's application; committee decision; administration of the award; general correspondence. Access: Information arranged by name of applicant. Storage Medium: Computerized database and paper case files. Program Record Number: MRC MRC 100

Personal Information Banks

Access Request Data Bank
Description: This bank contains access requests submitted to the Council under the Access to Information Act and the Privacy Act. It also contains replies to such requests and information related to their processing. Class of Individuals: Applicants under the Access to Information Act and the Privacy Act. Purpose: This information is used for the administration of the above Acts. It is used for processing access requests only, and to report on the number of access requests received annually. Retention and Disposal Standards: Files are maintained for two years following the last administrative action. PAC Number: 78-001 TBS Registration: 001610 Bank Number: MRC PPU 035

Applicants' History Sheets and Notification of Award
This bank contains Applicants' History Sheets for individuals, which are kept in the Programs Branch. These sheets, which are cumulative over the life of the program, are identified by the applicant's name and file number. They also contain information such as the title of the grant application, amount requested and funded or rejected. The Finance Section also keeps copies of notifications of awards, which contain the applicant's name, address, university, grant number and amount awarded. This information relates to investigators holding an academic appointment in a Canadian Health Science Faculty, and Research Trainees. This information is used to maintain a history of the Council's financial support to individuals. Consistent uses are to provide historical data which assist the peer review process. Bank Number: MRC PPU 045

Application for Employment File
Description: The purpose of this bank is to maintain a record of information relating to applications for employment received from the general public. This bank contains completed application forms, letters and curricula vitae of persons interested in working for the Council. Access to this bank will require name, address and date of birth. Class of Individuals: General public. Purpose: It is used to select candidates for the Medical Research Council of Canada when vacancies arise. Retention and Disposal Standards: Records are retained for two years and then destroyed. PAC Number: 79-006 TBS Registration: 000669 Bank Number: MRC PPU 030

Awards Applicants and Committee Records
Description: This bank contains records of individual applications for funding under one of several personnel support programs sponsored by the Council. It contains applications, third-party appraisals, committee assessments, training, travel and financial administration details on the support of successful applicants. Individuals identified are those applicants meeting the criteria for each program as amended from time to time and published in the Medical Research Council Grants and Awards Guide. Class of Individuals: Research trainees with BSC, MD, DDS, DVM, MSC, PhD, and D. Pharmacy professors holding an appointment in university or affiliated institutions. Purpose: Information in this data bank is used to assess the education and other requirements necessary to meet the criteria of the applicable program, and to evaluate the merits of the application for funding. Consistent Uses: Information in the bank provides the basis for planning and budgeting of health sciences research activities by the Council, and is useful in the monitoring of the peer review system. Information is shared with the Natural Sciences and Engineering Research Council (SER PPU 015) and the Social Sciences and Humanities Research Council (SHR PPU 010). The social insurance number is required from the recipients of certain awards to comply with the Income Tax Act. Retention and Disposal Standards: Files in this bank are retained for eight years: active two years after termination or rejection of award and dormant six years. They are then transferred to the National Archives of Canada for selective retention. PAC Number: 79-006 Related to PR#: MRC MRC 055, 060, 065, 070, 075, 080, 085, 100, 105, 110, 145, 150, 155, 165, 245, 250 TBS Registration: 000526 Bank Number: MRC PPU 010

Grants Applicants Council of Canada
Description: The purpose of this bank is to maintain a record of the applications and assessment records of health scientists applying for funding of research projects by the Council. It contains the relevant Medical Research Council application form and supporting data presented by the applicant, referee and committee assessments of the project, the ranking awarded, the decision of Council, and if successful, the financial and administrative data pertaining to its support. Individuals identified are those making project proposals to Council. Class of Individuals: Investigators holding an academic appointment in a Canadian School of medicine, dentistry, veterinary medicine, nursing, optometry, or pharmacy. Purpose: Information in the bank is evaluated to assess the relative merit of the proposal for the purpose of funding or not funding the project. Consistent Uses: Information in the bank provides the basis for planning and budgeting of health sciences research activities by the Council, and is useful in the monitoring of the peer review system. Information is shared with the Natural Sciences and Engineering Research Council (SER PPU 004) and the Social Sciences and Humanities Research Council (SHR PPU 015, 020). Retention and Disposal Standards: Files in this bank are retained for eight years: active two years after termination or rejection of grant and dormant six years. They are then transferred to the National Archives of Canada for selective retention. PAC Number: 79-006 Related to PR#: MRC MRC 010, 015, 020, 025, 030, 045, 160, 240 TBS Registration: 000525 Bank Number: MRC PPU 005

Lists of External Referees

Description: This bank contains names, affiliation and mailing address of individuals, in Canada and abroad, who are asked by the Council to review proposals for grants and awards. The information is used to select external referees for research proposals. Persons requesting access should provide field of research, name and affiliation. Class of Individuals: Members of the health science community in Canada and abroad. Purpose: The information is used to select external referees for research proposals. Retention and Disposal Standards: The information is retained until superseded by updates or withdrawals of individuals. Withdrawn referee names are kept for two years (active) and six years dormant for reference purposes and then transferred to National Archives of Canada for selective retention. PAC Number: 79-006 TBS Registration: 000668 Bank Number: MRC PPU 025

Membership of Council and Committees

Description: This bank contains letters nominating individuals for service on Council and its committees, letters of invitation and thank you letters. The information is used to assist in the selection and appointment of members. The membership of Council and Committees is made public. Persons requesting access should provide name, affiliation, name of committee and date of membership. Class of Individuals: Members of the health science community, federal employees and members of the public. Purpose: The information is used to assist in the selection and appointment of members for the membership of Council and its Committees. Retention and Disposal Standards: Files in this bank are retained for eight years: active two years and dormant six years. They are then transferred to the National Archives of Canada for selective retention. PAC Number: 79-006 TBS Registration: 000528 Bank Number: MRC PPU 020

Partnerships Grants and Awards Application and Assessment Records

This bank contains supporting documentation of proposed projects and of individual applications for funding under one of the several Partnership programs sponsored by the Council. It contains applications, third-party assessments, committee assessments, site visit-reports, and training, travel and financial administration details on the support of successful applicants. Individuals identified are those applicants meeting the criteria for each program, as amended from time to time, and published in the Medical Research Council's Grants and Awards Guide. Class of Individuals: This information relates to investigators holding an academic appointment in a faculty of health science in a Canadian university, or employees of a company (the term "company" is understood to mean an organization, industry or consortium which produces health care products or services). Purpose: This information is used to evaluate the relative merits of the proposals (with the purpose of funding or not funding) and for observing the progress of those proposals that are funded. Consistent Uses: Medical Research Council also uses information n this bank to identify prospective referees and committee members, to evaluate its programs, and to produce statistics and planning information. Some data is shared between the Medical Research Council and participants in this program. Related to PR#: MRC MRC 170, 240 Bank Number: MRC PPU 040

Special Programs Application, Assessment Records and Other Programs

Description: The purpose of this file is to provide supporting documentation of proposed projects for funding by the Council. It contains applications, third-party assessments, and administrative correspondence in the funding of successful projects. Some files identify individuals of the health services scientific community making proposals to Council. Class of Individuals: Investigators holding an academic appointment in a Canadian School of medicine, dentistry, veterinary medicine, nursing, optometry, or pharmacy. Purpose: Information in the bank is used to evaluate the relative merits of the proposals with the purpose of funding or not funding and for observing the progress of those that are funded. Consistent Uses: Information in the bank provides the basis for planning and budgeting of health sciences research activities by the Council, and is useful in the monitoring of the peer review system. Information is shared with the Social Sciences and Humanities Research Council (SHR PPU 025) and Health and Welfare Canada (HWC PPU 105). Retention and Disposal Standards: Files in this bank are retained for eight years: active two years after termination or rejection of special program and dormant six years. They are then transferred to the National Archives of Canada for selective retention. PAC Number: 79-006 Related to PR#: MRC MRC 045, 111, 112, 113, 170 TBS Registration: 000527 Bank Number: MRC PPU 015

Classes of Personal Information

Administration

The general administrative and correspondence files of the Medical Research Council contain a certain amount of personal information not arranged or retrievable by personal identifiers. Such personal information includes suggestions and opinions from the general public which form part of a specific subject file. This form of personal information is normally retrievable only if specifics of name, date of communication and subject are provided. The retention periods for these classes of personal information are controlled by the record schedules of the general subject files in which they are stored.

Reports and Surveys

For purposes of program planning and evaluation, the Council requires a variety of reports concerning aspects of medical research in Canada. The reports themselves, published or unpublished, do not contain personal information about individuals. In the process of preparing such a report, personal information is necessarily obtained. This may include current academic position, professional qualifications of individuals, nature of research being undertaken by individuals and present and past funding of an individual's research. This information is not used for administrative purposes and is not arranged or retrievable by personal identifiers. This form of personal information is normally retrievable only if specifics are provided concerning the study or report involved. The retention periods for these classes of personal information are controlled by the record schedules of the general subject files in which they are stored.

National Archives of Canada
Chapter 60

General Information

Background

The purpose of National Archives of Canada is the systematic preservation of government and private records of Canadian national significance, in order to facilitate not only the effective and efficient operation of the Government of Canada and historical research in all aspects of the Canadian experience, but also the protection of rights and the enhancement of a sense of national identity based on archives as the collective memory of the nation.

Responsibilities

The National Archives of Canada provides three basic services: collecting and preserving public (federal) and private historical records of national importance; preserving or disposing of the current records of government and providing assistance to the archival and records management communities. This broad mandate obliges the National Archives to preserve material both from the private sector and federal government institutions. The program records described in this publication, however, do not include material placed in the National Archives by persons or organizations other than government institutions. Access conditions for collections acquired from the private sector are normally established by negotiation between the donor and the National Archives of Canada.

Legislation

- National Archives of Canada Act, S.C. 1987, c. 1.

Organization

■ Office of the National Archivist

The National Archivist is ultimately responsible for all activities of the National Archives and also participates nationally and internationally in various committees, associations and councils. The Assistant National Archivist is the Access to Information and Privacy Coordinator for the Department, is responsible for Archival Descriptive Standards and Informatics and Records Services.

■ Policy Branch

The Branch is responsible for relations with central policy agencies, other federal cultural institutions, provincial governments and non-government organizations, as well as for international relations. The Branch develops policy proposals related to archives. It also coordinates departmental planning for the National Archives, and provides for the cyclical and independent review and assessment of departmental programs for both the National Archivist and the National Librarian. The Branch consists of the Program Evaluation and Research Division, Policy Analysis and Development, International Activities, Planning and Monitoring, and the Executive Secretariat.

■ Historical Resources Branch

The Historical Resources Branch is responsible for the acquisition and the optimum custody of government and private records having national significance, in order to provide for their orderly care and maintenance, and in order to make them accessible for consultation, research and other services. There are four divisions in the Branch: Cartographic and Audio Visual Archives, Documentary Art and Photography, Government Archives and Manuscript Division.

■ Government Records Branch

The Government Records Branch is responsible for programs and services that facilitate the management of ministerial records and of information holdings controlled by federal government institutions. Information holdings include correspondence, computer data, microforms, and graphic works. The Branch controls the process of record destruction throughout the federal government; provides training courses, technical publications, and advice to federal employees; offers records centre storage facilities to government institutions across the country; and controls the records of former public servants and members of the Armed Forces. There are five divisions in the Branch: Personnel Records Centre Division, Information Management Standards and Practices Division, Office of Professional Development and Communications, Disposition and Evaluation Division and Federal Records Centres Division.

■ Public Programs Branch

The Branch is responsible for the development and promotion of public programs (including publications and exhibitions), the provision of reference and researcher services, coordination of public events and media relations, departmental library services, and for assistance to the archival community. There are four divisions in the Branch: Archival Community Programs Division, Communications Division, Reference and Researcher Services Division and Archival Community Relations.

■ Conservation Branch

The Branch is responsible for the effective conservation of the holdings of the National Archives. The Branch plans and directs the implementation of the departmental conservation program, performs restoration and/or preservation functions for all archival media, provides photographic reproductions, arranges contracts for archival microfilming services, conducts conservation research, and offers advice on optical disc technology. In addition, the Branch provides conservation services upon request to the National Library. There are four divisions in the Branch: Conservation Research Division, Conservation Treatment Division, Moving Image, Data and Audio Conservation Division and Preservation Copying Division. There is also the departmental Conservation Program.

■ Informatics and Records Services Branch

This Branch is responsible for the management and control of information, forms, telecommunications and computer systems for the National Archives. The Branch also provides forms management as well as administrative records management services to the National Library. There are four divisions in the Branch: Records Services Division, Systems Development Division, Computer and Telecommunications Division and Electronic Systems Project Division. There is also the office of the Data Administrator.

■ Management Services Branch

This Branch is responsible for personnel policy and programs; official languages; human resources development and employment equity; staff relations; pay and benefits; financial planning, analysis and reporting; systems development and accounting operations; materiel, accommodation and security management for both the National Archives and the National Library. There are three divisions in the Branch: Personnel Services, Financial Services and Administrative Services. There is also the office of Occupational Safety and Health.

■ Archives Headquarters Accommodation Project

The Branch is responsible for ensuring that the future accommodation needs of the National Archives are realized. There are two offices in the Branch: the Gatineau Building Project and the West Memorial Building Project.

National Capital Commission
Chapter 62

General Information

Background

The National Capital Commission (NCC) was created in 1958 to succeed the Federal District Commission (1927-1958) and the Ottawa Improvement Commission (1899-1927).

The NCC carries out its mandate under authority of the National Capital Act, R.S.C. 1985, N-4. The objectives and purpose of the NCC are to prepare plans for, and assist in the development, conservation and improvement of the National Capital Region, in order that the nature and character of the seat of the Government of Canada may be in accordance with its national significance. The NCC received a new and expanded mandate from Cabinet in 1986: to make the Capital a meeting place for all Canadians, to use the Capital to communicate Canada to all Canadians, and to safeguard and preserve its assets.

Responsibilities

The National Capital Commission is a Crown Corporation whose mandate is to plan and assist in the development, conservation and improvement of the National Capital Region in keeping with its significance as the seat of the Government of Canada. The NCC's mandate was expanded in 1988.

This has resulted in the organization, sponsorship and promotion of public activities and events that enrich the cultural and social fabric of Canada, and foster cooperation among organizations with a stake in the Capital's development.

Fullfilment of these objectives will make the Capital more representative of Canada and promote public perception of it as a second home for every Canadian.

Legislation

- National Capital Act, R.S.C. 1985, c. N-4

Organization

To ensure the National outlook of the NCC, the Act provides for twenty Commissioners from across Canada who function as a Board of Directors, and who must be appointed by Order-in-Council. The Commission reports to Parliament through the Minister Designate for Canadian Heritage and is headed by a Chairman who is also its Chief Executive Officer.

■ Executive and Corporate Affairs

The Chairman and Chief Executive Officer:
Heads a senior management team comprising the General Manager and eight Vice-Presidents.

The General Manager:
Acts as the Commission's chief operating officer, providing overall direction and coordination for Branch activities.

The Chief of Staff:
Is responsible for overseeing the operation of the Intergovernmental Issues Management Division, executive correspondence, protocol and speech writing.

■ Legal Services and Commission Secretariat

Legal Services and Commission Secretariat Branch is responsible for all legal matters affecting the Commission and for all matters regarding the corporate governance of the Commission, its committees and corporate by-laws and regulations.

■ Capital Planning

Capital Planning Branch develops long-range policies and plans for the physical development of federal lands in the Capital; provides planning advice to federal departments and other levels of government, and authorizes design, land use, demolitions, land sales and permits.

■ Human Resources

Human Resources Branch's objective is to provide innovative and simplified services, programs and strategies in the areas of organizational development, change management, human resources development and transactional operations, which support managers in their efforts to: attract and retain a motivated, skilled, competent and cost effective workforce and create and maintain a fair, healthy, safe and productive working environment.

■ Marketing and Communications

Marketing and Communications Branch provides strategic direction to the Commission in the areas of marketing, promotion and communications, including media relations, public affairs, publications, enhancing public awareness of the Capital, marketing the Capital as a visitor destination, and providing opportunities for the public and private sectors to contribute to the Capital's development and promotion.

■ National Programming

National Programming Branch focuses on Canada's Capital as a means of instilling pride and a sense of unity among Canadians. Through partnerships, the Branch manages, develops and stages celebrations and festivals such as Canada Day, Cultures Canada and Winterlude. It showcases and interprets Canadian symbols, values and achievements through a variety of programmes, and orients and informs visitors about the significance of the Capital.

■ Realty and Development

Realty and Development Branch manages and develops the NCC's real assets. This includes the design and rehabilitation of NCC construction projects, real property acquisition and disposal, marketing and leasing of realty assets; and the management of Canada's six "Official Residences".

■ Strategic Planning and Information Management

Strategic Planning and Information Management Branch manages the NCC's information resources, finances and corporate planning. This includes planning, organizing and controlling information holdings; applying technology, methods, systems and procedures for creating, collecting, handling, protecting, using and disposing of information and the application of Access to Information and Privacy legislation. The Branch also provides mapping services, engineering and cadastral surveys, and geographic information and manages the functions of Chief Financial Officer and Corporate Administration Officer. The Branch is responsible for procurement and material management, and security and fire prevention functions.

National Defence
Chapter 63

General Information

Background

The Minister of National Defence has the control and management of the Canadian Forces and all matters relating to National Defence establishments and works for the defence of Canada. The Canadian Forces, besides forming part of National Defence Headquarters, are organized into seven major functional commands and one command with regional responsibilities. The Department is responsible for the administration of the Canadian Forces Superannuation Act, the Defence Services Pensions Continuation Act, the National Defence Act, and the Visiting Forces Act.

Responsibilities

The role and function of the Department of National Defence, and its principal component, the Canadian Forces, have historically been to ensure the security of Canada and to contribute to the maintenance of world peace.

Its basic roles and responsibilities are to supplement and support the civilian authorities in maintaining surveillance and preserving control over and security within the national territory of Canada and areas of Canadian jurisdiction, to assist civilian authorities in the event of emergency or disaster, to provide search and rescue services, and to contribute to national development. To enhance the security of Canada against military threat, the Department co-operates with the United States in the defence of North America, and co-operates in collective defence measures under the North Atlantic Treaty. The Department promotes international stability by contributing to peacekeeping activities in co-operation with other members of the international community, and by providing military training assistance to friendly nations. It controls, manages, and administers all activities of, and provides the services necessary to ensure adequate supply and technical support for, both the Department and the Canadian Forces. It also provides all levels of training for the Canadian Forces. Finally, the Department works to maintain and advance Canadian scientific and technological knowledge and analytical capability in the area of defence.

Legislation

- Aeronautics Act, R.S.C. 1970; for matters therein relating to defence; otherwise, the designated minister is the Minister of Transport
- Canadian Forces Superannuation Act, R.S.C.
- Defence Services Pension Continuation Act, R.S.C. 1970
- National Defence Act, R.S.C. 1970
- Visiting Forces Act, R.S.C. 1970

Organization

■ Assistant Deputy Minister – Communications and Public Affairs

The Division provides advice and guidance to the minister, deputy minister, chief of defence staff, commanders, and managers on public information and communications matters in support of National Defence and Canadian Forces policies, objectives, programs and activities. It also plans, conducts, and evaluates information programs for groups within and outside the Department; provides the public and media with the maximum amount of information on defence consistent with national and international security; and arranges Canadian Forces participation in exhibitions and displays. The Division maintains a working relationship with communications agencies of federal, provincial, and allied governments.

Directorate of History:

Is responsible for the production of official histories of the Canadian Forces. The Directorate collects source documents on Canadian military history, acts as an information centre on the history of the Canadian Forces, and provides historical research facilities.

■ Assistant Deputy Minister – Finance

Financial Services Branch:

Responsible for controlling and coordinating the financial administration functions of the Department. This involves ensuring the effective functioning of the departmental budgetary system, the internal controls over funds and assets, and accounting systems, procedures and practices. It is also responsible for the interpretation and communication of financial policies and procedures, the provision of costing, military pay, superannuation administration and financial services, and the operation of the Department's financial information system.

Automated Information Services Branch:

Responsible for controlling the administration of departmental management consulting services, providing a departmental forms management program, and administering the departmental reports control program. It also controls the administration of automatic data processing support to military commanders and departmental managers by formulating appropriate policies, procedures and plans, as well as conducting evaluations. In addition, the Division directs the analysis and design of departmental information systems.

■ Assistant Deputy Minister – Materiel

Weapons Systems and Equipment Engineering and Maintenance Branch:

Responsible for providing all aspects of design, engineering, maintenance, and standardization service for all weapons systems, support systems, and related equipment for the Canadian Forces. These functions are carried out by project managers and life cycle materiel managers organized in maritime, aerospace, land and communications, electronics engineering, and maintenance divisions. It is responsible for providing and managing ammunition design engineering, maintenance, storage, explosive safety, and disposal services for the Department. In addition, it develops and recommends ammunition-related policies and programs, and provides guidance and coordination for their implementation.

Supply Branch:

Accountable for the provision of materiel for the Canadian Forces.

Transportation Division:

Responsible for the provision of transportation and postal services. This includes planning, programming, and managing the actual provision of these services, and managing the Department's vehicle accident prevention program.

Materiel Quality Assurance Division:

Responsible for planning and directing departmental quality assurance policies and activities, compiling and publishing Canadian qualified products lists, and maintaining surveillance over defence contractors and departmental manufacture and repair facilities. It looks after quality control and inspection systems, establishes and ensures the implementation of quality assurance standards for the repair, overhaul, modification, and acquisition of new equipment; and ensures the quality of materiel being procured for the Department of National Defence, other government departments, and foreign governments, as required.

Construction and Properties Branch:

Responsible for formulating plans and programs for the design, construction, operation, maintenance, protection, and evaluation of accommodations, fixed facilities and utilities. It implements the approved programs, manages real property and utility services, coordinates the disposal of surplus real property and facilities, formulates related policies, and provides the necessary control and guidance for their application.

Research and Development Branch:

Responsible for the formulation and conduct of the departmental research and development program. It participates in the formulation and implementation of departmental policies for research and development activities, controls and directs the operation of the defence research establishments, and ensures that knowledge and application of actual and anticipated advances in science and technology are brought to bear on all departmental functions.

Research and Development Services Division:

Exercises control over the administrative functions for those units of the Canadian Forces permanently allocated to the assistant deputy minister materiel, provides administrative support to the defence research establishments, provides documentation and discussion papers for review, administers the departmental inventions and patents program, and coordinates the departmental logistics operations.

Research and Development Policy Division:

Responsible for planning and directing the Department's position on all NATO matters relating to research, development and production of defence equipment. It markets defence equipment and participates in all aspects of national and international marketing activities. This includes costing, evaluating, and obtaining necessary approvals for all departmental commitments in support of defence equipment sales. In addition, the Division coordinates export permits, memoranda of understanding, and metric conversion.

Research and Development Operations Division:

Responsible for the planning, control, and operation of research and development in the maritime, land, air and communications elements, and in the field of human performance.

■ Assistant Deputy Minister – Personnel

Personnel Development Branch:

Responsible for developing personnel policies, for officer training and education, and for conducting research in these areas. The Branch is also responsible for the effective overview and administration of special research, planning, and development studies.

Recruiting, Education and Training Division:

Responsible for the development and implementation of policy with regard to Regular Force recruiting and selection, and individual training and education of military and civilian members of the Department.

Personnel Services Branch:

Responsible for developing and implementing policies on physical education programs for military personnel and for recreation activities for Canadian Forces members, their dependants, and resident Department civilian employees. The Branch administers all non-public fund operations, programs, activities, and the Canadian Forces Exchange System (CANEX). It determines military standards of dress, drill and ceremonial. The Branch also monitors conditions of service as experienced by service members and their dependants, operates the National Defence Dependants school system, and plans and advises on matters concerning the employment of women in the Forces.

Compensation and Benefits Division:

Responsible for planning and directing the development of policies and programs for military and civilian compensation, allowances, and personal benefits for personnel employed in a wide variety of environments who require special compensation plans and practices specific to the Department's requirements and equitable with outside compensation policies.

Dependants Education Programs Division:

Responsible for developing policy on, and administering, organizing, constructing, equipping, and operating the National Defence Dependants school system. This includes teacher establishments and salary agreements; the attendance of children at municipal schools on payment of school fees; and the payment of education allowances, under Privy Council authority or the Military Foreign Service Regulations, 1979, for children of members of the Canadian Forces serving in Canada and abroad.

Chaplain General Protestant Division:

Responsible for upholding and fostering spiritual values and pastoral care of Protestant Canadian Forces personnel and dependants. This includes the implementation of ecclesiastical and military policy as it affects the ministry of chaplains; administration of chapel-oriented programs that provide a comprehensive pastoral ministry; development of lay participation and leadership; administration of all religious activities, including those involving chaplain service with the reserves and cadets; and the maintenance of a close working relationship with the Canadian Council of Churches, through its committee on chaplain service in the forces and various civilian committees concerned with sponsorship of Protestant chapel stewardship projects.

Chaplain General Roman Catholic Division:

Responsible for upholding and fostering spiritual values and the pastoral care of Catholic service personnel and dependants. This includes recommending and implementing ecclesiastical and military policy as it affects the ministry of chaplains, and administering programs that provide a comprehensive pastoral ministry to meet the needs of service personnel and their dependants. In ecclesiastical matters, the Chaplain General is responsible to the Roman Catholic military vicar of the Canadian Forces.

Surgeon General Branch:

Responsible for the organization and administration of the Canadian Forces medical services to conserve military manpower and provide medical support for military operations. This includes the development, review, and evaluation of medical policies, plans and programs relating to operational commitments; therapeutic medicine; preventive medicine; social development services; training and staffing of medical, nursing and medical associate officers, and medical trades personnel; pharmaceutical and financial services; the design and maintenance of medical facilities; and the negotiation of medical agreements with other government departments, civilian hospitals, and affiliated universities in support of Canadian Forces requirements.

Dental Services Division:

Responsible for formulating dental policies, plans, and programs to ensure the dental health of all members of the Canadian Forces and, in certain areas, their dependants and other civilians. This includes providing treatment, accommodation, equipment and supplies; preparing the budget; coordinating command and dental unit resource allocations for the provision of dental services; determining both the professional and technical training standards and requirements for dental personnel; maintaining liaison; and representing the Canadian Forces to dental services of other nations, federal and provincial dental associations, and educational agencies in Canada.

Personnel Careers and Senior Appointments Branch:

Responsible for controlling and administering the assignments and career progression of military personnel who have completed basic training; developing, implementing, and interpreting personnel management policies; selecting personnel for career development and academic upgrading; and administering honourary military appointments.

Manpower Utilization Division:

Responsible for developing personnel policies and systems through which departmental objectives, both present and forecast, are translated into statements of manpower requirements. It ensures that personnel requirements, establishments, and actual strengths are in accordance with approved policies and budgets; allocates military manpower resources within staffing priorities to fill established positions; and prepares and controls annual personnel estimates for military and civilian personnel pay, allowances, salaries, wages, and pension contributions required by the Department. In addition, the Department forecasts and controls military posting and removal expenses and is responsible for determining the occupational analysis requirements for the Canadian Forces.

Classification Division:

Responsible for the administration and application of the classification system for all Department civilian employees. In addition, the Division handles employees' classification grievances, audits regional classification offices, and develops policies, directives, methods and procedures.

Civilian Personnel Services Division:

Responsible for developing policies and plans and implementing programs for the recruitment, promotion, transfer, training and development, career management, and lay-offs of departmental civilian employees. It implements and maintains a complete departmental civilian personnel administrative service, represents the Department in the development of government-wide policies and programs in all of these personnel areas, and provides advice to senior military and civilian officials on personnel administration matters. The Division also plans, coordinates and advises on the Affirmative Action Program.

Personnel Coordination and Administrative Services Division:

Responsible for the administrative functions of the departmental personnel management information systems. It investigates and replies to personnel enquiries and complaints, including those under the provisions of the Canadian Human Rights Act; publishes newsletters for both military and civilian personnel; and provides records management services for personnel and fatal casualties records.

Official Languages Division:

Responsible for the development of all departmental official languages policies, both military and civilian, while ensuring that they are in accordance with the Official Languages Act, government policies, and departmental requirements. This includes evaluating, monitoring, and amending existing policies; and formulating, when necessary, new directives on terminology, translation, language training programs, and testing. In addition, the Division identifies the language requirements of all civilian positions, maintains an automated information system on civilian personnel, and schedules their language training.

■ Assistant Deputy Minister – Policy

Defence Program Branch:

Develops and maintains the defence program management systems, controls and reviews the defence services program, analyzes options to meet the Department's capability goals, reviews and guides the management of major projects, and prepares the defence services program forecast.

Policy Planning Branch:

Responsible for originating and advising on policy matters, evaluating strategic developments, developing defence policy proposals (including defence objectives) and guidance for the planning of defence capabilities, and coordinating policy planning with external agencies, NATO in particular.

Policy Coordination Division:

Effects liaison with Cabinet through the Privy Council Office, monitors departmental policy and conducts relations with Parliament.

Operational Research and Analysis Branch:

Directs the operational research and systems analysis program, and is responsible for the maintenance of scientific quality and support of financial research elements.

Organization and Manpower Division:

Responsible for generating departmental organizational policy, procedures, structures, changes, and orders; and for identifying current and future military and civilian manpower requirements with the Department. It also controls military rank and occupational code structures, develops and maintains the official position list of continuing civilian employees, controls the casual person-year allocation, develops and maintains manpower scales and standards, manages the on-site manpower evaluation program, and produces and maintains unit establishment documents.

■ Chief Review Services Branch

The Branch provides departmental advice and functional authority on review matters. It is responsible and accountable for the planning and conduct at the National Defence Headquarters (NDHQ) level of program evaluations, internal audits, and military reviews of all aspects of departmental and military operations and activities. It also provides independent, objective reports on the effectiveness, efficiency and economy of the Department of National Defence and the Canadian Forces.

■ Deputy Chief of the Defence Staff

Maritime Doctrine and Operations Branch:

Responsible for the development of maritime policy and doctrine relating to force structure, capability requirements, equipment requirements, contingency plans, operational employment, resource management, staffing, training standards, and training and employment policy related to the naval reserve.

Land Doctrine and Operations Branch:

Responsible for army future force development, doctrine (material taught), force structuring, operational training and planning, equipment requirements, and scaling of equipment.

Air Doctrine and Operations Branch:

Responsible for all air force matters, including the type of air force that is required and how it should be used, equipped, and trained to meet established departmental objectives. This branch also advises on air reserve employment and training policy, and provides representation to meet national and international liaison and representational requirements.

Military Plans and Operations Coordination Division:

Aligns military (sea, land, air) operations and plans so that they are mutually supporting and centrally controlled. The Director General, Military Plans and Operations applies a National Defence Headquarters overview to current national concerns in planning for war and peacetime emergencies. As well, the Division acts as a focal point for operational training and activity planning by assigning and monitoring operations of the Canadian Forces and coordinating Canadian Forces activities on standardization agreements and equipment requirements for nuclear, chemical, and biological defence operations.

Military Engineering Operations Division:

Acts as principal adviser on all military engineering and cartographic matters for both Regular and Reserve Forces. This includes training standards, policy, and doctrine for the employment of military engineering and cartographic units. The Division also provides operational information, advice, and guidance for the military engineering and cartography portion of the departmental force structuring, operational planning, training, and resource management processes. In addition, it meets national and international liaison and representational requirements.

Military Communications and Electronics Division:

Responsible for providing communications and electronics support to National Defence by directing or coordinating all military communications and electronics matters. This includes coordinating communications for exercises and operations, communications security, communications plans and requirements, the management of radio frequencies, coordination of international military communications matters, and electronic warfare.

Reserves and Cadets Division:

Responsible for advising on policy, training standards, and doctrine for the employment of Reserve Force sub-components; operational information; structuring and development; operational training; equipment acquisition; and the implementation of National Defence Headquarters reserve policy. The Division also provides advice on departmental support to cadet programs sponsored by the navy, army, and air cadet leagues.

■ Emergency Preparedness Canada

Emergency Preparedness Canada is the federal agency responsible for coordinating the emergency planning and response of the Government of Canada for peacetime and wartime emergency situations.

■ Executive Secretariat Division

The Division is responsible for providing and managing administrative services to ensure the effective functioning of the Department in general, and National Defence headquarters in particular. This includes providing departmental administrative support such as library services, records management services, personnel identification services, and National Defence headquarters accommodation management services. The Division also provides departmental policy coordination and review, and secretarial support for senior management meetings. The director general of this division is the corporate secretary for the Department of National Defence.

■ National Search and Rescue Secretariat

The Secretariat is an independent body outside the line authority of the Department that has as its central focus the coordination of the national search and rescue program in Canada.

■ Office of the Judge Advocate General

The Office provides legal advice to the Department and the Canadian Forces and oversees a system of courts and justice applicable to all members of the Canadian Forces and to civilians subject to the code of service discipline under section 55 of the National Defence Act. The Office also administers and settles damage and injury claims by and against the Department; administers the service estates of all deceased members of the Canadian Forces; and administers the Service Pension Board.

■ Vice Chief of the Defence Staff

Military Intelligence and Security Branch:

Develops policies and plans for the management of National Defence intelligence and security resources, and produces and disseminates timely defence intelligence. It controls the activities of Canadian Forces attachés and advisers, is the point of contact for foreign military attachés and advisers accredited to Canada, and provides security services to the Department.

Flight Safety Directorate:

Makes recommendations and develops programs that will result in the prevention of accidental losses of aviation resources. This function includes identifying hazardous areas of Canadian Forces air operations and support functions, developing and monitoring the flight safety program, reviewing aircraft occurrences for trend analysis, providing educational information, participating in the development of new aviation resources, conducting flight safety surveys at civil contractor facilities, and exchanging flight safety information with other military and civilian agencies for accident prevention purposes.

General Safety Directorate:

Responsible for overall development, coordination, and administration of the Department's general safety program and for advising on general safety accident experience, risk and loss control management, and occupational health policy.

Infrastructure Planning and Coordination Directorate:

Responsible for coordinating base planning activities within the Department. It prepares base planning guidelines, monitors the implementation of a base development plan, plans for joint use and occupancy of Canadian Forces bases by civil authorities and foreign military powers, provides advice to other staff agencies on base planning matters, and coordinates civil use of military airfields.

Reliability/Security Investigation File

Description: This bank contains personal data, such as criminal records, security reliability analyses, investigative reports, credit check reports, related correspondence, notations of the level of security clearance and/or reliability status granted, Security Clearance Review Board documentation and Security Intelligence Review Committee Appeals. Reliability check records apply to pre-employment/employment with the CF/DND and the private sector working under federal government contracts for DND. This bank contains personal information about an individual, his or her immediate family, the names and comments of past employers, the names and comments of character references, and possibly the names and activities of associates with whom the individual would have contact. Personal information is held on individuals who are or have been the subject of security screening procedures in relation to pre-employment/employment with the CF/DND or the private sector working under federal government contracts for DND, when access to classified or designated information/material is a requirement. This information has been obtained to support decisions taken in determining the suitability for a security clearance when an individual requires access to classified information. A reliability check is a condition of employment in the CF/DND and is required to assess the honesty, trustworthiness and discretion of an individual when given access to sensitive information or government assets; or access to valuables, drugs, hazardous or dangerous material; or responsibility for the well-being of persons or control of personnel. Individuals wishing to access only specific types of information should identify the material desired, to expedite the processing of their requests. Records are filed by family name, date of birth (year-month-day) and initials of the individual. However an individual who has been the subject of security screening procedures prior to 1990 must also include his/her social insurance number with the request. Class of Individuals: Members of the general public and some members of other government departments who have applied for a pre-employment/employment security clearance or reliability status check with the CF/DND and contractors working under federal government contracts for DND. By virtue of the security clearance process, personal information may be held on individuals who are not themselves the subject of the security assessment or reliability status check. Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to maintain investigative/administrative documentation necessary to assess an individual's loyalty and reliability to Canada as it pertains to a security clearance in order to grant access to classified information/material and to assess reliability as a condition of employment. Consistent Uses: The information in this bank may be used in matters which, on reasonable grounds, may be suspected of constituting threats to the security of Canada or the Department; information may also be used in other lawful investigations. Retention and Disposal Standards: Records are retained until the individual reaches the age of 67 and, provided there has been no activity in the last two years, destroyed. PAC Number: 69-014 Related to PR#: DND MIS 085 TBS Registration: 001967 Bank Number: DND PPU 055

Security Intelligence Records

Description: This bank contains information on individuals and organizations whose activities may have been suspected, on reasonable grounds, of constituting a threat to DND personnel, information or material, at home or abroad. Such activities include espionage, sabotage, subversion, terrorism and extremism. This bank also contains information on organizations and individuals whose activities may be detrimental to the interests of Canada and may result in a request to DND for Aid of the Civil Power. Records are accessible by providing specific identifiers, such as dates, organizations, events and geographical areas or locations, along with name, initials and service number. Class of Individuals: Individuals suspected of, or involved in espionage, sabotage, subversion, terrorist and extremist activities in Canada and abroad that may have DND security implications. Purpose: The information in this bank is used for the following reasons: to assess the threat posed to DND security by organizations or individuals engaged in espionage, sabotage, subversions, terrorism or extremism; to brief departmental authorities on situations that may result in a request for aid of the Civil Power; to develop policy and provide advice in relation to provisions of the National Defence Act, Queen's Regulations and Orders, Official Secrets Act and the Criminal Code of Canada, respecting activities by individuals or groups that constitute a threat to DND personnel, information or material; and formulate plans or other measures to counter, or respond to, threats to the security of this department during periods of peace and war. Consistent Uses: Information may be disclosed: to the Canadian Security Intelligence Service (CSIS) for use in the investigation or assessment of the threat to Canada as defined in section 2 of the CSIS Act; to the Attorney General of Canada and the appropriate police officials for the investigation or prosecution of an alleged contravention of the law; and to the Security Intelligence Review Committee. Retention and Disposal Standards: The records in this bank are destroyed after fifty calendar years, however, they may be retained for a longer period if judged to be of archival value or deemed to be of historical value to the Department of National Defence. Related to PR#: DND MIS 085 TBS Registration: 001968 Bank Number: DND PPU 060

Manuals

The bilingual publication entitled Defence Canada is published annually by the Department of National Defence. It is designed to provide an overview of current strategic considerations relative to defence planning, and to highlight departmental activities during the preceding year.

Because of the wide range of manuals, regulations and orders used by the Department of National Defence to fulfil its functions, it is impractical to include a complete list of its holdings in this publication. The Department may, on request, provide a list of existing manuals relating to a particular subject or activity.

Reading Room

A section of the Department's library at National Defence Headquarters has been designated under the Access to Information Act as a public reading room. Its address is:

101 Colonel By Drive
Ottawa, Ontario.

Because of the security classification and the necessity to continually amend an unusually wide range of technical and training manuals, regulations and orders used by the Department of National Defence to fulfill its functions, it was found impractical to put all 90,000 publications on display. However, a complete list of its holdings is available in the AIA Reading Room and the Department may, on request, provide for viewing a copy of existing manuals relating to a particular subject or activity, provided the material is releasable and sufficient time is allowed to retrieve the publication from the depot.

National Energy Board
Chapter 64

General Information

Background

The National Energy Board (NEB) was created by the National Energy Board Act of 1959.

Responsibilities

The Board has two principal responsibilities under the National Energy Board Act: to regulate specific matters concerning oil, gas and electricity in the public interest (granting authorizations for the export of oil, natural gas, electricity and the construction of international and interprovincial pipelines and international power lines; and setting of tolls and tariffs on pipelines under NEB jurisdiction); and to advise the Government on the development and use of energy resources (keeping under review the Canadian supply of all major energy commodities and the demand for Canadian energy in Canada and in export markets).

Legislation

Northern Pipeline

- Northern Pipeline Act, 1977-78, chapter 20

Organization

■ Executive Director

The Executive Director is the Board's senior staff member and Chief Operating Officer. His responsibilities include the overall management of the Board, the acquisition and allocation of human and financial resources, the efficiency of Board activities and operations, and the provision of advice on matters deemed appropriate by the Chairman.

Finance and Administration Branch:

Co-ordinates and administers the financial and administrative policies under which the Board operates; and provides advice and services relating to accounts processing, financial planning and budgeting, and property, materiel, records and mail management. It also provides accounting services for the Northern Pipeline Agency.

Personnel Branch:

Provides advice and services in the areas of staffing, human resources planning, training, employment equity programs for visible minorities, official languages, classification, staff relations, pay and benefits, safety and health, conflict of interest, employee assistance, merit awards and security.

Planning and Review Branch:

Responsible for the Board's strategic and operational planning process, program review and evaluation, the internal audit program and the management practices program.

Information Technology Branch:

Responsible for computer systems services, word processing support, data processing support and telephones. This includes consultative service on computer operations, data management, program design and development, and an advisory service on the latest data processing techniques and applications. Branch responsibilities also include the integration of information and processing systems and services for the Board.

■ Director General, Energy Regulation

The Director General, Energy Regulation is responsible for the integration of all staff activities involving the regulation of energy exports and international power lines. This encompasses planning and coordinating all work affecting the regulation of international power lines, exports of oil, gas, and electricity under Part VI of the National Energy Board Act, and coordinating the analysis of all matters related to energy supply and demand.

Economics Branch:

Responsible for evaluating the economic worth to Canada of applications before the Board to licence exports and to certify pipeline and international power line projects. The Branch develops, in collaboration with others in the Board, general approaches to energy regulation and pipeline toll and tariff structures which involve considerations of economic efficacy. The Branch is responsible for preparing detailed projections of energy demand in Canada, macro-economic projections for the long-term performance of the Canadian economy, long-term outlooks for Canadian exports of natural gas and electricity to the American market, and long-term scenarios of world oil prices. These activities are largely in support of the Board's supply and demand reports, market monitoring requirements and evaluations of export licence and facilities applications. The Branch also advises on the state of competitive conditions in energy markets, to the extent required for the Board's regulatory mandate.

Energy Supply Branch:

Responsible for advising on matters relating primarily to the supply of conventional and synthetic crude oil, bitumen, natural gas and natural gas liquids. The Branch prepares both short-term and long-term projections of supplies of these energy commodities from conventional, oil sands and frontier sources, based on its own studies and consultations with industry and other groups. The Branch also prepares estimates of established oil and gas reserves in Canada; conducts analyses of ultimate resource potentials and reserves additions rates; evaluates the supply costs and economics of resource projects; monitors developments in the energy sector, particularly the producing industry; and investigates potential new energy supply sources.

Electric Power Branch:

Advises on matters relating to regulatory surveillance and electricity export licensing and international power line certification. The Branch prepares supply and demand forecasts for electricity that are used in dealing with electrical and other applications, reviews the American market for electricity, and provides advice on matters under federal jurisdiction that relate to the production, transportation, sale, and exchange of electricity.

Gas and Oil Branch:

Provides advice to the Board on oil and gas matters including evaluation of oil and gas markets and commercial transactions; transmission, processing and distribution of commodities. It also synthesizes such information into assessments applicable to the Board's regulatory roles. The Branch is responsible for export and import regulation, monitoring, and for matters related to traffic and discrimination in service for gas and oil pipelines. The Branch collects and disseminates data on exports and imports including volumes and prices, and also prepares and supplies data on the consumption and transportation of crude oil, petroleum products, gas products and natural gas, incorporating estimates of short-term domestic and export demand and pipeline throughputs.

■ Director General, Pipeline Regulation

The Director General, Pipeline Regulation integrates all staff activities relating to the regulation of gas, oil, and petroleum products pipelines. This encompasses the design, construction, operation, safety, and environmental concerns specified under Part III of the National Energy Board Act and matters regarding tolls and tariffs under Part IV of the Act.

Environment Branch:

Provides advice on the protection of the environment during the construction and operation of pipeline and power line facilities and on the protection of land-owner rights with respect to land acquisition. It advises on the environmental consequences of energy exports including the impact of the generation, production and end-use of that energy. In addition, Branch staff provide advice on the technical requirements related to third-party crossings on pipeline rights-of-way.

Pipeline Engineering Branch:

Advises on matters relating to pipeline certificates issued under the National Energy Board Act and for the regulation of the safety of pipeline facilities under the Board's jurisdiction. The Branch is the Board's principal source of advice on technical matters included in applications by pipeline companies for facilities construction. Board staff in this Branch also administer certain portions of the Canada Labour Code relating to pipeline worker safety.

Financial Regulation Branch:

Responsible for tolls and tariffs, financial regulatory advice and costs of transportation under specific areas of the National Energy Board Act. As such, its main function includes the provision of expert financial advice to the Board and to the hearing panel on all toll applications. It also audits the accounts of pipeline companies under the Board's jurisdiction and monitors the financial performance of pipelines on a regular basis to ensure that tolls are just and reasonable.

■ Law Branch

The Law Branch provides legal advice to the Board on all matters relating to the Board's powers and responsibilities, acts as Counsel for the Board at public hearings, and represents the Board in proceedings before the Federal and Supreme Courts of Canada.

■ Office of the Secretary

The Office of the Secretary receives all applications and submissions and co-ordinates their consideration by the Board. It advises on the scheduling of hearings, and makes all administrative arrangements for public hearings in Ottawa and across Canada. In addition, it provides media and public relations services, publications services and operates the Board's library. It administers the Access to Information Act and Privacy Act and co-ordinates translation services with the in-house translation unit provided by Secretary of State.

Classes of Personal Information

Office of the Secretary Files
In the course of its programs and activities the National Energy Board may accumulate personal information which is not contained in the specific personal information banks listed in this entry. Such information may include an individual's name, address, telephone number, or opinion on a specific matter. These data are stored as part of the general subject files and the records are not normally retrievable by the name of the individual or other identifier.

Such personal information is provided by individuals in requesting publications, general information, funds for projects they are conducting, or in providing their comments or opinions on various topics.

To retrieve this type of personal information, the enquirer must state the specific subject matter of the correspondence, the name of the person, and the approximate date on which the correspondence was forwarded to the Board.

The retention periods for these classes of personal information are controlled by the record schedules of the general subject files in which they are stored.

National Farm Products Marketing Council
Chapter 65

General Information

Background
The National Farm Products Marketing Council was established in 1972 under the Farm Products Marketing Agencies Act.

Responsibilities
The National Farm Products Marketing Council is responsible for supervising the Canadian marketing agencies established under the Farm Products Marketing Agencies Act. The Council works with these agencies, provincial governments and marketing boards to promote an efficient and competitive industry for the products concerned. It is charged with protecting the interests of producers, processors and consumers.

Legislation
- Farm Products Marketing Agencies Act, 1972

Organization
■ Executive Council
The Council is responsible for policy decisions and for the ultimate objectives and goals of the National Farm Products Marketing Council. All nine council members are appointed by Order-in-Council. Six of the nine members are paid on a per diem basis for those days that they are called upon to work on Council business.

■ Operations
This section is responsible for the day to day monitoring of the agencies' operations and for reporting their findings to Council. The staff is also called upon to perform special tasks or studies regarding existing or possible new agencies which would provide analysis and documentation for Council's decisions.

■ Communications
This section is responsible for media relations, the preparation and diffusion of Council's public information, and for the preparation and publication of annual reports and press releases.

■ Management Services
This section is responsible for records management, property management, material management, Access to Information and Privacy Legislation, general administration and for the financial, personnel and support functions for Council and its components.

National Film Board
Chapter 66

General Information

Background

The National Film Board (NFB) was established by an Act of Parliament on May 2, 1939, and revised in 1950. The NFB reports to the Minister of Communications. Its mandate is to produce and distribute Canadian film and video, as well as to promote their production and distribution.

Responsibilities

The NFB's purpose is to make films which are distinctively Canadian. These films reflect the bilingual, multicultural and regional realities of this country and answer the social and cultural needs of its citizens. NFB productions are distributed on film and videocassette and are available through Canadian theatres, library collections and its own audio-visual centres. Across the country, NFB films are seen on broadcast and specialized television. The NFB also operates an International Commercial Service to sell and market its films abroad. NFB films are also available in some Canadian diplomatic missions abroad.

NFB films are produced by distinct English and French program branches which are also responsible for marketing their films to their respective English and French audiences. In the early 1970s NFB production began to decentralize its production studios and the ensuing years have seen production studios developed in Vancouver, Edmonton, Winnipeg, Toronto, Moncton, and Halifax, as well as in Montreal. There is a permanent creative staff in Montreal, though a large proportion of NFB films are made by freelance independent film-makers. The NFB is a totally integrated production and distribution house. The average annual production of the NFB is approximately 100 original films and 50 versions and adaptions of existing films. The NFB produces versions of its films in several different languages for foreign distribution. It also produces IMAX films. The Services Division undertakes advanced technical research and development to further the art and technology of film and video.

The NFB also has a mandate to play an active role in training people in all aspects of film-making.

Legislation

- National Film Act

Organization

The Board of Trustees of the National Film Board is composed of the Canadian Government Film Commissioner – who is both the chairperson and chief executive officer of the NFB – and eight other members appointed by the Governor in Council, three of whom are selected from the Public Service of Canada or the Canadian Armed Forces and five from the public at large. The NFB is managed by the Government Film Commissioner and by the directors of the English Program Branch; the French Program Branch, the Services Branch; the Corporate Affairs Division; the Planning and Evaluation Division; the Administration, Finance and Personnel Division; the Communication Division and the Employment Equity Program Division.

The head office of the NFB is in Ottawa, while its operational headquarters are located in Montreal.

■ Administration Division

This division provides for overall management of NFB resources, financial planning and personnel management and counsel. It also administers data processing services and prepares financial statements.

■ Communications Division

The Communications Division operates programs for NFB staff, public and media; prepares speeches and documents for the Government Film Commissioner, develops the corporate image of the NFB; handles corporate public relations through special projects, public and media visits to the Film Board, and with the media; and is responsible for the NFB's participation in festivals, retrospectives and other film events. It also oversees NFB participation in conferences and corporate projects (internal and external corporate communications).

■ English Program Branch

This branch produces and markets English language films and videos in documentary, animation and fiction forms to reach audiences in Canada and abroad on relevant social and cultural issues. It also produces IMAX films. These programs are produced in five studios in Montreal, and one each in Halifax, Toronto, Winnipeg, Edmonton and Vancouver. English program production uses permanent staff and freelance film-makers, and also co-produces with outside organizations. The International Commercial Service, which is administered by the English Program Branch, ensures sales of NFB productions in French and English outside Canada.

■ French Program Branch

This branch produces and markets films and videos in French to reach audiences in Canada and abroad on social and cultural issues, and is responsible for marketing its productions in Canada. The Branch produces and co-produces documentaries, fiction and animation from its headquarters in Montreal and from regional production centres in Moncton, Toronto and Winnipeg. It operates the Centre d'animatique which is able to conceive and direct high-quality film sequences using computer generated images. French program production uses permanent staff and freelancers to produce its films.

■ Services Division

This division provides technical production services for the program branches and operates a technical research and development section. It is also responsible for film and video distribution, including the FORMAT database, the publication of Film/Video Canadiana and the operation of Film/Video libraries and deposits in NFB audio-visual centres in Canada. It works jointly with several public libraries in making NFB films and videos more easily accessible to Canadians. It assists and advises the Department of External Affairs regarding the film libraries in many countries which are under the control of Canadian diplomatic missions abroad.

■ Employment Equity Program Division

The mandate of this division is based on the principles of sound human resource management and includes two objectives: parity between male and female employees in all permanent and contract positions, in all professional categories and at all levels by the year 1996; and a more equitable place for women in all aspects of Canadian film-making, ensured through the creation of training and apprenticeship programs.

■ Corporate Affairs Division

The Division's mandate is to represent the NFB before government parliamentary and political authorities, to inform NFB management of the policies, orientations and activities of these authorities and to assist all NFB branches, centres and activities in their relations/contacts with various departments and agencies as well as government, parliamentary and political representatives.

■ Planning and Evaluation Division

The Planning and Evaluation Branch is responsible for monitoring the strategic, operating and budgetary process within the NFB, the elaboration of policies and the application of program evaluation policy.

National Gallery of Canada
Chapter 67

General Information

Background

The National Gallery of Canada (NGC), a Crown corporation, was established in 1990 by the Museums Act.

Responsibilities

The corporate objectives of the National Gallery of Canada are to develop, maintain and make known, throughout Canada and internationally, a national collection of works of art, historic and contemporary, with special but not exclusive reference to Canada, and to further knowledge, understanding and enjoyment of art in general among all Canadians.

Legislation

- The Museums Act, 1990

Organization

- Corporate Management

The Museums Act provides for a fourteen member board of Trustees, which reports to Parliament through the Minister of Communications. The Act establishes the position of Director who, on behalf of the Board of Trustees, directs and manages the business of the Corporation in all matters that are not, by the Act or by-laws, specifically reserved to the Board, or a committee of the Board.

- Director's Office, Deputy Director's Office, Comptroller's Branch, Museum Services Branch

These provide overall guidance, direction and common services to the programs and operations of the National Gallery. Included in these common support services are both administrative (financial, personnel, records, etc.) and technical (design, framing, matting and crating) services.

- Collections and Research Branch, Canadian Centre for the Visual Arts Branch

These Branches are responsible for the following operational areas: curatorial, registration, restoration and conservation, photography and a research library, known as the Canadian Centre for the Visual Arts. The Branch develops a record of visual art, historic, modern and contemporary, situates that record within an international cultural context, and maintains documentary records on the condition and cultural and historical origins of the objects collected. Through the Canadian Centre for the Visual Arts, the Branch provides a major study and teaching resource for Canadian and international artists, scholars and students, and interested members of the public.

- Communications and Marketing Branch, Exhibitions and Installation Branch

These branches make the collection of more than 40,000 works of art and related knowledge accessible to national and international audiences through its displays of the permanent collections and special exhibitions, education services, publications, sales and media relations.

- Canadian Museum of Contemporary Photography

This museum undertakes a broad range of activities involving contemporary Canadian photographs and photographers. Its activities include acquisition and ordering of photographs, public programs, travelling exhibitions, loans, publications, educational programs, special exhibitions and national service.

Classes of Personal Information

Some NGC files summarized in the Program Records contain personal information which is not used in a decision-making process directly affecting the individual to whom it relates. Examples are inquiries about NGC collections, programs and services, information and advice given to individuals by NGC employees about museums and museum objects, and information about individuals in documents relating to grants or proposed grants to institutions.

These classes of personal information are kept on the relevant subject files and are not identifiable by name of the individual or other personal identifier. To retrieve these classes of personal information, the NGC would need as much detail as possible about the subject matter, the geographic location and the time the information would have come to the NGC.

The retention periods for these classes of personal information are the same as those for the subject files containing the information.

National Library of Canada
Chapter 68

General Information

Background

The National Library of Canada, created in 1953, operates under the National Library Act (1969) and its amendments, and administrates the National Library Book Deposit Regulations (1969). It is a branch of government having the rank of a department and reports to Parliament through the Minister of Canadian Heritage. The National Library serves Canada from the National Capital Region.

Responsibilities

The National Library ensures that the published heritage of Canadian people is preserved and made accessible to everyone through the country's libraries.

To fulfil its responsibilities the Library collects and promotes the Canadian literary heritage in its broadest sense. This includes listing the nation's publications to facilitate their retrieval, availability and use; providing reference, information, referral and document delivery services to support similar services provided by other Canadian libraries, with special emphasis on Canadian-related subjects; making known the written heritage of the nation through a cultural events program; and facilitating the use of the nation's total library resources by coordinating and participating in national and international programs for sharing information on publications and for identifying and supplying needed documents on interlibrary loan.

Legislation

- National Library Act (1969)
- National Library Book Deposit Regulations (1969)

Organization

The National Librarian has the status of a deputy head and is advised by the National Library Advisory Board and other specialized committees.

■ Administration Branch

Provides central management, planning and policy services as well as preservation policy services.

■ External Relations Branch

External Relations is responsible for the preparation of publications, marketing and promotional services, public and media relations, exhibitions, and cultural events programming. In addition, External Relations coordinates federal government library services, supports Canadian libraries serving disabled persons, and also collects documentation and provides information and advisory services to Canadian libraries and researchers on current developments in library and information science. The Branch consists of the Library Development Centre, Marketing and Publishing and the Public Programs.

■ Acquisitions and Bibliographic Services Branch

Under the Book Deposit Regulations of the National Library Act, the Branch receives and registers publications issued in Canada. The Branch also acquires books about Canada or by Canadians published abroad. In addition, it is involved in procuring for the National Library non-Canadian library materials in support of Canadian studies, library development and resource sharing by purchase, gift and exchange. Surplus library materials from Canadian libraries are collected and exchanged through the Canadian Book Exchange Centre in Ottawa. The Canadian Theses Service coordinates a national program for the publication of microform copies of graduate theses accepted by participating Canadian universities.

The Branch creates bibliographic records for Canadian material which appear in its automated data base, Dobis. In addition, a variety of products are compiled and published as by-products of its work: the current and retrospective versions of the national bibliography, Canadiana; a bilingual list of headings for corporate and personal authors' names used in the bibliography; classification schedules for Canadian literature and history; a list of Canadian subject headings in English; a list of subject headings in French which it co-publishes, and, a bibliography of Canadian theses. In addition the Branch coordinates the Canadian Cataloguing-in-Publication program; distributes machine-readable cataloguing records for Canadian and foreign publications, and, assigns International Standard Serial Numbers (ISSN) and International Standard Book Numbers (ISBN) to Canadian publications. It contributes to the development of national and international cataloguing standards; contributes cataloguing records for Canadian serials to CONSER, a North-American machine-readable database of serial records, and, publishes CONSER Microfiche, a bibliography of serials from that database.

■ Public Services Branch

The Branch is responsible for providing a location and interlibrary loan service and a reference and information service, both automated and manual, to libraries, researchers and the general public. Special advisory services are offered in children's literature and music. The Branch maintains the National Library's Union Catalogue (monographs and serials) on the DOBIS database to support interlending services in Canada, and from this database produces microfiche and CD-ROM products: {the Union List of Serials in the Social Sciences and Humanities: CANUC:S, the Union List of Canadian Newspapers; and the Canadian Union Catalogue of Library Materials for the Print Handicapped (CANUC:H)}. It also provides service from the National Library's collections, including official publications, serials, reference, music, rare books and literary manuscripts, Canadian newspapers and the native studies. Through the Multilingual Biblioservice, library materials in the non-official languages in Canada are acquired and disseminated through Canadian public libraries.

■ Information Technology Services Branch

The Branch consists of the following units: Applications Management, Information Analysis and Standards, Management Services, Systems and Telecommunications Support, and User Support.

The Branch plans, develops, and operates information systems to support the program requirements of the National Library. It administers corporate policies for information resource management, provides systems and technology support to external clients, and provides leadership and coordination in the development of nation-wide library and information networking through research, standards development and promotion. The Branch operates and enhances computer systems and databases required by the National Library in support of its programs. It also provides leadership in the development of automated systems that can be used widely by Canadian libraries and provides advisory services to Canadian libraries that are developing automated systems.

Classes of Personal Information
Some NMST and NAM files summarized in the Program Records contain personal information which is not used in a decision-making process directly affecting the individual to whom it relates. Examples are inquiries about NMST and NAM collections, programs and services, information and advice given to individuals by NMST or NAM employees about museums and museum objects.

These classes of personal information are kept on the relevant subject files and are not identifiable by name of the individual or other personal identifier. To retrieve these classes of personal information, NMST and NAM would need as much detail as possible about the subject matter, the geographic location and the time the information would have come to the SAT or NAM.

The retention periods for these classes of personal information are the same as those for the subject files containing the information.

National Parole Board
Chapter 70

General Information

Background
The National Parole Board, part of the criminal justice system, was created by the Parole Act in 1959.

Responsibilities
The corrections and conditional release Act empowers the National Parole Board to make conditional release decisions for offenders in federal, territorial, and many provincial prisons. Ontario, Quebec, and British Columbia maintain parole boards for almost all inmates serving sentences in their provincial institutions.

The Criminal Records Act allows the Board to issue, grant, deny, or revoke pardons for convictions under federal acts or regulations.

The National Parole Board is an agency within the Ministry of the Solicitor General. Board members are appointed to offices in the Atlantic, Quebec, Ontario, Prairies, and Pacific region and to the Appeal Division at headquarters in Ottawa. Headquarters also houses central administration, Policy, Planning and Research Division, and the Clemency and Pardons Division.

The Governor in Council (Cabinet) appoints the members of the National Parole Board.

The law requires the National Parole Board to assess all offenders when they become eligible for parole.

The National Parole Board has adopted policies to guide Board members in making decisions; the Board uses information from police, prosecutors, psychiatrists, judges, officers of the Correctional Service of Canada, the offender, victims and others to access risk. Many conditional release decisions are made after Board members hold a hearing with the offender. Some decisions are reached after a review of an offender's file and without a hearing.

If a pardon is in force, any federal agency or department that has records of convictions must keep the records of those convictions separate. They may not disclose the information in the record without permission from the Solicitor General of Canada.

Personal Information Banks

Access requests files
Description: This bank contains formal requests made by individuals under the Privacy Act and the Access to Information Act, the replies to such requests and information relating to their processing. Class of Individuals: Individuals requesting access to information under the Privacy Act and the Access to Information Act. Purpose: This information is used for processing requests made under the Privacy Act and the Access to Information Act. Consistent Uses: This information may be used for research, statistical, program monitoring and evaluation purposes; it is also used in response to a complaint filed by an individual to the Privacy or Information Commissioner, or in defence against a Court action. Retention and Disposal Standards: The records are retained for two years after all actions have been completed. PAC Number: 85-018 Related to PR#: NPB NPB 005 TBS Registration: 000508 Bank Number: NPB PPU 015

Clemency case files
Description: Criminal histories; police and court reports; social, financial, educational, medical and psychiatric histories; appraisals and recommendations from NPB and/or Correctional Service of Canada staff; records of Board members recommendations and decisions and related documentation; warrants and certificates; memoranda and letters of other agencies, government departments and the general public; and electromagnetic cassette tapes of hearings with pardon applicants. Social insurance numbers (SIN) are found in this bank in the cases of military personnel who request pardons from the Board, since the Department of National Defence (DND) uses the SIN as a personal identifier for its personnel. Board usage of SINs is dependent on DND usage. Class of Individuals: Individuals who have applied to the National Parole Board for a pardon under the Criminal Records Act or an act of clemency under subsection 26(2) of the Parole Act with respect to the Royal Prerogative of Mercy or pursuant to the Letters Patent and sections 749 and 750 of the Criminal Code. Records may also contain personal information on individuals other than the individual for whom a file was opened, e.g. the individual's family, friends or representatives. Purpose: To determine eligibility and suitability for the granting of a pardon or other act of clemency or for revocation of a pardon. Consistent Uses: To fulfil its legislative mandate, the National Parole Board gathers a great deal of personal information about applicants under its jurisdiction. To obtain the information, it is necessary for the Board to routinely share, when warranted, its information with other sources, including the Correctional Service of Canada, the RCMP, provincial and municipal governments, and members of the general public associated in some way with the individual to whom the information pertains. However, unless the pardon was subsequently revoked, personal information banks containing files of individuals who have been granted a pardon are kept separate and the content cannot be disclosed to any person without the prior approval of the Solicitor General who, before granting such approval, has to be satisfied that the disclosure is desirable in the interests of the administration of justice or for any purpose related to the safety or security of Canada. This information is also used for research, statistical, program monitoring and evaluation purposes, and for the purpose of presenting a defence when court actions are brought against the National Parole Board. Data matching: law enforcement agencies, Correctional Service of Canada and other federal institutions and provincial authorities. Retention and Disposal Standards: Pardon – for premature requests, files are kept for two years; for discontinued requests, files are kept for two years after the last contact with the applicant; for pardon granted, files are kept to age 70 or one year after the death of the subject is confirmed by the RCMP; for pardon revoked or not granted, files are kept for ten years after a final decision. Royal Prerogative of Mercy – files are kept for a period of ten years following the last administrative action. Once the retention periods are satisfied, clemency case files are either destroyed, or retained by National Archives of Canada if deemed to be of archival or historical value. PAC Number: 85-018 Related to PR#: NPB NPB 010, 015, 020 TBS Registration: 000507 Bank Number: NPB PPU 010

Information disclosed to federal investigative bodies
Description: This personal information bank contains copies of the written requests or Treasury Board forms 350-56(83/2) (Request for Disclosure to Federal Investigative Bodies) forwarded by investigative bodies listed in schedule II of the Privacy Regulations to the National Parole Board under paragraph 8(2)(e) of the Privacy Act. These nation-wide requests are made for the purpose of law enforcement. This bank also contains the replies to such requests and information related to their processing. Class of Individuals: Individuals who have been involved in investigations under the Criminal Code, federal and provincial statutes or municipal by-laws. Purpose: This information was compiled in compliance with the Privacy Act to enable the National Parole Board to account for the number of requests under paragraph 8(2)(e) of the Privacy Act. Consistent Uses: This bank enables the Privacy Commissioner to audit the procedures utilized, as set out in Treasury Board Guidelines .3.7.5. It is used to verify the conditions of information disclosure to federal investigative bodies under paragraph 8(2)(e) of the Privacy Act and to account to the Privacy Commissioner for the number of access requests from investigative bodies received annually. Retention and Disposal Standards: Information in this bank is retained for two years after a case is resolved. Related to PR#: NPB NPB 050 TBS Registration: 002505 Bank Number: NPB PPU 020

Parole Case Files
Description: Criminal histories; police and court reports; social, financial, educational, medical and psychiatric histories; progress reports, appraisals and recommendations from staff of penal institutions and parole offices; records of Board decisions and related documentation; warrants and certificates; memoranda and letters from other agencies, government departments and the general public; and electromagnetic cassette tapes of hearings with offenders. Class of Individuals: Individuals who are serving or who, at one time, were serving a sentence of imprisonment in a federal penitentiary; individuals who are serving or who, at one time, were serving a sentence of imprisonment in a provincial institution and applied for parole to the National Parole Board. These records may also contain personal information on individuals other than the individual for whom a file was created, e.g. the individual's family, friends or representatives. Purpose: Parole case files are used by the National Parole Board in accordance with the provisions of the Parole Act and other relevant statutes, to determine eligibility and suitability of inmates for full parole, day parole, unescorted temporary absences and, in some cases, escorted temporary absences; to set terms and conditions of all types of conditional releases including mandatory supervision and to review performance on such releases; to consider modifying or reducing conditions of release; to review cases to order detention past their presumptive release date; to consider restoration of earned remission, lost as a result of revocation of parole or mandatory supervision. Consistent Uses: To fulfil its legislative mandate, the National Parole Board is provided with a great deal of personal information about offenders under its jurisdiction. To obtain the information, it is necessary for the Board to routinely share, when warranted, its information with other sources, including, the Correctional Service of Canada, the RCMP, provincial and municipal governments, and members of the general public associated in some way with the individual to whom the information pertains. In addition, the significant public education role that the Board has to play and the wish to demonstrate to the public the fairness of its decisions, allows the general public, where legitimate reasons exist, to be informed of decisions concerning offenders currently under its jurisdiction as well as the general reasons supporting these decisions. However, the information shared under these circumstances is either factual and/or publicly available, and is general enough to ensure sufficient protection against any invasion of privacy of the individual to whom the information pertains. This information is also used for research, statistical, program monitoring and evaluation purposes, and for the purpose of presenting a defence

when court actions are brought against the National Parole Board. Data matching: law enforcement agencies, Correctional Service of Canada and other federal institutions and provincial authorities. Retention and Disposal Standards: Records are kept for 15 years after Warrant Expiry Date or death of the individual and destroyed thereafter except when they are the subject of criminological research. Records deemed to be of archival or historical value are retained by the National Archives of Canada. PAC Number: 85-018 Related to PR#: NPB NPB 025, 030, 035, 040 TBS Registration: 000506 Bank Number: NPB PPU 005

In the course of conducting the programs and activities of the National Parole Board, personal information may be which is not included in the personal information banks described in this entry. Such information contains the names, addresses and opinions of individuals corresponding with the Board on general parole matters.

This type of personal information is scattered throughout the general subject files listed in the program records and is not used for any administrative purpose which might affect individuals. It is normally retrievable only by identifying the appropriate subject file.

The retention for with this information are consistent with those associated with the general subject files in which they are stored.

National Research Council Canada

Chapter 71

General Information

Background

Operating under the National Research Council Act, the National Research Council of Canada (NRC), as the principal research agency of the federal government, carries out a wide spectrum of activities which include the performance of scientific and engineering research in response to national, economic and social needs; the provision of direct financial and technical assistance to industry; the establishment and maintenance of standards; the provision of national scientific and technological facilities for industry and the universities; and the operation of a nationwide network of scientific and technical information services.

Responsibilities

In pursuing the above activities, the Council, on occasion, is involved in the collection and use of personal information. Details of those instances where the information is used to make administrative decisions affecting the individual are described under Personal Information Banks – General Public. Persons wishing access to their own records should include their full name and address, and any additional information specified in each information bank. Where no additional information is indicated, only the full name and address are required.

Personal information in NRC files that is not used for administrative purposes and is normally neither organized nor retrieved by personal identifiers is outlined in the Classes of Personal Information section.

Legislation

- National Research Council Act

Organization

Executive Offices

The President is the Chief Executive Officer of the National Research Council and has supervision over and direction of the work of the Council. The President is assisted by three Vice-Presidents responsible for Physical and Life Sciences, Engineering Research and Technology, and the Industrial Research Assistance Program respectively.

Included in the Executive Offices is the Office of the Secretary General/Director General, Corporate Services. This Office includes the Council Secretariat, the Corporate Secretariat, International Affairs, Corporate Planning and Evaluation, Marketing Services, Information Services, Intellectual Property Services and Legal Services. These groups, which are responsible for helping NRC meet its legal and statutory responsibilities, provide a variety of policy support and administrative services to the governing Council of NRC, Committees of Council and NRC's executive in the following areas: parliamentary and ministerial liaison, corporate planning, policy formulation, program evaluation, provision of legal advice, internal and external audit services, policy support and advice in relation to conflict of interest matters, and policy support and administrative services in relation to statutory obligations such as official languages, access to information and privacy, and in response to the requirements of the Canadian Human Rights Act. In addition the Council Secretariat develops and coordinates policies with regard to ethical aspects of research involving human subjects or animals, and provides secretariat services in support of these policies.

National Research Council Institutes

■ Institute for Advanced Manufacturing Technology (Ottawa)

The Institute for Advanced Manufacturing Technology (IAMT) works to improve the competitiveness of Canada's manufacturing sector. The Institute focuses on the development and application of new and emerging manufacturing processes; on improving the productivity of machines through the integration of processes, equipment, software and sensors; on assessing the impact of new materials and methodologies on product design; and on developing the technologies required to get new products into production more rapidly and economically.

The Institute's R&D directions stem not only from an analysis of Canada's manufacturing capabilities and competitive positioning, but on trends in manufacturing world wide. They show quite clearly that computer-based technologies are forcing the integration of manufacturing disciplines into interactive systems. The survival of manufacturing firms in the 1990s will depend on the degree to which they have control over key aspects of the product cycle, such as design, or have very flexible and adaptable processes. New materials, alloys and methods of altering or engineering the surface properties of materials, are not only being used to improve products, but will drastically change the way products are manufactured.

IAMT will build on its core of manufacturing expertise and research facilities drawn from the Engineering Research and Technology Sector. It will play a key role in creating the critical mass in research necessary to cause change, through collaborations and linkages with high value-added manufacturing firms, systems suppliers, NRC institutes, universities, and other R&D centres.

■ Institute for Aerospace Research (Ottawa)

The Institute for Aerospace Research (IAR) performs research and applies technology in the fields of aerodynamics, structures and aerospace materials, flight systems, and propulsion technologies for clients, and collaborators which include aerospace manufacturing industries, government departments and universities.

Since its beginning, IAR's traditional, primary focus has been the Department of National Defence (DND) to support the country's national security objectives. This relationship has enabled the acquisition and development of major aerospace facilities that are being used to support Canadian industry as well as other government departments.

■ Institute for Research in Construction (Ottawa)

The primary strategic thrust of the Institute for Research in Construction (IRC) is the support of Canada's physical and technological infrastructure as applied to construction activities. IRC's expertise in the provision of safe and secure built facilities, effective urban infrastructure systems, structures and construction materials evaluation, energy efficiency technologies, acoustics research, and the development of codes and standards are critical assets in support of this objective.

Construction activity in Canada was valued at $106 billion in 1990. Although only a small fraction of those services or products is exported, efficient and safe built infrastructure is considered to be a critical factor in economic efficiencies for wealth generation through cost savings in energy, repair and replacement. IRC's close interactions with industry associations, professional societies, and national and international standards bodies provide it with the capability of having a pervasive incremental impact on a highly diverse and fragmented sector of the economy.

Efficient production of high value-added goods and services in a knowledge based economy relies heavily on an efficient physical infrastructure and a productive environment. The technologies needed to support the development of such systems are addressed by IRC in collaboration with its partners and clients with the goal of enhancing Canada's economic competitive positioning.

■ Institute for Engineering in the Canadian Environment (Ottawa)

With the longest coastline in the world (nearly 250,000 kilometres), a boreal climate, and the world's highest per capita rate of energy consumption (a total of over $35 billion annually in liquid and gaseous fossil fuels), the Canada economy faces unique environmental challenges and opportunities.

Accordingly, the Institute for Engineering in the Canadian Environment responds to technological problems associated with Canada's particular geography and climate, thanks to its expertise in coastal, cold regions, and combustion and fluids engineering.

The Institute works with government and industry to provide key technologies to mitigate the effects of Canada's climate and geography on industry and infrastructure, and conversely, to lessen the impacts of industrial processes on the environment. The research is focused on coastal development and protection; ice formation and control; heat exchange and fluid flow processes, and refrigerant substitution; and combustion technologies and corresponding pollution abatement. The work has broad application in resource industries, powerplant technologies, and construction and consulting industries, garnering export opportunities in international markets for many of these technologies. (Note: the Institute for Engineering in the Canadian Environment and the Institute for Environmental Chemistry will be merged on 1 April 1994.)

■ Institute for Environmental Chemistry (Ottawa)

The Institute for Environmental Chemistry (IEC) was created in 1990. Within a year of its formation, the Institute undertook a comprehensive strategic review of Canadian needs and IEC's capabilities in environmental technologies. A plan for the role of IEC into the next century, Vision '99, outlines four main objectives:

- be an internationally recognized centre of environmental research and technology development,
- develop and transfer technology to solve environmental problems,
- raise Canadian industrial capability to meet environmental standards, and
- stimulate investment in R&D.

IEC has a broad base of expertise in chemical sciences, chemical engineering and computer modelling. Research will address critical environmental issues with specific focus on problems having long-term implications for Canadian industry.

The Institute derives significant competitive strength from its scientific leadership in several fields and from the achievements of its highly focused research projects.

This position will be maintained through an emphasis on high quality personnel and facilities. In addition, the Institute will maintain strong linkages with the private and public sector interests so that it can maximize opportunities to serve Canadian needs.

IEC clients and partners include industries who need to reduce their environmental impact, service sector companies who provide environmental solutions to other firms, and supply sector manufacturers who sell equipment to the former groups. IEC also works with federal and provincial environment ministries in support of their own specific initiatives. In certain areas of clear demonstrated benefit to Canada, the Institute will be involved with international environmental research programs. (Note: the Institute for Engineering in the Canadian Environment and the Institute for Environmental chemistry will be merged on 1 April 1994.)

■ Industrial Materials Institute (Boucherville, Quebec)

The Industrial Materials Institute (IMI) located in Boucherville, Quebec focuses on the field of advanced industrial materials, a rapidly emerging critical technology in Canada with a wide range of applications in high value-added manufacturing. The principal activities of the IMI include:

- performance of collaborative R&D with industrial partners,
- promotion of new industrial materials and their use, and
- coordination of R&D activities in materials within NRC.

IMI has four key areas of expertise:

- Instrumentation and sensor technologies,
- Advanced metals and ceramics,
- Industrial polymers, and
- Computer-integrated materials processing.

The Institute's client base covers a wide range of sectors from resources to high value-added manufacturing industries. For example in 1989, IMI formed a pre-competitive research consortium in computer-integrated injection moulding. The medium and long-term implications for firms involved in this technological field and other IMI collaborations could have a significant impact on their competitive performance in world markets.

■ Institute for Information Technology (Ottawa)

The Institute for Information Technology (IIT) takes advantage of its expertise in information technology (IT) as a critical enabling factor in the development of technologies with a wide range of applications.

IIT's core capabilities in the fields of knowledge-based systems, autonomous systems, software technologies, and systems integration are applied in collaboration with the information technology suppliers to Canadian business.

Background studies on the competitive positioning of Canadian industry have demonstrated that the telecommunications and software industries have a particularly strong technological capacity and that private funding of research in these fields is considerably higher than in other sectors of the economy. Therefore and to maximize the impact of its activities, IIT concentrates its efforts on providing IT expertise in research where there is a demonstrated need, and clear potential for wealth generation for the Canadian economy.

■ Institute for Machinery Research (Vancouver, British Columbia)

Machinery research is an emerging technological field that integrates mechanical engineering with electronics, advanced industrial materials, software technology, and systems engineering with particular opportunities for application to machinery and equipment in the resource and transportation industries.

Accordingly, NRC has established an Institute for Machinery Research (IMR) in Vancouver as a collaborative initiative with industry to meet the need for advanced machinery technologies.

■ Institute for Marine Dynamics (St. John's, Newfoundland)

Since its official opening in 1985, in St. John's, the Institute for Marine Dynamics (IMD) has developed internationally recognized facilities and expertise in the field of oceans engineering research and development. The Institute is a leading centre of expertise in four areas:

- Ocean engineering,
- Computational hydrodynamics,
- Naval architecture, and
- Cold ocean transportation technologies.

A number of high value-added global niche markets in Oceans Manufacturing and Services (OMS) have emerged in recent years in which small, innovative Canadian firms are competitive. OMS firms specialize in fields such as cold ocean environmental engineering, subsea systems, and ocean information systems with applications in the oil and gas, and ocean transport sectors. The OMS industry generated revenues totalling $750 million in 1989. R&D expenditures represent 12% of sales.

The East Coast oil and gas sector is forecasted to expand to 20% of Canadian production. In contrast, Canada's shipbuilding and repair industry is in decline. Export markets for Canadian firms in this sector have shrunk considerably since 1982 to 0.25% of world market share ($35 million) in 1989.

Within this context, IMD therefore increasingly concentrates its efforts on enhancing the competitiveness of the emerging OMS sector in Canada and on the East Coast oil and gas industry. The Institute also plays an important role in collaboration with other government departments in ocean environmental protection, marine defence, and ocean transport safety systems. It also works with other NRC institutes to serve Canada's ocean technology community.

■ Centre for Surface Transportation Technologies (Ottawa)

The Centre for Surface Transportation Technologies (CSTT) combines expertise in both vehicle dynamics and road and rail performance technology to work with key suppliers in surface transport-related industries and government departments to provide cost-saving technological solutions to surface transportation problems.

The surface transportation infrastructure of Canada is considered of critical importance to Canadian competitiveness for the rapid and efficient movement of products to market. This factor has become increasingly important with the development of Just-in-Time manufacturing and supply networks in high value-added mass production industries such as automotive parts and assembly. The creation of this Centre is also based on a holistic approach to reducing the enormous costs (close to $5.4 billion annually) associated with the upkeep and replacement of road and rail infrastructure in Canada, caused by the severe Canadian climate and increasing loads in the freight transport industry.

■ Industrial Research Assistance Program (IRAP) (Offices across Canada)

The Industrial Research Assistance Program (IRAP) helps Canadian firms develop their technical capability to compete in domestic and world markets. Through IRAP, companies can access the full resources of a unique technology network, involving some 80 specialized technology centres, as well as NRC laboratories, federal departments, provincial research organizations, universities and colleges, and other professional bodies.

Industrial Technology Advisors across Canada support clients with information, advice, and referrals to help them acquire, develop, and exploit technology. IRAP can also provide limited funding for certain projects.

■ Biotechnology Research Institute (Montreal)

The Biotechnology Research Institute (BRI) conducts research in biochemical engineering, genetic engineering, protein engineering and immunology, in close collaboration with industry, universities and public research agencies. The objective is to establish a strong national program in biotechnology R&D that will have extensive and eventually dominant private sector involvement.

The Institute houses one of the nation's largest facilities for pilot-scale R&D, giving Canadian industry unique access to technical expertise and state-of-the-art equipment. Dozens of projects are in progress with industry and university partners in areas such as biosensor development, vaccine production, anaerobic waste water purification systems, computer programs for protein design, and the culture of plant and mammalian cells.

■ Canada Institute for Scientific and Technical Information (Ottawa)

The Canada Institute for Scientific and Technical Information (CISTI) is this country's largest scientific, technical and medical information resource, serving industry, governments, universities, and individuals with a need for specialized information. Services are based on a comprehensive collection of published information and the expertise of information specialists.

CISTI provides on-line access to Canadian and international scientific and technical data through CAN/OLE, the Canadian On Line Enquiry System.

Its services also include customized literature searches, development of highly specialized databases, reference services and referrals to experts.

CISTI responds to nearly half a million requests for documents annually. Industry is its largest client with government being second, followed by academia and health care facilities.

■ Herzberg Institute of Astrophysics (Ottawa and British Columbia)

As a mandated responsibility, the Herzberg Institute of Astrophysics operates and maintains astronomical observatories as national facilities which are made available to scientists across the country. These are the Dominion Astrophysical Observatory in Victoria and the Dominion Radio Astrophysical Observatory in Penticton, British Columbia. In addition, the Canada-France-Hawaii Telescope atop Mauna Kea in Hawaii, is operated as an international partnership of the National Research Council, France's Centre national de la recherche scientifique and the University of Hawaii, as is the James Clerk Maxwell Telescope, operated by NRC, the United Kingdom and the Netherlands, also in Hawaii.

In support of its mandate, the Institute carries out research in astronomy, solar terrestrial physics, and molecular spectroscopy, and develops new techniques and instrumentation for collecting and assessing data in these fields.

■ Institute for Biodiagnostics (Winnipeg)

The Institute for Biodiagnostics, located in Winnipeg, carries out research to develop techniques and instrumentation for improved diagnosis of disease and monitoring of therapy in humans. Research is performed in partnership with medical schools, universities, other institutes, instrument manufacturers and the pharmaceutical industry. The technology developed as a result of research in the Institute is transferred to the medical instrument industry and medical practice. Research areas include biosystems, magnetic resonance technology, spectroscopy and informatics. Techniques are developed to model and characterize normal and disease states in humans. The principal areas of research are cancer, heart disease, and stroke.

Magnetic resonance technology focuses on development of magnets, spectrometer systems and pulse sequences for localized spectroscopy. A 3 Tesla MR spectrometer/imager is currently being developed. Infrared spectroscopy is used to investigate the molecular basis of structural changes underlying the transformation from healthy to disease states. Mathematical methods and computer software are developed for the improved analysis of instrumentally derived data for medical diagnosis and evaluation of therapy.

■ Institute for Biological Sciences (Ottawa)

The Institute collaborates with industries, universities, research hospitals, and other government departments.

The Institute's innovative research, related primarily to mammalian systems, has resulted in novel techniques for the development of diagnostic and therapeutic agents and methods. The Institute for Biological Sciences focuses on cell biology and immunochemistry to achieve economic impacts through research and development on neurodegenerative diseases and vaccines, diagnostics and immunotherapeutics in partnership with the human and animal health sectors.

■ Institute for Marine Biosciences (Halifax)

The Institute for Marine Biosciences (IMB) conducts research in the fields of marine biology, biological chemistry and analytical chemistry. One of the eleven member Institutes of NRC's Physical and Life Sciences Sector, IMB has a mandate in marine biosciences and supporting disciplines that is national in scope.

The Institute focuses research on utilizing marine resources and protecting the marine environment. Key activities involve investigating the chemical constituents of marine organisms for new natural products. In addition, all sections conduct research on the diarrhetic, paralytic and amnesic shellfish poisoning toxins (DSP, PSP and ASP respectively).

IMB provides innovative generic research and problem-solving expertise to a broadly-based client and collaborator community. Key industrial sectors include aquaculture and fisheries, agrochemicals, pharmaceuticals, instrument manufacture, environmental testing and speciality chemicals.

■ Institute for Microstructural Sciences (Ottawa)

In large part, the Institute for Microstructural Sciences operates on the leading edge of R&D for the information technologies, telecommunications equipment and instruments sectors. Its focus is on optoelectronics and photonics in telecommunications, microelectronics, systems requiring advanced components, equipment and instrumental analysis and control, and computer hardware systems. The future strategy of IMS will be to bring together groupings of companies with interlocking needs and provide a critical mass of R&D. This will ideally encompass both large, multi-national companies and smaller firms.

■ Institute for National Measurement Standards (Ottawa)

NRC has a legal responsibility for metrology, the development and maintenance of standards of physical measurements, and has well-established programs in this area.

The Institute for National Measurement Standards draws together all activities related to metrology to provide a basis for the national measurement system of Canada. R&D is aimed at the realization of high accuracy primary standards compatible with those of other countries and at specific applications of measurement techniques, including contract research and development for individual clients, R&D conducted jointly with industrial partners, and R&D in the national interest.

A high accuracy calibration service is provided to industry, universities, hospitals, clinics and other government departments and agencies. A calibration laboratory assessment service (CLAS) is also provided to enable private and government laboratories to become accredited as calibration laboratories and become members of the Canadian Calibration Network. These services give industry easy access to calibrations facilities with traceability to national and international standards.

The Institute maintains active interaction with the international community, represents Canada in its obligation connected with the Convention du Mètre and acts as the Canadian focal point in the field of measurement science. Since international trade increasingly depends on internationally recognized measurement standards, this Institute provides an important national service, building on a foundation of basic research.

■ Plant Biotechnology Institute (Saskatoon, Saskatchewan)

The Plant Biotechnology Institute (PBI) is Canada's national laboratory for advanced research in biotechnologies for higher plants, especially those important in agriculture, forestry and industrial processing. The Institute focuses on producing new, exploitable biotechnology for Canadian needs, concentrating on techniques of cell and molecular biology, and biological chemistry. Identification of useful genes is a program priority.

PBI's Transgenic Plant Centre permits large-scale propagation and testing of genetically engineered plants in a year-round facility. (A transgenic plant is one which is genetically engineered with a gene from some other species of plant or other life form.)

■ Steacie Institute for Molecular Sciences (Ottawa)

The Steacie Institute for Molecular Sciences was formed in June 1990, and was named in honour of esteemed scientist and former NRC President Dr. E.W.R. Steacie. It is devoted to basic research in molecular science and brings together groups from within NRC for collaborative research with universities, other research organizations, and NRC institutes.

Research programs, which are approved by peer review, include inorganic chemical dynamics, molecular structure and dynamics, organic reaction dynamics, theoretical chemistry, free radical chemistry, and ultrafast phenomena.

The Institute offers a stimulating and fertile environment for collaborative research, providing an attractive entry point into NRC for young scientists. Its programs attract visiting researchers and graduate students from universities and other Canadian and foreign research organizations.

The Institute contributes scientific knowledge to support and reinforce other NRC programs.

■ Research Journals (Ottawa)

To promote Canada's international presence in science and technology, NRC offers scientists and engineers from Canada and elsewhere, journals of high quality in which to communicate their work to their peers and other interested communities.

NRC publishes 13 primary Research Journals: the Canadian Journals of Botany, Chemistry, Civil Engineering, Earth Sciences, Forest Research, Physics, Microbiology, Physiology and Pharmacology, Zoology, the Canadian Geotechnical Journal, Biochemistry and Cell Biology, Genome, and the Journal of Fisheries and Aquatic Sciences.

These highly cited publications feature top quality refereeing and excellent technical production, and attract international contributions and subscriptions. Eight rank in the top 13 per cent of the world's science literature as measured by total citations.

Administration

Description: Correspondence and documents on the operation of the Institute, such as project planning and reports, space, policy planning, program forecasts, travel, seminars, finance, correspondence from external agencies, minutes of Management Committee and Advisory Board meetings. Topics: General correspondence, policies, visits, seminars, staffing, training programs, administration and operation of the Institute, finances, budgets, research and development studies, supplies, divisional project management system, equipment, building, committees. Program Record Number: NRC BRI 135

Operations
Description: Correspondence and documents on the operation of individual laboratories. Topics: General correspondence; agreements; tests; projects and sub-projects; contributions; research and development contracts; programs; seminars; guest workers; students; publications; patents; conferences. Program Record Number: NRC BRI 136

■ Canada Institute for Scientific and Technical Information (CISTI)

Acquisitions
Description: Records contain information related to acquiring publications for the CISTI collection by purchase orders or exchange agreements; automated order systems serials control. Topics: Correspondence, invoices, payment records. Program Record Number: NRC CIS 665

Administration
Description: Correspondence and documents on the operation of the Institute such as project planning and reports; annual planning reviews agreements, finance, personnel. Topics: Administration (policy, general correspondence, enquiries,administration and operation, lectures and talks, seminars and colloquia, training program, interlibrary delivery systems); CISTI programs and services; translation services; equipment and supplies. Program Record Number: NRC CIS 660

Branch Libraries
Description: Information on the internal operations of CISTI branches servicing the NRC and on services extended to external organizations. Topics: Branch libraries (by name) – J.H. Parkin, Environmental Chemistry, National Measurement Standards, Information Technology and Microstructural Sciences, Construction Research, Sussex Drive, Uplands (Ottawa, Ont.), Industrial Materials Research (Montreal, Que.), Dominion Astrophysical (Victoria B.C.), Dominion Radio Astrophysical (Penticton, B.C.), Marine Biosciences, (Halifax, N.S.), Marine Dynamics (St. John's, Nfld.), Plant Biotechnology (Saskatoon, Sask.), Biotechnology, (Montreal, Que.), Biodiagnostics (Winnipeg, Man.). Program Record Number: NRC CIS 670

Cataloguing
Description: Information on automated cataloguing systems, computer applications for information services, subject analysis, union lists, cataloguing rules, procedures and standards. Topics: CISTI operations – policy, general, correspondence, Dortmunder Bibliotheksystem (DOBIS). Program Record Number: NRC CIS 675

Health Sciences Resource Centre
Description: General correspondence on the centre's information services, resources and the publications it produces. Topics: Policy; Advisory Committee to the Health Sciences Resource Centre; Health Science Information in Canada: Libraries; Canadian locations of journals indexed for Medline; Health Sciences information in Canada: associations. Program Record Number: NRC CIS 685

Information Services
Description: Correspondence with tape and database suppliers, and with clients on details of services available, payment procedures, etc.; information on the marketing of CISTI services in Canada, CAN/OLE, CAN/SDI. Topics: Chemical Abstracts Services; Institute of Scientific Information; publications; CAN/SDI tape services; Reference Department; bibliographic databases. Program Record Number: NRC CIS 690

Loans, Photocopies and Translations
Description: Correspondence and documents on the provision of loan and photocopy services outside the NRC and information on the availability of scientific translations from foreign languages. Topics: Information Services – policy, correspondence, loan of CISTI books to outsiders, photocopy service, microfiche copies of technical reports. Program Record Number: NRC CIS 680

Scientific Numeric Databases
Description: On-line retrieval and analysis of scientific numeric data, tape lease for private use, and customized searches. Topics: Infra-red spectral data; crystallographic data; thermochemical data; molecular biology data. Program Record Number: NRC CIS 700

■ Herzberg Institute of Astrophysics

Administration
Description: Correspondence and memoranda pertaining to policies, contracts, contributions, special projects, program forecasts and other administrative matters as they apply to the operation of each laboratory section. Topics: Administration; general correspondence; enquiries; visits; lectures; talks and papers; review of manuscripts and theses for outsiders; seminars and colloquia; unsolicited suggestions and ideas submitted to HIA; exhibits and displays; research – general; miscellaneous work done for outsiders. Program Record Number: NRC HIA 335

Dominion Astrophysical Observatory
Description: Data and general correspondence on astronomy related to observations and research on stars, galaxies and cosmology, testing and construction of instruments, archiving of data. Storage Medium: Photographic plates, computer printouts, magnetic tapes and disks, publications and reprints. Program Record Number: NRC HIA 350

Dominion Radio Astrophysical Observatory
Description: Correspondence, memoranda and astronomical data. The latter are stored on computer printouts, magnetic tapes and computer disks. Topics: General correspondence; operation and administration of the national facility; observing proposals; research concerning the interstellar medium; various other topics in radio astronomy; design and construction of radio telescopes; aperture synthesis techniques. Program Record Number: NRC HIA 341

JCMT Group
Description: Correspondence, memoranda and working papers connected to the topics listed below. Topics: Policy; millimetre and submillimetre astronomy, James Clerk Maxwell Telescope, SIS receivers, planar arrays; interstellar molecules; long baseline interferometry; long-range planning; instrumentation; applications for observing time; data processing. Program Record Number: NRC HIA 340

Optical Components
Description: Data, correspondence, memoranda, and working papers related to the research of the group. Topics: Optical components and systems, optical design, fabrication of components and systems, testing and calibration of aerial survey cameras, testing of optical components and systems. Program Record Number: NRC HIA 537

Solar-Terrestrial Physics
Description: Correspondence and memoranda related to the currently active and discontinued research programs of the section. Topics: Policy; general correspondence; Ottawa River Solar Observatory; solar research; auroral research; auroral radar; airglow; space plasmas in the ionosphere and magnetosphere; aeronomy and upper atmosphere research data; modelling of ionospheric currents and geomagnetic pulsations; cosmic ray research. (Discontinued Topics: meteor research; non-meteoritic sightings; Shuttle and Spacelab experiments.) Program Record Number: NRC HIA 355

Spectroscopy
Description: General correspondence and information related to spectroscopic research. Topics: Policy; infra-red spectra of molecules; electronic spectra; vibrations in polyatomic molecules; spectra of molecular ions. Program Record Number: NRC HIA 370

■ Industrial Materials Institute

Administration
Description: Documents on the operation of the different individual laboratory sections such as project planning and reports, program forecasts, research and development on industrial materials, travel and seminar information, replies to technical enquiries, and records on technical support – i.e., supplies and equipment, safety committee. Topics: Administration; liaison (with associations, industries, foreign countries, universities, federal departments, and provinces); Government Industrial Assistance Programs; finance; budget; operations-general; projects and project evaluations; tests; and technology. Program Record Number: NRC IMR 380

■ Industrial Research Assistance Program (IRAP)

Management
Description: Information on program policy, program planning and coordination, policy proposals and evaluations, cost-benefit reviews, industrial surveys, program promotion, program analysis, methods and procedures. Topics: Policy; general correspondence; enquiries; cooperation with provincial research organizations; industrial research institutes; provincial and trade associations; IRAP newsletter; program forecasts. Program Record Number: NRC IRP 705

Program Delivery
Description: IRAP provides advisory services through its national network of experienced Industrial Technology Advisors. ITAs can help a firm define its technical needs or identify technological opportunities; obtain technical information; solve technical problems; identify sources of appropriate technology and expertise; acquire and adapt technology; or access other programs. IRAP can also provide limited funding for projects designed to enhance a firm's technical capability, under two program elements: Technology Enhancement and Research, Development, and Adaptation. Program Record Number: NRC IRP 720

■ Institute for Aerospace Research

Administration
Description: The files contain material related to the orderly management of all programs and projects in the Institute, contracts and agreements relating to external commitments, correspondence with national and international clients, and material pertaining to IAR involvement in organizations devoted to the aeronautical sciences. Topics: Administration – general correspondence, personnel, procurement, national and international agreements and contracts, publications, technical enquiries, programs and projects, planning, conferences, laboratory operations, policy, aircraft accidents, publicity and inventions, security, AGARD, CAARC; research; tests and work done for outsiders. Program Record Number: NRC IAR 465

Applied Aerodynamics
Description: Information on contracts and agreements with external civil and military agencies; individual projects; documentary material on contract and cooperative research with other departments and agencies; management matters, meetings and conferences. Topics: (Active): General correspondence; aircraft aerodynamics; computational fluid dynamics; manoeuvring aerodynamics; unsteady aerodynamics; propeller/rotor aerodynamics and aeroacoustics; effects of icing on aircraft performance; aerodynamics of helicopter/ship operations; dynamic wind tunnel tests and techniques; nonlinear airloads analysis, oscillatory characteristics of aircraft and components; wind engineering; vehicle aerodynamics; modelling of drift in aerial spray operation; subsonic and transonic engine aerodynamics; cascade and stage testing and computational fluid dynamics analysis of turbomachinery; turbine nozzle heat transfer; operation and maintenance of wind tunnels; wind tunnel test technology; operation and maintenance of turbomachinery test facilities. (Inactive): Aviation security; wind energy research; helium hypersonic wind tunnel; passive dosimeter for UFFI home; trace vapour detection of explosives, and narcotics. Program Record Number: NRC IAR 480

Flight Research

Description: Information on the operation of NRC research aircraft fleet and on research projects in the general areas of flight mechanics and airborne geoscience. Topics: (Active): Flight test techniques and instrumentation; handling qualities and flight dynamics; airborne simulation; flight safety and operational problems; flight recorder playback facilities; guidance, navigation and control of aircraft; pilot-aircraft interface technologies; atmospheric studies; biospheric studies/global change; aeromagnetics; synthetic aperture radar. (Inactive): VTOL/STOL projects; lighter-than-air vehicle technology; agricultural and forestry spray research. Program Record Number: NRC IAR 470

High Speed Aerodynamics

Description: Information on research projects; contracts and agreements with agencies in government and industry; operation and maintenance of wind tunnels; management matters, meetings and conferences. Topics: (Active): Policy; general correspondence; computational fluid dynamics; wings and bodies in transonic flows; advanced airfoil development; high lift systems; viscous flow drag reduction; flutter analysis; stores clearance; wind tunnel test technology. (Inactive): Canadian sounding rockets; flow about cones at supersonic speeds. Program Record Number: NRC IAR 475

Structures, Materials and Propulsion

Description: Information on internal research, external commitments, agreements with other agencies in government and industry, management matters, meetings and conferences. Topics: (Active): Policy; general correspondence; flight loads, fatigue; durability and damage tolerance; acoustic excitation of structures; aerospace applications of metallic and composite materials; structural analysis; structural dynamics; vibration, real-time photogrammetry; impact strength of structures; crack propagation theory of structures; non-destructive inspection of structures and materials, NDI of manufacturing defects and service induced damage; gas turbine engine performance including aerodynamic, thermodynamic and structural factors. (Inactive): Road accidents study group; orthopaedic implants; biomedical materials; Ottawa-Carleton computer traffic control system. Program Record Number: NRC IAR 490

■ Institute for Biodiagnostics

Administration

Description: Documents on the operation of the individual laboratory sections such as project planning and reports, program forecasts, travel and seminar information. Topics: General correspondence; policy; visits; technical enquiries; administration and operation; technical support. Program Record Number: NRC IBD 205

Biosystems

Description: Information on research involving the use of MR imaging and spectroscopy and physiological techniques in studying biomedical problems. Information on the basic care and health of research animals. Topics: Structure and metabolism in intact biological systems; cell metabolism; cancer; cardiology; neurology. Program Record Number: NRC IBD 210

Informatics

Description: Information on multivariate mathematical modelling. Topics: Biomathematics; classification; clustering; pattern recognition; computer modelling; software. Program Record Number: NRC IBD 215

MR Technology

Description: Information on theory and methodology in magnetic resonance imaging and spectroscopy. Topics: Magnetic field gradients, radiofrequency probes, magnetic resonance software. Program Record Number: NRC IBD 220

Spectroscopy

Description: Information on vibrational spectroscopy, infrared and Raman, and its application to biological/biomedical systems. Topics: Proteins, membranes, tissues, metabolism, cancer. Program Record Number: NRC IBD 225

■ Institute for Biological Sciences

Administration

Description: Documents on the operation of the individual laboratory sections such as project planning and reports, program forecasts, travel and seminar information. Topics: General correspondence; policy; visits; technical enquiries; administration and operation; technical support – e.g., supplies and equipment, and safety committee. Program Record Number: NRC IBS 065

Animal Resources

Description: Information on the basic care and health of research animals. Topics: General correspondence and policy on animal care and research. Program Record Number: NRC IBS 075

Cell Systems

Description: Information on the application cell biology and cell technologies to the treatment of neurodegenerative and other specific diseases. Animal and culture models of diseases. Correspondence and memoranda relating to cell regulation and cell culture. Topics: Cellular mechanisms; animal physiology; cell technologies. Program Record Number: NRC IBS 125

Structural Immunobiology

Description: Information on immunology and immunochemistry and antibody engineering. Topics: Antigens; antibodies; pathogenic bacteria; hybridomas; diagnostics; vaccines. Program Record Number: NRC IBS 110

■ Institute for Environmental Chemistry

Administration
Description: Correspondence, memoranda and reports relating to the planning and execution of the Institute's programs. Topics: General correspondence, Administration and Operation, technical inquiries, visits, lectures, seminars, publications, patents, project reports. Program Record Number: NRC IEC 165

Environmental Measurement Science
Description: Correspondence, memoranda and reports on analytical instrumentation and methodologies for environmental contaminants. Topics: General correspondence; quality assurance for environmental analytical measurements, sensors for environmental contaminants, environmental modelling, special analytical methods. Program Record Number: NRC IEC 168

Environmental Process Technology
Description: Correspondence, memoranda and reports on innovative processes and technologies for the solution of specific environmental problems of chemical and resource industries. Topics: General correspondence; membrane separation processes, combustion emissions control, chemical destruction of toxins and the treatment of particulate wastes and sludges. Program Record Number: NRC IEC 167

Environmental Protection Science
Description: Correspondence, memoranda and reports on focused scientific research programs to reduce or prevent the discharge or accumulation of unacceptable waste. Topics: General correspondence; synthetic membrane development, polymer durability and long-term breakdown products, recovery of solid wastes, reduction of toxic components in batteries. Program Record Number: NRC IEC 166

■ Institute for Information Technology

Research Result
Description: This is the output of the Institute and is in the form of technical reports, external publications, correspondence, designs, patents and transfer of technology. Topics: Software Engineering: real time and embedded systems; commercial software products; large scale systems; design recovery; configuration control; software portability, software costing. Knowledged-based systems: expert decision support systems; machine learning; diagnostic systems; information networks; advanced research in AI. Autonomous Systems: Sensor-based robotics; telerobotics; mobile robotics; sensor systems; machine vision; 3-D vision sensors; video-rate 3-D sensors; 3-D data interpretation; 3-D shape and colour reproduction; photonics; optically enhanced computing. Program Record Number: NRC IIT 265

■ Institute for Marine Biosciences

Administration
Description: Correspondence, memoranda, requests, minutes, and technical reports. Topics: Plant engineering; requests (analyses, chemicals and cultures, scientific information); scientific societies and institutes; committees (health and safety, scientific committees); Aquaculture Research Station files (basically engineering and maintenance); unpublished manuscripts; financial services; purchasing; inventory control records; and personnel files. Program Record Number: NRC IMB 035

Analytical Chemistry
Description: General correspondence; seminars; equipment; research files of published and unpublished data relating to: marine chemistry; environmental chemistry; bio-chemistry; chromatographies and spectroscopic methods, particularly mass spectrometry; SCIEX IonSpray LC/MS technology; the Marine Analytical Chemistry Standards Program, including related research, preparation of methods, standards and reference materials and management; high-resolution separation science and application of methods for the quantitative analyses of target organic compounds in marine and other matrices. Topics: Marine and other toxins; peptides; proteins; saccharides; antibiotic residues; metallothioneins and wood preservatives; antibiotics; aromatic pollutants; chlorophenols; biosurfactants; biological mass spectrometry; and fish freshness. Program Record Number: NRC IMB 040

Biological Chemistry
Description: General correspondence; seminars; equipment; research files of published and unpublished data; reprints and information relation to: biology; biological and bio -organic chemistry of micro-organisms and the development of systems for their cultivation; identification of new natural products for use as pharmaceuticals; fine chemicals and agrochemicals; marine toxins; and applications of NMR, FTIR and UV spectroscopy. Topics: Culture of microalgae; production and isolation of fungal toxins; marine fungal collection; toxic plankton; silica in living organisms; culture of diatoms; fermentation; biosynthetic studies; preparative extraction, separation and purification of marine toxins; phosphate metabolism in marine micro-organisms; marine cynobacteria; bacteria; photobioreaction; metabolic pathways; bioactives; marine metabolites; and structural determinations. Program Record Number: NRC IMB 041

Director General's Office
Description: Director General's working files include material on the activities of projects, such as research and development and project planning; travel and conference files; NRC committees (e.g., Committee of Directors General). Topics: General correspondence and files on research and development pertaining to research projects; files by subject interest, general correspondence from various institutes within the NRC, by institute; working files; forward planning. Program Record Number: NRC IMB 030

Marine Biology
Description: General Correspondence; seminars; equipment; research files of published and unpublished

data, reprints and information relating to research on aquaculture and culture development; structure and biosynthesis of constituents of cultured marine organisms; biochemistry; cell biology and cell suspension techniques; molecular evolution; floristics; molecular biology; taxonomy; genetics; biosynthesis; marine natural products; and electron microscopy. Topics: Algae; tank cultivation of seaweeds; plant reproduction/hybrids; phycocolloid polymers; shellfish toxins; enzymes; micro-organisms; proteins; drugs; peptides; biosynthesis; and synthetic techniques. Program Record Number: NRC IMB 045

■ Institute for Marine Dynamics

Ocean Technology

Description: Administration and operational files; general technical correspondence; working and correspondence files containing technical and administrative details of research programs, participation in societies, associations, conferences and interdepartmental government committees and working groups; raw data from model tests and full scale trials; technical reports on internal research projects or work done for external clients. Topics: Administration – policy, general correspondence, visits, lectures, exhibits; conferences and seminars; co-operation and liaison (with other government departments, universities, associations, clubs and societies, and foreign countries); buildings and properties; equipment and supplies; finance and personnel. Operational – policy, general correspondence; research and development (general, for industry and for government); ships, including icebreakers, ferries, fishing vessels, naval vessels; offshore structures; ice properties; computer modelling. Program Record Number: NRC IMD 385

■ Institute for Microstructural Sciences

Acoustics and Signal Processing

Description: Information related to research on sound propagation and environmental studies; sound reproduction; sound and vibration; acoustical technology, devices, measurements and standards; signal processing. Topics: Physical acoustics and noise control, DSP hardware and software, control algorithms, array processing; design and testing of ear defenders; design and calibration of circumaural earphones; noise survey in industrial plants; community noise -industrial, construction, transportation, domestic, outdoor sound propagation, noise legislation, committee on noise; exposure of individuals to noise; e.g. microphone and sound level meter; psychoaccoustics committee on physical acoustics; specific project -adaptive loudspeakers, active noise control beam forming, acoustical data processing, reduction of noise from small engines, and sound level measurement technique. Program Record Number: NRC IMS 510

Administration

Description: Correspondence, memoranda, reports and statistics on the administration and operation of the Institute. Topics: Enquiries; visits to the division; visits and invitations to outside organizations; lectures, talks and papers presented by staff; review of manuscripts and theses; seminars and colloquia; inventions submitted to the Institute patent and licensing activities; finance; equipment and supplies; work done for outsiders. Program Record Number: NRC IMS 505

Advanced Processes

Description: Information on advanced silicon processing technology; focused ion beams; surface and interface physics. Topics: Focused ion beam processing; In-situ silicon processing; Advanced silicon processes; surface and interfaces of semiconductors. Program Record Number: NRC IMS 439

Chemical Characterization

Description: Information on chemical characterization, properties and degradation of materials. Topics: Formation, growth and breakdown of surface films; Auger electron spectroscopy; secondary ion mass spectrometry; X-ray photoelectron spectroscopy; electron energy loss transmission electron microscopy; reflection high energy electron diffraction,and scanning electron microscopy. Program Record Number: NRC IMS 410

Condensed Matter

Description: Information on condensed matter Topics: Solid state phenomena; superlattices; semiconductors; mesoscopic physics; and superconductivity. Program Record Number: NRC IMS 440

Device Physics

Description: Research on the physical processes important to the operation and design of electrical and optoelectronic devices. Topics: Backgating in GaAs Mosfets; electrical characteristics of compound semiconductor devices; modelling of electrical devices, photodetectors and ridge-waveguide lasers; development of two-dimensional numerical modelling tools for devices; transport in heterostructures. Program Record Number: NRC IMS 441

Epitaxy

Description: Information on molecular beam epitaxy. Topics: Controlled growth of semiconductor materials by molecular beam epitaxy and related techniques: characterization of material; (Si/Si[x]Ge) strained layer superlattices; III-V compounds such as GaAs/AlGaAs: lasers LED's diodes transistors. Program Record Number: NRC IMS 455

Micro Fabrication

Description: Information on micro fabrication. Topics: Prototype test structures and devices; semiconductor processing; lithography; metallization; insulator deposition; laser and modulator fabrication; focused ion beam processing. Program Record Number: NRC IMS 460

Optoelectronics Devices

Description: Information on optoelectronic devices; high-power pulsed lasers; solid-state lasers, modulators, waveguide amplifiers, optoelectronic integrated circuits, optical switching. Program Record Number: NRC IMS 462

Quantum Physics

Description: Information on quantum electronics; quantum transport. Topics: Photon echo modulation; optical hole-burning memories; electronic and optical properties of semiconductors; magneto-transport and magneto-optical properties of the two-dimensional electron gas; quantum Hall effect; Fractional Quantum Hall effect; transient behaviour of hot electrons. Nonostructures; Quantum well infra-red detectors; Resonant tunnelling. Program Record Number: NRC IMS 461

Thin Films

Description: Information on thin film coatings and optical thin films. Topics: Policy; correspondence; thin film coatings and optical thin films; Superconducting thin films. Program Record Number: NRC IMS 535

■ Institute for National Measurements Standards

Acoustical Standards

Description: The Group conducts research and development in the field of acoustical standards. It maintains the primary national standards of acoustics, and provides traceability for regulatory agencies, government departments and industry. As well, the Group provides a calibration service in the field of ultrasound. Program Record Number: NRC INM 535

Electrical Power Measurements

Description: This group is involved in the development of new state-of-the-art instrumentation and measurement techniques. These include revenue meters for electric utilities and calibration facilities for equipment such as instrument transformers, active/reactive power and energy meters under sinusoidal/nonsinusoidal waveform conditions, high voltage capacitors, high current resistors and shunts, and high voltage loss measuring systems transformers and inductive reactors. The group is also involved in the development of new diagnostic measurement techniques and instrumentation to assess the operating conditions of electric power apparatus in service and to predict their remaining life. An important element of this program is the development of new and improved measuring techniques and instrumentation to meet and anticipate the measurement requirements of the electrical power industry. Program Record Number: NRC INM 525

Electrical Standards

Description: Electrical standards of measurements play a basic role in maintaining compatibility, coherence and safety in all services connected to the field of electricity. In fact electricity touches essentially all sectors of the economy. The proper monitoring of electrical energy consumption at either the individual or the industrial level depends on the use of well calibrated reference standards. The fabrication of electrical instruments, their testing and the marketing of these instruments require internationally accepted electrical standards. These standards are developed and maintained by the Electrical Standards Group. The group is involved in the ac, dc and rf fields. It does basic research on primary standards of voltage and resistance using the Josephson and Quantum Hall effect and develops techniques and instruments connected with ac and rf measurements. The group also maintains a calibration service for high accuracy secondary standards and top of the line instruments. Program Record Number: NRC INM 530

Ionizing Radiation Standards

Description: Ionizing radiation plays a major role in modern medical practice, both for diagnostic purposes (e.g. CT scanners, x-rays) and for therapeutic purposes primarily in cancer therapy. The monitoring of radiation exposure is also very important in many industrial environments particularly in nuclear power production and uranium mining. In order to provide a degree of accuracy that ensures that radiation exposure levels are properly monitored and that therapy is done with maximum efficiency without endangering life, industrialized countries provide reference standards for the calibration of instruments or devices used in these various sectors. The national laboratories in charge of these standards make sure that they are accurate by comparison with those of other countries. This is done under the umbrella of the Bureau International des Poids et Mesures. This important activity which takes place on a continuous basis ensures uniformity of the national standards with the international measurement standards system. In Canada the standard in this field is provided by the Ionizing Radiation Standards Group of the NRC. The Group develops, maintains and promulgates Canada's primary measurement standards for ionizing radiation and provides calibration service as well as the link to the international measurement system. Program Record Number: NRC INM 555

Length Standards

Description: Length is one of the fundamental quantities we use to describe the physical world. The ability to measure length accurately is basic to virtually all scientific, engineering, manufacturing and commercial endeavours. It is of course important that everyone use the same standard or unit of length, which, in the modern world is the metre. In each country a national standards laboratory is mandated to generate the metre according to internationally accepted practice, and to disseminate the unit of length at the highest level of accuracy by calibration of clients' secondary standards. In Canada this task is carried out by the Length Standards Group at NRC. The group also does research on laser stabilization and the measurement of optical frequencies which are required for the highest precision in length measurement and for improvements in length standards. Program Record Number: NRC INM 515

Mass Standards

Description: Mass standards are based on the primary SI unit of mass, the kilogram, from which are derived the unit of pressure (the pascal), force (the newton) and density. These standards are indispensable to national and international trade and commerce, aerospace and electronic industries, and bulk transport systems for materials in the fluid and solid states. The group maintains and propagates the kilogram in the embodiment of the Canadian national prototype kilogram, which is directly calibrated in terms of the International Prototype Kilogram. Program Record Number: NRC INM 536

Photometry and Radiometry

Description: Radiometry (measurement of optical radiant energy) and photometry (measurement of optical [luminous] radiant energy as sensed by the human eye) are important to a large part of the public, manufacturing, and service sectors. Recent rapid expansion of electro-optical, photodetector, and optical fibre communications industries have produced a concurrent demand for more accurate and wider ranging radiometric measurements. It has been estimated that one-quarter of electricity consumption is for lighting; the enormous potential benefit of increased efficiency through improved photometric standards is obvious. Transportation (highway, air, marine) depends heavily upon visual signals and lighting where photometric energy and colour are of prime importance. Public health and safety require accurate measurement of such quantities as ultraviolet, laser, and phototherapeutic radiation levels. Other areas requiring photometric, radiometric, or colorimetric standards include paint, textile, and plastics industries; pulp and paper; television; agriculture; meteorology; environment; military and space agencies. To serve this wide and varied clientele, the Photometry and Radiometry section has developed and maintains the SI base unit of luminous intensity (candela) and basic standards for the measurement of light, colour, and optical radiation in the wavelength range from 200 nm to 50,000 nm. Program Record Number: NRC INM 540

Thermometry

Description: Temperature plays a most important role in everyday life as well as in the many specialized activities of industrialized countries. Processes such as those concerned with advanced materials preparation and growth, fabrication, analytical processes and diagnosis require either good temperature control or accurate temperature determination. Other important and diverse fields that require an excellent knowledge of temperature conditions include biology; biotechnology and clinical studies, analysis and diagnosis; aircraft industries; metallurgical industries; food industries, chemical industries; oceanography; pharmaceutical production. In order to ensure for these activities an accurate temperature scale, industrialized countries support a national laboratory which maintains accurate reference standards and provides a high accuracy calibration service based upon an International Temperature Scale. In Canada this role is fulfilled by the thermometry group of the NRC which does basic research in the field of thermometry, contributes to international activities in that field, and ensures through intercomparisons that its standards are compatible with those of other countries. Program Record Number: NRC INM 550

Time and Frequency

Description: The demands of science have pushed the capability for accurate time and frequency determination to a very high level that can meet almost all requirements. Accuracy levels are available that might appear excessively high for everyday applications, yet provide the basis of many modern systems such as navigation and communication, as well as the basis of measurements in diverse fields such as radio astronomy, geodesy, length measurements, voltage measurement and electronics manufacturing and testing. The Time Standards group designs, builds and maintains primary and secondary atomic clocks that satisfy the needs of Canadian organizations for compliance with the most stringent international standards. Frequency calibrations of the highest level of accuracy are done at the time laboratory. Signals that permit frequency calibration at lower levels are disseminated across Canada, as are signals giving official time for Canada – which is also derived at NRC from the atomic clocks. Program Record Number: NRC INM 545

■ Institute for Research in Construction

Acoustics

Description: Information on field measurements of the sound absorption and transmission properties of buildings and building elements, and research on vibration related to experimental studies of the response of actual structures under dynamic excitations, such as those provided by wind and road traffic. Topics: Development of impact tests for floors; acoustical test methods; development of noise criteria; insulation of buildings from external noise; determination of dynamic response characteristics of structures; measurement of sound power of noise sources; outdoor noise propagation; reverberation room acoustics; vibration problems in buildings; earthquake engineering; commercial test reports. Program Record Number: NRC IRC 640

Administration

Description: Personnel data on all members of staff, financial reports, purchasing documents, travel authorizations, correspondence and documents on the shops and building up-keep. Program Record Number: NRC IRC 595

Building Materials

Description: Information on the characterization and evaluation of the performance of materials such as concrete, sealants, paints, plastics, roofing materials and clay brick through the use of chemical, physical and mineralogical techniques. Topics: The performance of clear and pigmented coatings; basic engineering properties of concrete; durability to frost-action in concrete and other porous materials; properties and performance of joint materials; characterization of building materials by their microstructure and composition; processes of degradation of organic building materials; performance of concretes as related to the chemical processes in cements; physical and mechanical properties of repair systems; performance of Canadian aggregate; performance of concrete in the presence of aggressive solutions; weathering factors and accelerated test methods for assessing durability of organic building materials; durability of cover and absorber materials for solar collectors; physics of coating formation and adhesion, and the durability of structural clay products. Program Record Number: NRC IRC 600

Building Performance
Description: Information on the evaluation of the thermal characteristics and performance of materials, components and systems leading to standards, product development and proper design; the development of techniques for monitoring the movement of these products within the building envelope; and other aspects of the products. Topics: Energy calculations; energy auditing; lighting practice; efficient lighting energy use; smoke control in tall buildings; passive solar heating; ventilation and air movement in buildings; thermal and hygric properties of materials, hermetically sealed multiple glazing; thermal performance of walls and ceilings; thermal performance of windows; airtightness of walls; development of remedial measures for institutions and commercial establishments; thermal insulation materials; properties and emissions; techniques for measuring particulate materials in air. Program Record Number: NRC IRC 620

Building Structures
Description: Information on the introduction of "limit states design" into Canadian structural codes and standards, and the development of improved serviceability criteria based on risk considerations, including the investigation into the variability of masonry strength. Topics: Case histories of structural failures and problems due to differential movement in buildings; structural safety and serviceability; snow loads on roofs; wind effects on buildings and structures; failure of structures and progressive collapse; masonry research; wind tunnel studies of buildings; and others. Program Record Number: NRC IRC 610

Canadian Construction Materials Centre
Description: Information on the suitability for use of construction materials, systems or services. Topics: Technical information and advice to manufacturers and suppliers of construction materials, systems and services on how to obtain the evaluation of these products and services with respect to their suitability for use; technical information and advice to architects, specification writers, engineers and regulators on the suitability of use of construction materials, systems and services; information to the construction industry on laboratories which conduct testing of construction materials, systems and services; assistance to Canadian exporters of construction-related products and services on the evaluation requirements of these products and services by other countries; replies to inquiries and requests for interpretation of evaluation reports and listings; technical information and advice to Canadian Commission on Construction Materials Evaluation. Program Record Number: NRC IRC 657

Codes and Standards
Description: Information on topics related to the operation of the Codes Technical Section, the Codes Secretarial Service and the Editorial, Translation, Distribution and Records Units. Topics: Technical information and advice to code committees; code requirements for committee consideration; replies to code enquiries and requests for interpretation; seminars and conferences on the NBC and NFC; the continuing review of the code documents in the light of developments in building design and technology to determine the areas that may require expanding or updating to keep them current; technical studies to provide information needed in preparing new or improved code requirements. Program Record Number: NRC IRC 615

Director's Office
Description: Documents on the operation of the individual sections, advisory bodies, research and development studies and seminar or workshop information. Topics: The American Society for Testing and Materials; International Standards Organizations; CIB; Construction Industry Development Council; minutes of the Board of Directors; NRC five-year plan; sectional program and budget submissions; divisional annual reports; proceedings of council; research and development for engineering in cold regions; divisional planning committee notes; and Canada Mortgage and Housing Corporation – Institute for Research in Construction reports. Program Record Number: NRC IRC 590

Fire Research
Description: Information on the development and revision of standard methods of fire tests and research activities, which include fire performance on structural components, flammability of materials, products of combustion, growth of fire, and the influence of fire risks on the overall design of buildings. Topics: Thermal decomposition of polymers; behaviour of building components in fire; evaluation of fire behaviour of plastic components; flammability studies; fire performance information; production and movement of smoke in fire; fire protection features of buildings; development of fire; combustion of organic materials; toxicity of combustion products; fire resistance safety factors; restraint and fire severity; and commercial test reports. Program Record Number: NRC IRC 625

Industry Liaison
Description: Information on the activities of the Library, the Publications Service, Seminar Service, Network & Client Services. Topics: Reference service; loans; information retrieval; periodical subscriptions; acquisitions; translation requests; Manual on Metric Building Drawing Practice; requests for information; preparation of publications and reports. Program Record Number: NRC IRC 650

Infrastructure
Description: Information on cold climate effects on civil infrastructure. Numerical modelling, laboratory testing and full scale field studies and demonstrations. Topics: Development and optimization of construction techniques, frost action in soils, buried municipal services, frost heave, construction in permafrost regions, thermal conductivity of soils. Program Record Number: NRC IRC 630

System Support Unit
Description: Information on the Institute's calibration and standards facility, the instrument pool for loans, the maintenance and repair shop and the co-ordination and advisory services provided to the Institute. Program Record Number: NRC IRC 635

■ Plant Biotechnology Institute

Biological Chemistry
Description: Information on the biology and chemistry of abscisic acid and its analogues. Topics: Correspondence; documents; protocols; laboratory reports; synthetic and analytical methods, contracts; charts; documents. Program Record Number: NRC PBI 575

Brassica Biotechnology
Description: Information on cell and gene technology as applied to genetic improvement of canola (rapeseed) as well as microspore culture. Topics: Correspondence, documents, protocols; laboratory reports, contracts; plant regeneration from cells, genetic transformation of plants. Program Record Number: NRC PBI 579

Cereal Biotechnology
Description: Information on cell and gene technology as applied to genetic improvement of wheat and barley as well as cryoselection for improved cold tolerance. Topics: Correspondence; documents, contracts, protocols; laboratory reports; plant regeneration from cells; cryopreservation; genetic transformation. Program Record Number: NRC PBI 580

Conifer Biotechnology
Description: Information on cell and gene technology as applied to genetic improvement of Canadian conifers as well as micropropagation. Topics: Correspondence; documents; protocols;laboratory reports, contracts; plant regeneration from cells; genetic transformation. Program Record Number: NRC PBI 586

Legume Biotechnology
Description: Information on cell and gene technology as applied to genetic improvement of grain legumes. Topics: Correspondence; documents; protocols; laboratory reports; contracts; plant regeneration from cells, genetic transformation. Program Record Number: NRC PBI 570

Regulation of Gene Expression
Description: Information on vector construction, gene promoters, gene fusion, developmentally and tissue specific expression of genes; on assembly of functional amino acids assisted by chaperonins. Topics: Correspondence; documents, protocols, laboratory reports, contracts, charts, DNA analysis and synthesis. Program Record Number: NRC PBI 585

Seed Oil Modification
Description: Information on the enzymology and genetic manipulation of storage lipid accumulation in cruciferous plants. Topics: Correspondence; protocols; laboratory reports; contracts; chemical analysis; protein sequencing. Program Record Number: NRC PBI 589

Stress Tolerance Genes
Description: Information on cell and gene technology as applied to improvement of salt tolerance, cold tolerance and disease resistance in plants. Topics: Correspondence; documents; protocols; laboratory reports; contracts; DNA analysis and synthesis. Program Record Number: NRC PBI 588

Support Services
Description: Information on on-going services to research inside and outside PBI. Records of the Administrative Office, the Research Illustration Group, the chemical analysis groups, the DNA analysis group, the Transgenic Plant Center, Plant Engineering Services and Purchasing are included. Topics: Correspondence; personnel and budget documents; progress reports and records of research; published research papers; records of operation of magnetic resonance and mass spectroscopy; records of building facilities and equipment; purchasing orders. Program Record Number: NRC PBI 560

■ Research Journals

Research Journals
Description: Information on the publication of the NRC Research Journals. Topics: Administration; space and accommodation; authority and policy on publications; general correspondence; advisory committees; typesetting, printing, and distribution services; translation of abstracts; continuing agreements; abstracting of publications; and manuscripts for publication in the NRC Research Journals. Program Record Number: NRC RSJ 735

■ Steacie Institute for Molecular Sciences

Inorganic Chemical Dynamics
Description: The group uses laser, molecular beam and surface techniques to study chemical dynamics emphasizing the chemistry and physics of coordinatively unsaturated metal centres, including atoms, radicals, clusters and van der Waals complexes. Current projects include: 1) preparation and properties of naked and derivatized metal clusters; 2) reaction kinetics of metal-centred reactions; 3) high resolution optical spectroscopy of small inorganic radicals, and 4) scanning tunnelling microscopy. Program Record Number: NRC SIM 205

Molecular Selectivity
Description: The group is concerned with the application of physical and synthetic organic chemistry to the understanding of the initiation, impact, and control of free radical processes in living systems. Included are studies of biological autooxidation and its prevention by natural and synthetic antioxidants, of biokinetics and of metabolism of vitamin E. Features stressed are the identification and understanding of the underlying fundamental mechanisms, and relevance to medical diseases and disorders (cancer, heart disease, ischemia-reperfusion injury). Additionally, some non-radical research activity is focused on the mechanism of action of cholesterol esterases. Program Record Number: NRC SIM 195

Molecular Structures and Dynamics
Description: Characterization of naked metal and metal-containing clusters in condensed phases by ESR, NMR, ultraviolet, vibrational and photoelectron spectroscopies; studies of small metal-cluster chemical reactivity in relation to catalysis; studies of fullerenes and their reactivity. Study of order, disorder, molecular motion and structural evolution in solids, particularly host-guest supramolocular systems, vapour-deposited and high-pressure amorphized materials, using NMR and vibrational spectroscopies, calorimetry, diffraction and the latest techniques of computational chemistry. Program Record Number: NRC SIM 200

Organic Reaction Dynamics
Description: The group performs spectral, kinetic and thermodynamic characterization of short-lived organic and organometallic reaction intermediates in condensed phases. It studies mechanism and dynamics of free radical electron transfer reactions; photoprocesses in heterogeneous media; pico– and nanosecond laser flash photolysis with uv-visible and infrared transmission and uv-visible diffuse reflectance. Other techniques include ultrafast electrochemical measurements; photomodulation voltametry, microelectrode cyclic voltametry; and photoacoustic calorimetry. Program Record Number: NRC SIM 220

Theoretical Chemistry
Description: The group studies the dynamics of elementary chemical reactions and relaxation processes in molecules, clusters and crystals; specific examples are hydrogen tunnelling, isomerization and radiationless transitions. These calculations are based on quantum-chemically computed vibrational force fields in ground and excited states and on the analysis of molecular spectra. In addition the group studies reaction kinetics in inhomogeneous systems. Program Record Number: NRC SIM 225

Ultrafast Phenomena
Description: Using nonlinear optical techniques, the group develops lasers with duration as short as a few optical periods. The application of these sources to atomic and plasma physics problems is a major component of the current research. The group is also developing methods to time resolve, and perhaps control, the photodissociation of simple molecules. Program Record Number: NRC SIM 530

Personal Information Banks

■ Council Secretariat

Industrial Research Assistance Program
Description: The records in this bank are used to support proposals for financial assistance to cover the costs of salaries for company research staff engaged in approved projects. Participating companies provide the research facilities and other expenses involved in the project and retain all titles or have rights to access to the results of the jointly-funded research. Class of Individuals: Directly-related employees of companies that submit proposals for financial assistance through this program. Purpose: To determine the amount of financial contribution to the company if the proposal is accepted. Retention and Disposal Standards: Accepted proposals are retained for 20 years. Unaccepted proposals are retained for 5 years. TBS Registration: 001683 Bank Number: NRC PPU 026

Inventions: Submissions by Private Individuals
Description: This bank contains information on inventions submitted by individuals for assessment and scientific comments and patent protection advice provided by the National Research Council. Information includes the original submission, evaluation by scientific personnel where expertise was available, and the reply to the enquirer. Class of Individuals: Members of the general public who request advice about their inventions. Purpose: To carry out an assessment and provide scientific comment and advice on inventions submitted by the general public. Retention and Disposal Standards: Records are retained for a period of two years and are then destroyed. TBS Registration: 000932 Bank Number: NRC PPU 010

National Research Council and Committee Membership
Description: This bank contains background information, including the educational background, affiliation, publication list, and professional experience of individuals nominated for service on Council and its associated committees. Class of Individuals: Past and current members of Council and members of committees of Council. Purpose: To assist in the selection and appointment of members of the National Research Council and its committees. Retention and Disposal Standards: Records of persons who are or have been members of the Council and/or its committees are retained for 30 years and then transferred to the Archives Branch of the National Archives of Canada. TBS Registration: 000931 Bank Number: NRC PPU 005

Personal Letters of Recommendation by National Research Council Personnel Relating to Non-Staff Members
Description: This bank contains requests for recommendations and copies of letters of recommendation made by staff members for non-staff individuals. Class of Individuals: Members of the scientific and academic communities who ask for letters of recommendation. Purpose: To provide letters of recommendation to members of the scientific and academic communities. Retention and Disposal Standards: Files are retained for two years and are then destroyed. TBS Registration: 000933 Bank Number: NRC PPU 015

Requests to Access Personal Information

Description: This bank contains requests for access to personal information contained in personal information banks administered by the National Research Council. Class of Individuals: Individuals who have applied for access to personal information banks administered by the National Research Council. Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to verify the identity of individual applicants and to process requests. Consistent Uses: To prepare statistics for annual reports required under the Privacy Act. Retention and Disposal Standards: Records are retained for a period of two years and are then destroyed. TBS Registration: 000943 Bank Number: NRC PPU 075

Accounts Receivable

Description: These files record debit and credit entries in connection with National Research Council accounts receivable. Files include information on financial transactions and outstanding balances. Class of Individuals: Members of the general public who have purchased goods and services offered by the National Research Council. Purpose: In addition to recording payment, records are used to follow up on overdue accounts. Retention and Disposal Standards: Records are retained for six fiscal years and are then destroyed. TBS Registration: 000937 Bank Number: NRC PPU 045

Contracts between NRC and Individuals

Description: This bank contains the initial proposal and submission, evaluations and correspondence, details of contract, financial transactions and interim or final reports. Class of Individuals: Members of the general public who submit proposals for work to be performed for the National Research Council. Purpose: To evaluate proposals, to process contracts, and to provide information for the verification of invoices, payments and scientific monitoring, and to administer contracts. Retention and Disposal Standards: Records are retained for six fiscal years after termination of the contract or two years after rejection of the proposal and are then destroyed. TBS Registration: 000939 Bank Number: NRC PPU 055

Deposit Accounts

Description: These files contain a record of credit balances of individuals in account with the National Research Council for the purchase of goods and services. Class of Individuals: Members of the general public who have established a deposit account for the purchase of scientific and technical information. Purpose: Files are maintained for the purpose of recording debit and credit entries against deposit accounts established by private individuals. Retention and Disposal Standards: Records are retained for six fiscal years and are then destroyed. TBS Registration: 000938 Bank Number: NRC PPU 050

Employment Applications

Description: This bank contains information on candidates available for employment at the National Research Council when vacancies arise. Records contain letters, completed application forms, applicant resumes, comments of interviewer, and letters of reference. Class of Individuals: Members of the general public who apply for employment at the National Research Council. Purpose: To select candidates for vacancies at the National Research Council. Retention and Disposal Standards: Records are retained for two years and are then destroyed. TBS Registration: 000940 Bank Number: NRC PPU 060

Research Associateship Program: Applicant Inventory

Description: Records contain application forms, curricula vitae, academic records, publications, letters of recommendation, personal characteristics and employment history. Class of Individuals: Individuals who have made application to the National Research Council for research associateships. Purpose: To select recipients of NRC research associateships. Retention and Disposal Standards: Records are retained for two years and are then destroyed. TBS Registration: 000941 Bank Number: NRC PPU 065

Secondments and Exchanges Between the National Research Council and Outside Organizations
Description: This bank contains requests for secondment or exchange of personnel and memoranda leading to the approval or rejection of requests. Class of Individuals: Persons other than NRC employees who have been involved in exchanges or loans. Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to provide documentation for the administration of exchanges and loans of personnel. Information is used to make decisions on these exchanges and loans. Retention and Disposal Standards: Records are retained for three years after the agreement ceases or after rejection of the proposal and are then destroyed. TBS Registration: 000942 Bank Number: NRC PPU 070

Description: Information in this bank is provided by the purchaser of publications, subscriptions, information or computerized services. Class of Individuals: Scientific community, contractors, architects,engineers and technicians. Purpose: To provide individuals with information on prepaid subscriptions, publications, or computerized services, and to assess and collect charges. Consistent Uses: This information is used to record financial transactions and update computerized mailing lists. Retention and Disposal Standards: Records are retained for a period of two years and are then destroyed. TBS Registration: 000944 Bank Number: NRC PPU 080

The personal information contained in this class is distributed across a wide range of subject files. It is not used for administrative purposes, and is normally neither arranged nor retrieved by personal identifiers. The most common types of personal information contained in this class are name, address, and, in some cases, affiliation, educational background and experience. The information was collected through general enquiries, complaints, requests for assistance, and personal views and opinions directed by the public to the scientific laboratories; to the Canada Institute for Scientific and Technical Information; to the Industrial Research Assistance Program regarding its assistance programs; and to the Council's supporting administrative branches such as Personnel and Administrative Services, Contract Services, Public Relations and Information Services, and External Relations. Individuals wishing to access information relating to themselves should provide specific details regarding:
(1) the institute, branch, or individual to whom the correspondence was addressed;
(2) the approximate date of the correspondence;
(3) the subject matter;
(4) the name of the program (if applicable); and
(5) the file reference number, if available.

The retention periods for this class of personal information vary and are provided in the records schedules of the general subject files in which the information is stored.

National Transportation Agency of Canada
Chapter 72

General Information

Background

The National Transportation Agency (NTA) is responsible for the economic regulation of transportation in Canada. Established on January 1, 1988 by the National Transportation Act, 1987, the NTA replaces the Canadian Transport Commission that existed for 20 years under the previous National Transportation Act. The NTA is an independent agency that reports to Parliament through the Minister of Transport.

The NTA has all the powers, rights and privileges of a superior court in Canada with respect to matters within its jurisdiction.

Responsibilities

The objective of the National Transportation Act, 1987 is to encourage a safe, economic, efficient, accessible, and adequate transportation system to serve the needs of shippers and travellers, including persons with disabilities.

The Agency performs all the functions vested in it by the National Transportation Act, 1987, and related legislation (principally, the Railway Act, the Western Grain Transportation Act, the Atlantic Region Freight Assistance Act, the Maritime Freight Rates Act, the Shipping Conferences Exemption Act, the Pilotage Act, the Railway Relocation and Crossing Act and the Railway Safety Act).

Legislation

- Atlantic Region Freight Assistance Act
- Canadian National Railways Act
- Coasting Trade Act
- Energy Supplies Emergency Act
- Government Railways Act
- Maritime Freight Rates Act
- Motor Vehicle Transport Act, 1987
- National Transportation Act, 1987
- Pilotage Act
- Railway Act
- Railway Relocation and Crossing Act
- Railway Safety Act
- St. Lawrence Seaway Authority Act
- Shipping Conferences Exemption Act, 1987
- Western Grain Transportation Act

Organization

The National Transportation Agency consists of a maximum of nine permanent members, including the Chairman and the Vice-Chairman. All are appointed by the Governor in Council. At least one member must represent each of the regions of Canada: Pacific, Prairie, Ontario, Quebec and Atlantic. Up to six additional members may be temporarily appointed by the Governor in Council.

The powers and duties of the Agency are divided among: Air and Accessible Transportation Branch, Rail Branch, Marine, Trucking and Regional Offices Branch, Planning, Review and Quality Management Branch, Legal Services, Secretariat and Communications Branch, Corporate Services Branch, and Internal Audit Directorate.

■ Air and Accessible Transportation Branch

The Branch is responsible for the administration of the licensing system for Canadian and foreign air carriers operating within, to or from Canada. It also administers and participates in the negotiation of international air agreements including the regulation of international air tariffs. Regional Field Investigators, responsible for the enforcement of Agency regulations and licence conditions, are located in Vancouver, Winnipeg, Toronto, Montreal and Moncton. Other areas of Branch responsibility include: the review of acquisitions and mergers involving Canadian air transportation undertakings and the handling of complaints. The Branch is also responsible for conducting inquiries and for the regulation of transportation facilities, equipment and services provided within Canada for all federally regulated modes of transport to travellers with disabilities.

■ Rail Branch

The Branch supports the NTA's regulatory functions with respect to the rail transportation mode in Canada. The Branch is responsible for the evaluation of proposals to rationalize rail networks and the evaluation of applications to alter existing rail infrastructure. It is also responsible for the provision of services to assist in resolving economic disputes between carriers and users, including formal and informal investigations, rail competitive access provisions (competitive line rates and interswitching), mediation and final offer arbitration. The Branch also monitors rail investment and expenditures for western grain transportation and manages subsidy and rate programs that determine appropriate compensation for rail services provided by eligible transportation companies. Other areas of responsibility include acquisitions and mergers involving rail transportation undertakings and the issuance of rail certificates of fitness or of public convenience and necessity.

■ Marine, Trucking and Regional Offices Branch

The Branch is responsible for the licensing of northern marine resupply services; the assessment of waivers with respect to the coasting trade; pilotage tariffs; the regulation of northern marine tariffs; and the administration of the Shipping Conferences Exemption Act, 1987. It is also responsible for the functions and responsibilities of the regional offices, and for the coordination of the programs administered by them.

■ Planning, Review and Quality Management Branch

The Branch is responsible for strategic planning; preparation of annual reviews of transportation in Canada for the Minister and Parliament; implementation and coordination of a Total Quality Management program throughout the NTA. The annual reviews provide comprehensive coverage of changes in structure, service levels, prices and competition in all modes of the transportation industry, together with an assessment of related effects on transportation users. As of 1991-92, the mandate to continue these reviews was extended by the Minister of Transport to 1993. However, the National Transportation Act Review Commission recommended (recommendation no. 43) that the Agency continue to carry out these reviews after 1993.

■ Legal Services, Secretariat and Communications Branch

Legal Services is responsible for providing legal advice to Agency members and staff. It also acts as the Agency's legal representative at meetings, conferences, public hearings, inquiries, and, when required, at judicial proceedings in the Federal and Supreme Courts. It is also responsible for drafting and processing regulations in accordance with government policy. The Secretariat is responsible for recording Agency decisions and orders; and editing, reviewing, producing and issuing decisions, orders, reports and notices. It also plans Agency meetings, maintains parliamentary liaison, administers public hearings and inquiries, coordinates all translation services as well as ministerial and executive correspondence, and produces the quarterly ministerial briefing notes. Communications provides information to the public and the news media on Agency decisions and orders as well as on the programs administered by the Agency.

■ Corporate Services Branch

The Branch is responsible for the design and operation of the Agency's management processes and related information systems; it also provides comprehensive services in support of Agency programs in the areas of informatics, records management, finance and administration. It is responsible for developing and implementing personnel, administration and official languages policies, systems and programs that will assist the Agency. It also ensures that the management of human resources is in accordance with policies established by the central agencies.

■ Internal Audit Directorate

The Directorate is responsible for a comprehensive internal audit program. The intent of the program is to provide the Chairman and senior management of the NTA with an independent assessment of and recommendations on the efficiency, economy and effectiveness of management policies and practices, and on compliance with the Agency's legislative mandate and central agency directives.

Information Holdings

Program Records

■ Air and Accessible Transportation Branch

Accessible Transportation
Description: Information relating to the regulation of, and complaints related to transportation facilities, equipment and services provided within Canada to travellers with disabilities and elderly persons. Topics: Co-operation and liaison with associations and various levels of government; committee and conference participation; service complaints; regulations on fares and conditions of carriage; accessibility standards; public awareness and education programs; procedural and attitudinal training; monitoring programs; and various studies, surveys and projects. Program Record Number: NTA AIR 061

Domestic Operations
Description: Information relating to the administration of the licensing system for Canadian air carriers operating within Canada; and the review of proposed mergers and acquisitions of Canadian air transportation undertakings. Topics: Applications for licences or modifications to licenses; Canadian ownership; terms and conditions on licences; liability insurance; operating certificate requirements; suspensions or cancellations; discontinuance or reduction of services; public notices and economic analyses of interventions against the issuance of Northern Canada licences; computer reservation systems; specific merger and acquisition proposals; and investigations of service complaints on discontinuance of service, fare increases and levels, and quality of service. Program Record Number: NTA AIR 080

Field Investigations
Description: Information relating to the enforcement of Agency regulations and licence conditions; and the investigation of illegal operations by air carriers. Topics: Investigation reports on possible illegal activities by air carriers; and referrals to RCMP for investigations and to Department of Justice for prosecution. Program Record Number: NTA AIR 102

International Operations
Description: Information relating to the administration of the licensing system for Canadian and foreign air carriers

operating from or to Canada; and the negotiation of international air agreements including the regulation of international air tariffs. Topics: Applications for international services; insurance; operating certificates; compliance; suspensions or cancellations; charter flight permits; bilateral and multilateral agreements and negotiations; commercial agreements; conventions and protocols; "in transit" cargo authorities; air and charter tariffs; charter agreements; international regulations of air transport; and civil air relations between Canada and foreign countries. Program Record Number: NTA AIR 096

■ Rail Branch

Audit and Financial Analysis

Description: Information relating to audits and analyses for the determination of rates, railway subsidies and rail network rationalization. Topics: Cost of capital rates; depreciation rates; railway annual reports; uniform classification of accounts directives; audits of passenger-related services and charges to VIA Rail; service unit development; comprehensive system review; special costing; schedule "A" directives; and specific costs. Program Record Number: NTA RAI 156

Costing, Rates and Payments

Description: Information relating to the management of subsidy and rate programs that determine appropriate compensation for rail services provided by eligible transportation companies; and monitoring of rail investment and expenditures for western grain transportation. Topics: Railway unit costs and service units; rapeseed (Canola) and other rates costing; Western Grain Transportation Act (WGTA) costing review and subsidies; WGTA line maintenance and investment monitoring; railway costing manuals; WGTA price indices; WGTA rate scales; and railway operating statistics. Program Record Number: NTA RAI 121

Rail Complaints, Tariffs and Mediation

Description: Information relating to economic disputes between carriers and users; competitive access provisions; tariffs; and mediation services and arbitration support. Topics: Dispute investigations; compensatory and competitive line rates; interswitching; fares, rates, and conditions of carriage; track usage; discontinuance of services; railway licensing and certificates of fitness; confidential contracts; level of service; freight and express tariffs; joint tariffs; rail connections; rail liability; mediation and arbitration cases; grain rates (WGTA); and specific merger and acquisition proposals. Program Record Number: NTA RAI 021

Rail Infrastructure

Description: Information relating to applications and complaints concerning the construction and modification of rail lines, highway/railway crossings, and other rail infrastructure. Topics: crossing files; modification of subdivision name/mileage; noise complaints; connections and interchange; drainage; fencing; relocation of railway lines; right of way; spurs, sidings and lead tracks; and whistling matters. Program Record Number: NTA RAI 062

Rail Rationalization

Description: Information relating to the evaluation of proposals to rationalize rail networks. Topics: Railway costs and revenues; applications for abandonment of rail lines and removal of stations; branch line and passenger subsidy programs; branch line rehabilitation; conveyance of railway lines; and track determinations. Program Record Number: NTA RAI 176

■ Marine, Trucking and Regional Offices Branch

Atlantic Region Freight Assistance Program

Description: Information relating to the administration of freight subsidy programs applicable to the Atlantic Region. Topics: Subsidy claims including waybills and other supporting documentation; desk and field audits; and payments pursuant to the Maritime Freight Rates Act and the Atlantic Region Freight Assistance Act and Regulations. Program Record Number: NTA MAR 183

Marine

Description: Information relating to the administration and enforcement of legislation governing marine activities under federal jurisdiction. Topics: Northern marine resupply services; consumer, shipper and carrier complaints; coasting trade waivers; pilotage authorities; pilotage and northern marine tariffs; specific merger and acquisition proposals; tariffs, operations and rates investigations; and Shipping Conferences Exemption Act tariffs and service contracts. Program Record Number: NTA MAR 081

Trucking and Commodity Pipeline

Description: Information relating to the administration and enforcement of legislation governing trucking and commodity pipeline activities under federal jurisdiction. Topics: Newfoundland Roadcruiser Bus Service tariffs and complaints; specific merger and acquisition proposals; and applications to construct and operate commodity pipelines. Program Record Number: NTA MAR 082

■ Planning, Review and Quality Management Branch

Industry Monitoring and Analysis

Description: Information relating to the comprehensive coverage of changes in structure, service levels, prices and competition in all modes of the transportation industry under federal jurisdiction, and the assessment of related effects on transportation users. Topics: Annual reviews of transportation in Canada; specific air, marine and motor vehicle surveys; and shippers surveys covering all modes of transportation. Program Record Number: NTA IMA 111

■ Legal Services, Secretariat and Communications Branch

Secretariat Services

Description: Information relating to Agency decisions, orders, reports and notices; the administration of Agency meetings, public hearings and inquiries; and the coordination of translation services, and ministerial and executive correspondence. Topics: Agency orders, decisions, applications for review of orders and decisions; minutes of Agency meetings; and transcripts and exhibits of Agency public hearings and inquiries. Program Record Number: NTA SEC 006

Personal Information Banks

Access Requests

Description: This bank contains the access request forms sent by individuals requesting access to National Transportation Agency information or personal information pursuant to the Access to Information Act and the Privacy Act, the replies to such requests, and information related to their processing. Class of Individuals: Individuals who have requested access pursuant to the Access to Information Act or Privacy Act. Purpose: To process access requests and report on the number of access requests received annually. Retention and Disposal Standards: Files are retained for two years. PAC Number: 86-001 TBS Registration: 000322 Bank Number: NTA PPU 040

Air Service Licence Applications

Description: This bank contains a record of air service licence applications for use in granting or denying licence authorities under the National Transportation Act, 1987. The bank contains applications and interventions in support or opposition thereto. Files may contain personal information relating to the applicant or other parties of record. Since files are maintained by applicant name, an access request must specify the name of the applicant. Class of Individuals: Applicants and intervenors in the licensing process. Purpose: For granting or denying licences under the National Transportation Act, 1987. Retention and Disposal Standards: Files are held for ten years. PAC Number: 66-033 Related to PR#: NTA AIR 080, 096 TBS Registration: 000320 Bank Number: NTA PPU 015

Atlantic Region Freight Assistance Subsidies

Description: This bank contains information and records of federal assistance made to certified carriers – Truck, Water and Railways -who offer lower transportation rates to manufacturers, shippers and producers within the select territory and from points within the select territory to points in Canada west of the select territory, under the Atlantic Region Freight Assistance Act and Regulations. The bank contains claims submitted by Truckers, Railways and Water Carriers, which include waybills and other supporting documents relevant to such claims. Files contain personal information such as names, addresses, claim identifying numbers and financial information relating to the claims. Class of Individuals: Truckers, Railways and Water Carriers applying for assistance under the Atlantic Region Freight Assistance Act and Regulations. Purpose: To administer the Atlantic Region Freight Assistance Program, establish the eligibility of claims and the certification of subsidies, as well as for accounting and statistical purposes. Consistent Uses: To comply with requests from federal investigative bodies. Retention and Disposal Standards: Records are destroyed seven years after payment. PAC Number: 70-030 Related to PR#: NTA MAR 183 TBS Registration: 001864 Bank Number: NTA PPU 038

Complaints Regarding Services Provided to Persons with Disabilities

Description: This bank contains a record of investigations of complaints concerning the possible existence of undue obstacles to the travel of persons with disabilities under the National Transportation Act, 1987, the Railway Act, the Aeronautics Act, and the Motor Vehicle Transport Act. This bank may contain personal information depending on the nature of the complaint. Since the files are maintained by applicant and/or carrier name and nature of complaint, an access request must specify these identifiers. Class of Individuals: Individuals involved in the investigations of complaints. Purpose: To determine whether or not undue obstacles to the travel of passengers with disabilities exist and, if so, to determine the appropriate action. Retention and Disposal Standards: The retention period for this bank is to be established. Related to PR#: NTA AIR 061 TBS Registration: 002154 Bank Number: NTA PPU 033

Investigations

Description: This bank contains information relating to the enforcement of Agency regulations and licence conditions, and investigation of possible infractions or alleged illegal operations by air carriers. These records may contain personal information, depending on the nature of the investigation. Enforcement activities may involve communication with other government departments, including the RCMP and the Department of Justice. Class of Individuals: Individuals involved in possible infractions and occasionally information relating to the plaintiffs. Purpose: To determine whether or not there have been infractions and, if so, to determine the appropriate action. Retention and Disposal Standards: Files are held for two years except those for advance booking charters, which are held for ten years. PAC Number: 69-116 Related to PR#: NTA AIR 102 TBS Registration: 000319 Bank Number: NTA PPU 010

Lord's Day Act Applications

Description: This bank contains applications from motor vehicle carriers for the transportation of goods on Sundays; hearing notes and transcripts; decisions and orders pursuant to the Lord's Day Act. Since files are maintained by carrier name, an access request must specify the name of the carrier. Class of Individuals: This information relates to carriers who have made an application to transport goods on Sundays. Purpose: To grant or deny authority for the transportation of goods on Sunday. (Please note that the Supreme Court of Canada has declared that the Lord's Day Act has no force and effect – April 24, 1985). Retention and Disposal Standards: As this is a defunct function and no new records have been created since 1985, this bank is to be scheduled and disposed of. Bank Number: NTA PPU 035

Mailing Lists
Description: This bank contains mailing lists which may contain personal information in the form of an individual's name and his or her home, business or mailing address. Class of Individuals: carriers; producers; federal, provincial and municipal governments; transportation industry organizations, associations and consumer groups; media; libraries and universities; and the general public and business community with an interest in transportation. Purpose: To notify interested parties of applications and proposed acquisitions made to the Agency, changes in regulations, policies or other matters relating to Agency programs; to solicit comments; mailing of surveys and data forms; and the distribution of orders and decisions, the Annual Review and Report, press releases, and other information of interest. Retention and Disposal Standards: Mailing lists are destroyed when superseded or obsolete. PAC Number: 86-001 TBS Registration: 002926 Bank Number: NTA PPU 046

Mergers and Acquisitions
Description: This bank contains information on all modes of transportation regarding proposed acquisitions of Canadian transportation undertakings; applications; contractual and financial agreements between parties; filed objections; review hearing documentation, decisions and orders. Since files are maintained by name of company, an access request must specify the company name. Class of Individuals: Individuals submitting applications regarding proposed mergers or acquisitions. Purpose: To review proposed acquisitions. Retention and Disposal Standards: The retention period for this bank is to be established. Related to PR#: NTA AIR 080, NTA RAI 021, NTA MAR 081, NTA MAR 082 Bank Number: NTA PPU 030

Northern Marine Licensing
Description: This bank contains applications for authority to operate a resupply service on Lake Athabasca along the Mackenzie River and in the Western Arctic Region, including interventions in support of and opposition thereto. Class of Individuals: Individuals submitting licence applications. Purpose: To maintain a record of water carrier licence applications for use in determining licence eligibility. Retention and Disposal Standards: The retention period for this bank is to be established. Related to PR#: NTA MAR 081 Bank Number: NTA PPU 025

Passenger Manifests
Description: Manifests are provided by air carriers, on request, and contain the flight number, date, origin, destination and names of individuals booked on charter flights under provisions of the Advance Booking Charter Regulations. Classes of Personal Information

The general subject files of the National Transportation Agency contain a certain amount of personal information relating to routine correspondence, complaints and enquiries. The personal information contained in this class normally includes the name and address of the enquirer or plaintiff, but is not arranged by personal identifiers. This form of personal information is normally retrievable only if specifics are provided concerning the subject and the date of the correspondence. The purpose of this bank is to maintain information relating to general correspondence, complaints and enquiries concerning the various functions of the Agency. The retention period for this class of personal information is controlled by the records schedules of the general subject files in which they are stored.

Natural Resources Canada
Chapter 73

General Information

Background

As a result of the re-structuring in the Federal Government, the Department of Natural Resources Canada now includes the former departments of Energy, Mines and Resources and Forestry Canada.

Responsibilities

Natural Resources Canada's objective focuses on the interests of Canada's natural resources industries such as: developing Canada's mineral, energy and forestry potential consistent with broader environmental and social objectives; promoting sustainable development of forests and coordination of national forest policy in close cooperation with the provinces and territories; conducting research, developing an appropriate regulatory framework and managing incentive programs; and, monitoring international developments and the domestic energy environment to ensure secure energy sources for Canadians.

Organization

The Department of Natural Resources Canada is organized into several sectors: Canadian Forest Services Sector; Energy Sector; Mining Sector; Surveys, Mapping and Remote Sensing Sector; Mineral and Energy Technology Sector; Geological Surveys of Canada; and the Corporate Services Sector. There is also a crown corporation and several boards, commissions, committees and councils which report to parliament through the Minister of Natural Resources Canada.

■ Executive Coordination

The Branch was created by merging portions of the Corporate Policy and Communications Sector, EMR and the Corporate and Public Affairs Directorate, Forestry. This branch is responsible for providing executive services, coordinating departmental responses to various ad hoc requests and managing special departmental projects.

■ Communications Branch

The Communications Branches of EMR and Forestry were merged. The branch is responsible for monitoring public and media reaction to departmental initiatives, providing public affairs advice to the Minister, Deputy Minister and senior management, and meeting their needs for speechwriting and special events coordination. It also provides advice and helps different sectors in the Department to plan and implement strategies for keeping the public informed.

■ Corporate Policy Branch

The Branch was created by merging portions of the Corporate Policy and Communications Sector, EMR and the Corporate and Public Affairs Directorate, Forestry. The Corporate Policy Branch is responsible for providing advice and policy coordination to senior management and the Minister. Also includes developing policy agenda by: developing corporate policy positions in cooperation with the sectors in the Department; managing key policy initiatives and Cabinet business; and guiding the department's strategic planning process.

■ Audit and Evaluation

The Audit and Evaluation Branches of EMR and Forestry were merged. The Audit and Evaluation Branch is responsible for the systematic review and assessment of the economy, efficiency, and effectiveness of the departmental programs and their operations.

■ Corporate Services Sector

The Finance and Administration, the Corporate Policy and Communications, and the Human Resources Sectors of EMR were merged with the Finance and Administration Directorate and the Human Resources Directorate of Forestry. This sector is responsible for providing financial, administrative, informatics, information management and support services to departmental operations so as to ensure accountability and control. Other responsibilities include: the development, implementation and provision of a full range of personnel policies, programs and services; providing information on environmental and socio-economic issues and analysis and advice at the strategic level on environmentally related concerns; and researching, planning, developing, coordinating and providing advice on departmental communications functions in the regions.

■ Canadian Forest Services Sector

Formerly part of the Department of Forestry. This Sector is responsible for administering forestry programs relating to the Forestry Resource Development Agreements and maintaining science, technology and technology transfer activities to meet client needs and creating new industrial opportunities.

The sector also pursues key initiatives such as the promotion of sustainable development and work in the field of industrial competitiveness of forest products trade, policy analysis. It works closely with provincial and international counterparts, industries and other clients such as: environmental groups, labour and the aboriginal community.

■ Energy Sector

Formerly part of the Department of EMR. This Sector is responsible for enhancing the broad economic policies of the Government of Canada by advising on and establishing and maintaining effective federal energy policies, strategies, emergency plans and activities, with due regard to their economic, regional, international and environmental implications and by providing information and other services which promote the efficient use of energy in Canada, and the orderly development and efficient allocation of an adequate, secure and cost-effective spectrum of energy sources to meet Canada's foreseeable domestic requirements and export opportunities.

■ Geological Survey of Canada Sector

Formerly part of the Department of EMR. This Sector is responsible for ensuring the availability of the geoscientific knowledge base for all of Canada including the offshore. This Sector provides a wide range of information and expert advice necessary for: exploration and discovery of minerals and fossil fuels; mineral and fossil fuel resource assessment; environmental impact assessment; geological engineering including earthquake and landslide hazards; planning and policy formulation; and logistics for scientific investigations in the high Arctic.

■ Surveys, Mapping and Remote Sensing Sector

Formerly part of the Department of EMR. This Sector is responsible for national geodetic surveys, property surveys on Canada Lands, the maintenance of the international boundary, the preparation and distribution of topographic, geographic, electoral and aeronautical maps and related digital files, and for the acquisition and use of remote sensing data.

■ Mineral and Energy Technology Sector

Formerly part of the Department of EMR. This Sector is responsible for the formulation and development of research and development programs in mineral and energy technology and for the administration of the Canada Explosives Act. The Sector strives to enhance the role and contribution of the minerals and energy sectors to the Canadian economy through mission-oriented R&D in the mining and recovery, processing, conversion, extraction and utilization of metals, industrial minerals and fossil fuels; also, R&D in energy efficiency, renewable energy and alternative transportation fuels. The Sector is also responsible for the coordination of energy R&D for the Government of Canada. Research programs serve government responsibilities in areas of policy, health and safety, protection of the environment, and economic and regional development. A major portion of the research and technology development related to energy, minerals and metals is responsive to the needs of users and includes the latter's involvement on a full– and shared-cost basis, but part of the program is driven by the requirements of the federal energy R&D policies. An important objective of the Sector is the development of technologies that are safe and environmentally compatible as well as economically competitive.

■ Mining Sector

Formerly part of the Department of EMR. This Sector evaluates, recommends and implements specific policies, strategies and delivers incentives programs for NRCan which foster the development of the minerals and metals sector and which ensure its maximum contribution to the Canadian economy. These activities are carried out in consultation and close cooperation with the provinces, territories, industry and labour.

Energy

Description: Information created or received by departmental executives on the planning and implementation of energy programs and services in support of the Minister's parliamentary functions, including the development and execution of program planning, evaluation and information functions directed towards national energy policy objectives. Topics: excellence NRCan; policy; associations and organizations; conferences; USA energy issues; canadianization; investment Canada; crown corporations; frontier and western accords; energy and the environment; native rights and land claims; economic and financial analysis; energy, Hibernia and upgrader project analysis; Petroleum Monitoring Agency; oil and gas, public enquiries; oil corporation information; oil pricing, taxes, charges, transportation, pipelines; crude oil and petroleum products; international oil markets; natural gas; natural gas corporation information; provincial natural gas activities; natural gas exports, pricing, projects, pipelines; natural gas market development incentives payment; international natural gas; energy emergency planning; Energy Supplies Allocation Board; energy demand restraint measures; electricity; Canadian Electrical Association; international electrical energy; electrical technology; uranium and nuclear energy; Canadian Nuclear Association; Canadian Nuclear Society; international uranium and nuclear activities; International Atomic Energy Agency; nuclear power; heavy water; uranium, exploration, production, enrichment and processing; radioactive waste management; high level irradiated fuel waste management; low level radioactive waste management; uranium mine tailings management; efficiency and alternative energy, initiatives; industrial/commercial energy efficiency; residential sector energy conservation; R-2000; alternative energy; transportation energy; alternative transportation fuels; driver outreach programs; vehicles. Program Record Number: EMR DEX 004

Executive Coordination

Description: Information relating to the analysis and advice on departmental plans and operations for an effective corporate planning and reporting capacity, liaison with central agencies, and the coordination and provision of executive document support. Topics: Corporate coordination and executive services; committees; computer user group; special projects; mission statement; public service 2000; excellence NRCan; upward feedback; training and development; total quality management; coordination of annual management report; coordination of annual regulatory plan; coordination of main estimates part 3; coordination of increased ministerial accountability and authority; coordination of managers conference; coordination of the minister's briefing book; coordination of planning processes; coordination of management review; parliamentary affairs; Treasury Board submissions; Orders-in-Council. Program Record Number: EMR CPC 630

Executive Coordination

Description: Information created or received by departmental executives on the activities of the Department's programs. Topics: Corporate executive; departmental liaison; Canadian sovereignty; legal services; Canada – United States Free Trade Agreement; reaction to Canada – United States Free Trade Agreement; Earth Sciences Sector; Communications, Earth Sciences Federal/Provincial Liaison, Earth Sciences International Bilateral Relations; Energy Options Secretariat; excellence program, sectorial liaison, liaison with other governments, committees, conferences, budget; Siting Task Force for Low-Level Radioactive waste in Ontario. Program Record Number: EMR DEX 001

Geological Surveys

Description: Information created or received by departmental executives regarding the availability of comprehensive knowledge, technology and expertise concerning the Canadian landmass, as required for effective estimation and exploitation of mineral and energy resources. Topics: Geological Surveys; NRCan Research Agreements Program; Research Agreements Program for Canadian Universities, research institutes, societies, provincial and territorial research councils; Research Agreements Program Departmental Grants Review Committee; Cordilleran and Pacific geoscience; Atlantic geoscience; sedimentary and petroleum geology; lithosphere and Canadian Shield; mineral resources; geophysics; geodynamics; geomagnetism; gravity; seismology; terrain sciences; geoscience information; Geological Surveys Program coordination and planning; Geological Surveys Canada policy and international relations; Polar Continental Shelf; logistics. Program Record Number: EMR DEX 008

Mineral and Energy Technology

Description: Information created or received by departmental executives regarding the availability of technology needed for the extraction, processing and utilization of mineral and energy resources. Topics: Mineral and energy technology; unsolicited proposals; Mineral Development Agreements (MDAs); associations; liaison with companies, institutes, universities; conferences; committees; Minister's National Advisory Council to CANMET (MNACC); mining; coal mining and preparation; mineral processing; fuels technology; metals and materials; technology information services; technical services; energy research and development; international energy research and development; explosives; explosives licensing, inspection and authorization; explosives testing and research. Program Record Number: EMR DEX 007

Mining

Description: Information created or received by departmental executives on the establishment of policies and strategies for minerals and metals; the effective utilization of these resources; the provision of advice on the implications of international development; and the assessment of the economic, social, fiscal, corporate, regional and environmental impacts of alternative policies and strategies. Topics: Mineral industry development; mineral policy and program development; minerals and metals strategy; international mineral relations; foreign countries' mineral profiles; petroleum ownership, control and incentives; Canadian ownership and control determination program; petroleum incentives program; application for payments under the Petroleum Incentives Program Act; Canadian exploration and development incentives program; Canadian exploration incentive program; Mineral Development Agreements (MDAs); non-ferrous commodities; ferrous commodities; industrial commodities; asbestos; international liaison on asbestos; coal; foreign countries' coal profiles; resource strategy and information; mineral and metal corporation information; human affairs in the mining industry; economic and financial policy analysis in the mineral and metal industry; tax policy analysis in the mineral and metal industry; flow-through shares. Program Record Number: EMR DEX 006

Surveys, Mapping and Remote Sensing

Description: Information created or received by departmental executives on the establishment of policies, strategies and programs for national surveying and mapping, and for remote sensing. Topics: Surveys, Mapping and Remote Sensing; status reports; communications; SMRS mission; committees; associations and institutes; conferences; Canadian International Development Agency – foreign aid projects; environmental issues; Canadian Space Agency (CSA); European Space Agency (ESA); European Space Agency Programs; European Space Agency Committees; satellite data; Airborne Program; RADARSAT. Program Record Number: EMR DEX 009

■ Corporate Services Sector

Assets Management and Administrative Services

Description: Information relating to the provision of general administrative services which reflect central and departmental guidelines. Aspects include management of departmental assets. Topics: assets management and administrative services; workplans and reports; passports and visas; mail and messenger services; parking; crown-owned living accommodation. Program Record Number: EMR FAS 790

Environmental Affairs

Description: Information relating to the coordination of departmental participation in environmental assessment review. Includes advice and recommendations to senior management on environmental matters as they pertain to Energy and Mineral policy. Topics: Environment; environment strategies; associations and organizations; committees; conferences; acid rain; non-ferrous smelters; environmental pipeline issues; mineral industry environmental issues; toxic chemicals; environmental air; climatic long range transport of air pollutants; vehicle emissions; lead in gasoline; heavy duty vehicle emissions; environmental land; national parks; native land claims; environmental energy sources; coal utilization; Coleson Cove conversion study; electrical energy; nuclear environmental issues; medium and high level radioactive waste; low level radioactive waste; low level radioactive waste in Port Hope; international nuclear environmental issues; environmental water; arctic environmental issues; environmental assessment and review process, committees and projects; energy research and development; Panel on Energy Research and Development; occupational health and safety, standards, codes, regulations and policies; fire protection and prevention; dangerous substance management; investigations; environment; polychlorinated biphenyl; underground storage tanks; water conservation; environmental audits and inspections; environmental air quality; federal and departmental environmental strategy; environmental impact assessments; contaminated sites; environmental energy; waste reduction; interdepartmental environmental network. Program Record Number: EMR FAS 780

Facilities Management and Security

Description: Information relating to the planning, management and organization of buildings, properties, lands and sites owned or leased by the Department and the processing of security requests and the management of the departmental security program with respect to information, materiel, equipment and facilities. Topics: Facilities operations; liaison with Public Works; service agreements; strategic planning; work plans; accommodation; buildings and properties; conservation and health issues; emergency and safety procedures in buildings; streets and sidewalks; tenant services: security, incidents, physical security; personnel security and clearances; information technology. Program Record Number: EMR FAS 730

Financial Management

Description: Information relating to the provision of a decentralized financial management service to organizations throughout the Department, including the preparation of departmental operational plans and the distribution by allotment of appropriate funds from Treasury Board. Topics: Financial management; operational plans; financial analysis and planning; Mineral Development Agreements; reference levels; reductions and restraints; accounting and policy; accounts payable and receivable; advances; allotments; resource management; cheques and checking; claims; financial commitment control; expenditures; cost recovery; estimates and budgets; fees; authorities; encumbrances; professional services contracts; specified purpose accounts; Treasury Board submissions; resource tracking system; hospitality; investments; loans; multi-year operational plans; public accounts; pay verification; person-year management system; financial reporting and information systems; financial reports, statistics and statements; revenue control; contracts, grants and contributions; awards; suppliers; taxes; travel allowances, expenses and relocation; government financial system; Ocean Drilling Program. Program Record Number: EMR FAS 720

Human Resources Management
Description: Information relating to the development, implementation and provision of a full range of personnel policies, programs and services to foster efficient human resources management in NRCan. Activities include staffing and position classification services, compensation and benefits administration, personnel program development, staff relations and human resources information management. Topics: Staff relations; human resources information management; career enhancement services; classification and staffing; executive resourcing; organizational development; employment equity; human resources research and projects; training and development; official languages and human resources excellence; workforce adjustment; compensation and benefits and personnel operations units. Program Record Number: EMR FAS 765

Information Management
Description: Information relating to the development and maintenance of policies, procedures, systems and services required to support the general administration of government information management policies. Aspects include the administration of the Access to Information and Privacy Acts, the coordination of information collection, the maintenance of a departmental information inventory and the management of records regardless of physical form or characteristics. Topics: Information management; office automation systems improvement services; forms management; inventory of electronic data; departmental central index; essential records program; information systems design, implementation and maintenance; services agreements; information evaluation and scheduling – authorities, accessions and transfers, disposal, storage facilities; historical records; workplans and reports; electronic information management systems; training; audio visual and graphic services; library services. Program Record Number: EMR FAS 710

Information Technology
Description: Information relating to the provision of information technology services which reflect central and departmental policies and guidelines. Topics: Information technology; contracts; local purchase orders; capital purchases; associations and organizations; committees; conferences; policy, planning and coordination; Information Management Plan; Information Technology and Systems Plan (ITSP); NRCan and Treasury Board information technology standards; computing study; central computing; network applications; executive network; computing facilities services and projects; computer hardware, software and operations; laser printing; micro pool; data communication lines; telecommunications; telephones; information and resource centre; corporate systems; training; consulting services; communications services; directories. Program Record Number: EMR FAS 770

Materiel Management
Description: Information relating to the procurement, leasing and inventory control of materiel and services for organizations throughout the Department. Topics: Materiel management; operational work plans; accounting and inventories; catalogues, manuals and price lists; disposal of material; loan of equipment; Northern logistics; photocopying and printing services; procurement of materiel and services; sources of supply; procurement of services; fax services; vehicles; motor vehicle accidents; transportation of materiel and personnel; conference attendance plans; audio visual and graphics services. Program Record Number: EMR FAS 740

Natural Resources Canada Administration
Description: Information relating to the provision of management direction, policy, advice and comprehensive management support functions, systems and services to the Department. Topics: Natural Resources Canada administration; legislation; regulatory reform legislation; associations and organizations; departmental authorities; campaigns and canvassing; ceremonies and celebrations; committees, task forces, working groups; corporations; conferences, meetings and seminars; consultants; inventions, patents and copyrights; legal documents and matters; circular and directives; reports; domestic visits. Program Record Number: EMR FAS 700

Regional Operations
Description: Information relating to liaison with regional offices across Canada on communication activities. Includes visits to the provinces. Topics: Liaison; visits; provincial matters. Program Record Number: EMR FAS 775

Strategic Planning Policy and Systems
Description: Information relating to capital assets, policy and procedures, planning and systems development for the Assets Management and Administrative Services Branch. Aspects include service and information brochures. Topics: Strategic policy, planning and systems; assets management and administrative services; departmental administrative policy manual; assets planning; master accommodation plans; long term capital plan; assets automated information systems. Program Record Number: EMR FAS 750

■ Canadian Forest Services Sector

Forest Ecology
Description: Information on the process of change in the forest and plant communities found in Canada and the related research carried out by the Sector. Topics: Biology; forest types; forest ecology and productivity; fire ecological effects; forest succession, silviculture – silvices of species, weed management; soils. Program Record Number: FOR SSD 130

Forest Environment Research
Description: Information on the effect of forestry practices on the environment; includes harvesting practices, road building, clear cutting, and other management systems used for production forestry; effects of climate change on forests; also effects of LRTAP (acid rain) and other pollutants on forests. Topics: Conservation; energy; environmental concerns; sustainable development; harvesting; forest management; integrated forest management; multiple-use management; land-use planning; pollution; pollution abatement; salvage operations; silviculture – herbicides, site preparation; soils; hydrology; baseline studies; watershed research; effects of pest management activities and pesticides in the environment. Program Record Number: FOR SSD 125

Forest Fire Research
Description: Research into fire control (suppression), management, behaviour, ecology and prevention, information relating to the development, testing and evaluation of forest fires, firefighting equipment. Topics: Management; behaviour; ecology; environment risk danger; damage and appraisal; weather; detection; prevention; bombing (air attack); retardants and suppression equipment; and prescribed burning. Program Record Number: FOR SSD 115

Forest Genetics Research
Description: Information on the selection and improvement of the various commercial tree species of Canada, and the evaluation of exotic species for use in Canada and on the development and application of biotechnological techniques in tree improvement. Topics: Provenance; genetic variation; adaptation; genetic management; quantitative genetics; breeding; tissue culture; molecular genetics; genetic engineering; and biodiversity. Program Record Number: FOR SSD 100

Forest Health Research
Description: Information on extent of damage and historical patterns of major insects, pests and diseases (any variation to the normal physiology or anatomy of the tree caused by agents other than insects), the biological forest pests and control methods. Topics: Listing of specific forest insect pests – spruce budworm, winter moth, bark beetles, gypsy moth, balsam woolly aphid, birch casebearer, birch leafminer, European pine sawfly, European pine shoot moth, fall webworm, larch casebearer jack pine budworm, larch sawfly, mountain ash sawfly, satin moth and pathological problems. Biological control through CIBC; biological control with bacillus thuringiensis; pinewood nematode and other virus insect parasites; chemical control; scleroderris canker – Dutch elm disease, dwarf mistletoe, pesticides, pheremones; pinewood nematode; prescribed burning; forest-fire management; acid rain; forest decline; surveillance for acid rain damage to forest (Acid Rain National Early Warning system); competing vegetation; microbial and natural products; integrated pest management (IPM); application technology and decision support. Program Record Number: FOR SSD 120

Forest Science
Description: Scientific and technical forestry advisory service to federal ministers and departments, provincial governments, universities, private forestry concerns, forestry associations and members of the public intellectual property management. Program Record Number: FOR SSD 075

Forestry Initiatives and Relations
Description: Bilateral and multilateral forestry agreements on behalf of the federal government and the Department with provincial governments, universities, private forestry concerns and forestry associations. Program Record Number: FOR SSD 070

Forestry Legislation and Policy
Description: Information on the analysis, interpretation and application of economic and scientific forestry principles to the identification, clarification or solution of forestry and forestry-related problems. Topics: Policies of the Sector; National Forest Policy; Forest Sector Policy; Provincial Forest Policies; Federal Forest Policy; Forest Protection Assistance Policy; International Forest Policy; International Forest Strategy; National Forest Strategy for Canada; Environmental Legislation; Policies and Regulations; Strategic Planning; Department of Forestry Act; House and Senate Committees. Program Record Number: FOR PED 055

Forestry Subvention Program
Description: Information on external research and development through contracts, contributions and grants, supported through membership in appropriate technical committees and associations, for vital forestry activities where corresponding in-house research and development facilities do not exist. Also maintenance of forestry expertise centres in Canadian universities. Topics: Energy from the forest (ENFOR); wood-anatomy; bonding; chemistry; chemical use; chippers and chips; composites (wood with other materials); construction; dielectric and non-dielectric heating; glues and gluing; grades, codes and standards; identification; wood logs and logging equipment; logging-quality studies; lumber – wood manufacturing secondary conversion, secondary products; miscellaneous wood products; wood packaging; wood paints and codes; wood physics; plywood and veneer; wood preservation; pulp and paper; wood sawmilling equipment; wood seasoning; wood supply; wood testing services; timber engineering -fasteners; timber engineering, physics; under-utilized and problem species. Program Record Number: FOR SSD 085

Identification of Problems and Opportunities
Description: Information on the world and domestic supply and demand for forests and the products of the forest industry, and the impact of these activities on the environment. Topics: Forest economic and technical statistics; information files of forests; forestry and the forest industry and other uses of the forest. Program Record Number: FOR PED 065

Industry, Trade and Technology
Description: This Directorate is responsible for federal contributions and assistance to central industry research organizations, e.g. FORINTEK Corp., FERIC (Forest Engineering Research Institute of Canada); fosters continuing dialogue between forest sector unions and management; acts as the lead agency in consultations with companies and associations; coordinates activities of the Minister's Forest Sector Advisory Council (FSAC); interacts with provinces on matters involving industrial development issues. Topics: Corporate profiles; intercorporate linkages; forest sector development studies; industrial research and development projects and studies; trade and market information; labour-management and labour adjustment issues; sectoral information (pulp and paper, wood products, further manufactured wood and paper products); export issues (tariff and non-tariff barriers to trade); Light Frame Structures Program; Forest Sector Advisory Council; ECE Timber Committee; OECD Pulp and Paper Working Party; GATT and MTN. Program Record Number: FOR ITT 145

International Forestry Relations
Description: Information on international forestry programs to share resource management knowledge and to provide scientific and technical advice on forestry management and forest products development; and on Canada's international organization; individual countries. Topics: International programs, agreements and memoranda of understanding with foreign countries. Program Record Number: FOR PED 050

Management Systems for Production Forestry
Description: Information on forest management practices such as thinning; forest inventory through conventional and remote sensing methods; mechanized silviculture and harvesting; and research on long-term predictions of forest productivity. Topics: Forest productivity; forest inventory; economics; fire management; harvesting; land classification and mapping; forest land management; multiple-use management; remote sensing; salvage operations; silviculture – cutting, effects of mechanized logging, fertilization, thinning and stand tondings, herbicides, statistics, prescribed burning, inventory and measurements; computer-aided decision support systems. Program Record Number: FOR SSD 110

National Forestry Database Program
Description: Quantitative information on the extent, location and condition of forest lands in Canada and the wood volumes they support; the extent of forest depletion through fire, insects, diseases and harvesting in Canada; and the extent of silviculture and forest protection in Canada. Topics: National forest inventory; forest management statistics; general forestry statistics. Program Record Number: FOR PED 080

Reforestation Research
Description: Information on the preparation of cutover areas and other sites for natural seeding or artificial reforestation; the production of bareroot or container seedlings; and direct seeding or planting by hand or machine; also nursery establishment and seedling production statistics. Topics: Site preparation by prescribed burning or mechanical scarification; natural regeneration including seed dispersal, germination and germinant establishment; production and handling of bareroot seedlings or transplants, or of container seedlings; direct seeding methods and operations; seedling planting methods and operations; regeneration surveys; seedling physiology stock quality and standards. Program Record Number: FOR SSD 095

Tree and Stand Growth Research
Description: Information on the growth, physiology and development of various tree species grown in Canada for the production of wood fibre or energy. Topics: Tree growth; stand growth; biology; physiology; reproduction – growth and yield; site requirements of forest tree species – fertilization, soils, etc. Program Record Number: FOR SSD 105

Tree Seed – Improvement Research
Description: Research on tree reproductive structures and seeds in support of the production, procurement and processing of seed forestation. Information on the management of seed orchards and seed production areas. Information on the selection and improvement of the various commercial tree species of Canada, the development of the various commercial tree species of Canada, the development of exotic species for use in Canada, and in-depth genetic exotic species for use in Canada, and in-depth genetic characterization and utilization of these tree species. Topics: Tree cone and seed physiology; cone crop periodicity and forecasts; cone collection and handling; seed processing physiology, storage testing and certification; seed orchards and seed production areas; seed certification; seeds legislation and rules; requests for seeds; tree genetics; forest genetic; tree improvement. Program Record Number: FOR SSD 090

■ Energy Sector

Conservation and Non-Petroleum
Description: Information relating to the overall management of the energy conservation and non-petroleum sources activities to ensure the development of adequate, and secure sources of non-petroleum energy to meet Canada's energy requirements and to develop and maintain policies and programs for the efficient use and conservation of energy. Topics: (CN series) conservation and non-petroleum; energy issues; energy research and development; non-petroleum energy sources; Uranium Canada Limited; conservation and renewable energy demonstration agreements and programs; 5 year modernization program; energy from the forest biomass conversion; forest industry renewable energy; Renewable Energy Conversion Assistance Program, solar, wind; Remote Community

Demonstration Program; Accelerated Demonstration of Solar Domestic Water Heater Program phase 1 and 2; Purchase and Use of Solar Heating Program; Solar Domestic Hot Water Program phase 3, 4, 5 and 6; Alternative Energy Enerdemo Program; Propane Vehicle Program; International symposium on alcohol fuels; ridesharing; Federal Vanpool Program. Program Record Number: EMR ENS 245

Conservation and Renewable Energy
Description: Information relating to the planning and management of activities in support of the promotion of energy conservation and the development of renewable energy resources in order to meet Canada's energy requirements and other economic, social, regional and environmental objectives. Topics: (CE series) Conservation and renewable energy; memorandum of understanding; energy research and development, panel, task one – taxation; transportation energy; regional operation, energy, promotional activities; national conservation and alternative energy initiatives; economics of energy conservation in Canada; program sector strategic planning; program review and evaluation; urban systems analysis; energy activities; residential sector energy conservation; contracts; transportation fuels; outreach programs; home energy; home energy conservation codes and standards; energy conservation, industrial sector, residential sector; indoor air quality; solar energy; home energy technology and industry, building issues and training and seminars; new housing; R-2000 Home Program; residential technology and industry development contracts; medium and high-rise apartments; industrial energy; task forces, commercial sector energy conservation, agricultural sector; industrial energy data base and analysis; industrial task forces council; industrial energy techniques, equipment and technologies; waste management and resource recovery; energy issues affecting federal energy management; energy conservation – codes and standards; energy pricing and taxation; renewable energy; energy conservation technology; task four of the Panel on Energy Research and Development; Solar Energy Development Program; small and low head hydro technology research and development project; geothermal technology research and development project; active solar technology research development and demonstration project; passive solar technology research development and demonstration project; photovoltaic technology research and development project; wind technology research and development project; Solar Domestic Hot Water Demonstration Program, phase seven, eight; Bioenergy Development Program; PEI Alternative Energy Development Program; RENCAP solid fuels; Forest Industry Renewable Energy Program; Canada/ Nova Scotia Energy Conservation Subsidiary Agreement; Remote Community Demonstration Program; (CR series) Canertech; technology transfer and demonstration; commercial sector energy conservation; energy issues; energy conservation issues; energy research and development; liaison on technology transfer and demonstration; solar energy; residential sector energy conservation; arctic and northern housing; new housing; socio-economics impact of energy conservation; transportation and urban sector energy conservation; Energy Management and Technology Transfer Program; federal energy programs; Atlantic Energy Conservation Investment Program; Building Energy Technology Transfer Program; Biomass Energy Loan Guarantee Program; Gas-electric Conversion Assistance Program; Canadian Home Insulation Program; consumer education programs; Federal Energy Management Program; Internal Energy Conservation Program; surveys workshops information and monitoring; Industrial Conversion Assistance Program; Municipal Energy Management Program. Program Record Number: EMR ENS 310

Economic and Financial Analysis
Description: Information relating to the analysis and recommendations of energy policies with particular reference to revenue sharing, fiscal policy, project economics, industry investment and rates of return including provincial fiscal regimes and energy corporations. Topics: Economic and financial analysis; committees, consultants and contracts; reports, and managerial operations; financial data in support of the Energy Sector; analysis techniques; energy industry analysis; energy revenues forecast; financial, fiscal and supply analysis models; fiscal analysis; energy market analysis; energy policy development; Federal / Provincial energy agreements; energy supply analysis; energy and the environment; energy project analysis; enhanced oil recovery project analysis; upgrader projects analysis; coal project analysis; liquid natural gas project analysis; petrochemical project analysis; alternative transportation fuels project analysis; pipeline project analysis; northern frontier project analysis; offshore frontier project analysis; electrical project analysis; nuclear project analysis; petroleum resources; acts and legislation; research and development; pricing; petroleum reserves; reserves, resources and production; macroeconomic analysis; monitoring and information systems; energy statistics publications; megaproject monitoring; energy information systems; International Energy Agency (IEA); energy statistics, coal, electricity, oil and natural gas, energy exports and imports; supply and demand refinery feedstock survey; Petroleum Monitoring Agency (PMA); PMA committees, consultants and contracts, managerial operations, windown, accounting practices, acts and legislation, liaison; monitoring of the coal industry, petroleum industry, energy research and development survey; estimates and forecasts in petroleum industry, quarterly industrial corporations survey in petroleum industry, ownership and control in petroleum industry, survey questionnaires in petroleum industry; special studies drilling fund study, taxation study. Program Record Number: EMR ENS 176

Efficiency and Alternative Energy
Description: Information relating to the advice, development and delivery of programs concerning the efficient use of energy in Canada; and the adoption of economic and environmentally attractive options for use of more efficient energy using technologies and alternative fuels. Topics: Efficiency and alternative energy; policy development and analysis, initiatives, models and data base, marketing and communications activities; energy efficiency and diversity initiatives; energy efficiency and the environment; appliance energy efficiency; energy conservation standards; industrial / commercial energy efficiency; environment; federal buildings initiatives; R-2000 Home Program; builder education program and training; Canadian Home Builders Association; international activities; marketing and information; Canadian Home Builders Association contract management; alternative energy; biomass energy; bioenergy development program; transportation energy; transportation energy liaison; database; research and development; alcohol transportation fuels; Methanol Demonstration Program; gaseous transportation fuels; propane transportation fuels; compressed natural gas (CNG) transportation fuels; CNG Vehicle Grant Program, CNG Fuelling Station Program; liquified natural gas transportation fuels; hydrogen transportation fuels; PERD Task Five – New Liquid Fuels; liquid hydrocarbon fuel; liquid synthetic transportation fuels; transportation systems; Driver Outreach Program; vehicles; aircraft; marine vehicles; railways; road vehicles; emission standards; road vehicle engine systems; fuel consumption standards program; trucks. Program Record Number: EMR ENS 200

Electrical Energy
Description: Information relating to the provision of analysis and policy advice regarding all aspects of electrical energy to effectively and efficiently implement policies relating to electrical energy, provide effective information services to the public and manage the federal government's contribution to the Canadian Electrical Association's (CEA) research and development program. Topics: Electricity; energy issues; Panel on Energy Research and Development – Task Six, Conventional Energy Systems; electrical associations and organizations; international electrical energy; electrical utilities; Canadian electrical energy economics and finance; supply and demand; technology; Lower Churchill electricity development; Annapolis River Tidal Project; Coleson Cove Conversion Study; Churchill Falls dispute between Quebec and Newfoundland; Lepreau One Nuclear Project; nuclear energy; fusion; nuclear conferences and seminars; nuclear exports; heavy water; nuclear power; Point Lepreau Two Nuclear Project. Program Record Number: EMR ENS 215

Energy Policy
Description: Information relating to energy policy, which encompasses the coordination of the review and analysis of policy objectives and instruments, and the analysis, development and coordination of new energy policy recommendations. Includes workplans and internal meetings. Topics: Energy policy; strategic planning; energy policy committees, regulatory boards and agencies, conferences, briefings; energy policy relations; federal government priorities; federal economic policies; energy trade policy; federal energy policies; public views on federal energy policies; native rights and land claims; energy research and development; energy security; industry assistance programs; energy and the environment; Canadianization; Cooperative Energy Corporation; Cooperative Energy Development Corporation; crown corporations; petroleum issues; oil issues and projects; natural gas issues and projects; electricity issues and projects; uranium issues; nuclear issues and projects; coal issues and projects. (EP series) energy policy analysis; corporate development; energy issues; National Energy Program; non-petroleum energy sources; petroleum energy resources; energy conservation; energy research and development; Energy Security Act; liaison; energy policy planning; federal energy planning; effect of federal energy polices on northern development; Beaufort Sea petroleum planning; international energy relations; domestic energy relations committees; energy relations operations; domestic organization and agencies; Petroleum Canada International Assistance Corporation; international conferences meetings and seminars; Canadian committees of the world energy conference; energy relations – by countries; liaison on Canadian energy commodities, policies, budgets and fiscal policy; international energy commodities comparisons; energy relations with international organizations; incoming/outgoing visits and protocol; international energy – environmental issues; corporate development, crown corporations; energy envelope, Energy Deputies Committee, industrial benefits, alternative energy sources, coal, electricity, electricity exports and generation, energy issues, energy conservation, nuclear issues, nuclear export, nuclear heavy water industry, nuclear industry review, nuclear policy review, petroleum, petroleum industry downstream, petroleum downstream marketing, petroleum downstream refining, petroleum downstream upgrader, natural gas, natural gas exports, Petroleum Incentives Program, uranium, uranium exports. Program Record Number: EMR ENS 161

Frontier Lands Management
Description: Information relating to the administration of oil and gas exploration and production activities and the operation of the Frontier Lands Management Branch. Note: Formerly the Canada Oil and Gas Lands Administration (COGLA), EMR. Topics: Frontier lands management; committees; legislation; Canada/Newfoundland Offshore Petroleum Board (CNOPB); Canada\Nova Scotia Offshore Petroleum Board (CNSOPB); offshore oil and gas; international treaties and agreements; maritime boundaries; benefit plans, studies; oil and gas development projects; rights management administration; exploration agreements; licences; assessment of oil and gas resources. Program Record Number: EMR ENS 230

Oil and Gas
Description: Information relating to the development and efficient use of oil and natural gas liquids, the development and implementation of federal policies associated with the interprovincial and international trade of natural gas, and contingency plans for the control and regulation of emergency production, distribution and use of petroleum resources. Topics: Oil and gas; committees, legislation and regulations; petroleum energy issues; oil supply electronic data systems; emergency oil inventory; domestic oil export pricing, taxes and charges; oil imports; domestic oil in industry, pricing and supply and demand; domestic heavy crude oil supply and demand; domestic oil transportation; crude oil and petroleum products; diesel supply surveillance reports; natural gas liquids; Propane Distribution System Expansion Program; international oil markets; international world energy market; petroleum utilization; petroleum products marketing; petrochemical industry processing; natural gas; Canadian natural gas export; natural gas fiscal regime; natural gas industry; information program on natural gas; international natural gas; natural gas major projects, pipeline projects, Pipeline Construction Cost Task Force, pipeline review project, marketing, pricing, supply and demand; provincial activities; Natural Gas Market Development Incentive Program, Natural Gas Laterals Program; Natural Gas Transportation Assistance Program; energy emergency planning; Energy Supplies Allocation Board (ESAB); IEA allocation systems test; allocation program; rationing program; National Emergency Agency for Energy (NEAE); North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO); energy demand restraint measures, interprovincial advisory committee on energy, liaison; crude oil and petroleum products allocation planning; ESAB allocation system test 82; replacement of fuels; rationing program. (PT series) Natural Gas Distribution System Expansion Program; Gas Marketing Assistance Program; Oil Pricing and Compensation Program; petroleum compensation; pipeline companies; Restricted Trade Practices Commission; domestic transfer compensation; Domestic Transfer Inspection Program; exchange compensation for domestic and imported petroleum; Oil Import Compensation Program; asphalt imports; carbon black feedstock imports; heavy fuel oil imports; special compensation; petroleum levies; canadian ownership special charge petroleum levy; petroleum compensation charge; transportation fuel compensation recovery charge; new oil reference price; program for pentane plus, synthetics oil; reference oil pricing; special old oil price. Program Record Number: EMR ENS 195

Uranium and Nuclear Energy

Description: Information relating to the provision of advice and the formulation of policies to ensure that Canadian uranium resources and nuclear energy industries make optimal contributions to the country's economic development by providing a secure and economical source of energy and by realizing export opportunities. Topics: Uranium and nuclear energy; research and development; international uranium and nuclear issues; Uranium Institute; International Uranium and Nuclear Conference; committees and working groups; nuclear safeguards and non-proliferation agreements; uranium; Uranium Resource Appraisal Group (URAG); exploration and production; ownership of uranium industry; processing and refining; enrichment and reprocessing; exports; Uranium Exports Review Panel (UERP); supply and demand; radioactive waste management. Program Record Number: EMR ENS 220

Minerals and Earth Sciences

■ Geological Surveys of Canada

Atlantic Geoscience Centre (AGC)

Description: Information relating to management and operations of Atlantic Geoscience activities to ensure a comprehensive knowledge, technology and expertise on the geology of the Atlantic and Arctic offshore regions of Canada and the sedimentary basins of the Appalachian region not filed elsewhere by specific subject. Topics: Environmental marine geology; Atlantic Geoscience publications -cartography; oil and gas resources and exploration; Program for Industry Laboratory Projects (PILP); Atlantic Geoscience surveys; United States international liaison; USSR international liaison; international liaison with associations and organizations; eastern petroleum geology; liaison – universities and colleges; Atlantic Geoscience field work; provincial liaison; international liaison; departmental liaison; interdepartmental liaison; liaison – companies, societies, institutes, associations and organizations; conferences; committees, interdepartmental and departmental; Canadian Geoscience Council liaison; liaison; research and development; Panel on Energy Research and Development; Atlantic Geoscience unsolicited proposals; boundary disputes; Frontier Geoscience Program; Atlantic Geoscience research projects; ocean mining and research; Atlantic Geoscience publications, books and cartography. Program Record Number: EMR GSC 385

Cordilleran and Pacific Margin

Description: Information relating to management and operations of the Cordilleran and Pacific Margin Geology activities to increase the knowledge of the composition, age, distribution and origin of regionally mappable rock units to better access the mineral and hydrocarbon potential in Canadian Cordilleras and adjacent offshore regions not filed elsewhere by specific subject. Topics: Juan de Fuca geoscience studies; liaison – companies; research and development; Cordilleran and Pacific Margin library; Cordilleran and Pacific Margin unsolicited proposals; federal provincial mineral development agreements; Canadian Geoscience Council liaison; field work; universities and colleges liaison; liaison – provincial, international, departmental, interdepartmental, societies, institutes, associations and organizations; conferences; committees; boundary disputes; Frontier Geoscience Program; Cordilleran and Pacific Margin research projects; publications. Program Record Number: EMR GSC 390

Geological Surveys

Description: Information relating to the management of the geological surveys activity to ensure the availability of comprehensive knowledge, technology and expertise pertaining to the geology of the Canadian landmass and offshore areas for the identification, exploration and exploitation of Canadian mineral and energy resources.

Aspects include studies and research on the earth's surface deposits, crust and upper mantle. Topics: Geological survey, memoranda of understanding; environment and environmental affairs; committees; conference; Geological Survey of Canada field work; ships; science and technology/research and development; industrial research agreements program; program for industry laboratory projects; Panel on Energy Research and Development; Geological Survey unsolicited proposals; agreements; boundary disputes; Frontier Geoscience program; geological survey research projects; Nielsen Task Force – geological surveys; Ocean Mining and Research Program; oil and gas resources and exploration; new technology and international programs; Canadian International Development Agency geoscience aid projects; branch management. Program Record Number: EMR GSC 350

Geophysics

Description: Information relating to the management and operations of the Geophysics Division whose mandate is to ensure the availability of geophysical data, information, technology, standards and expertise concerning the configuration, evolution, structure and dynamic processes of the solid earth and the hazards associated with natural and induced geophysical phenomena. Topics: Geophysics; committees; conferences; Canadian Geoscience Council; Geophysics field work; research and development; Industrial Research Agreements Program (IRAP); Program for Industry Laboratory Projects; Panel on Energy Research and Development; Geophysics unsolicited proposals; federal-provincial agreements; federal-provincial mineral development agreements; boundary disputes; Frontier Geoscience Program; Geophysics research projects; ocean mining and research programs; oil and gas resources and exploration; geophysics environmental studies; Nuclear Fuel Waste Management Program; lithosphere studies and the Canadian shield division; seismology; geophysics publications, information services and requests; seismology ; Canadian seismograph networks; seismograph network standard stations; Eastern Canadian Telemetered (SEISMIC) Network; Western Canadian Telemetered (SEISMIC) Network; Strong-motion Seismograph Network; Yellowknife geophysical observatory; seismological systems development and instrumentation, data centre and data management; Canadian Seismograph Network -seismograms; earthquake studies and seismic hazards; seismological structure studies; geoscience of nuclear explosions; geomagnetism; Canadian magnetic observatory network; geomagnetic systems development and instrumentation; geomagnetic earth structure studies; palaeomagnetism; aeromagnetics, gravity and geodynamics; geophysical data centre; gravity, surveys, projects, mapping systems development and instrumentation, standards, maps, international liaison/projects, gravity national data base; applications; geodynamics, system development and instrumentation; global dynamics, observation; crustal evolution, projects and studies; geothermics; geothermal energy; aeromagnetics, domestic and international contracts, systems development and instrumentation, standards, maps, applications. Program Record Number: EMR GSC 360

Geoscience Information

Description: Information relating to the management and operations of the Geoscience Information Division whose role is to ensure that the results of the Branch's scientific programs are made available to industry, other government agencies and the general public. Topics: National Geoscan hardware/software operations; geoscience information library, technical services, liaison with other libraries, exchange agreements, maps and mapping, information services; Geoscience Information, editing services, library requests; geoscience information library international exchange agreements, United States exchange agreements, provincial exchange agreements; national geoscan; federal/provincial contributing agencies; publication production; publication services; technical photography services; technical information collection. Program Record Number: EMR GSC 365

Lithosphere and Canadian Shield

Description: Information relating to management and operations of the Lithosphere and Canadian Shield Division activities ensuring the availability of comprehensive knowledge, technology and expertise on the bedrock geology and mineral resources of the Canadian Precambrian Shield, and also plutonic and igneous rocks in Atlantic Canada. Topics: Petrology; lithosphere and Canadian Shield; publishing and editing; geochronology; palaeomagnetism; lithosphere and Canadian shield special projects; potential field section high arctic studies. Program Record Number: EMR GSC 370

Mineral Resources

Description: Information relating to the management and operations of Mineral Resources activities which are to provide scientific and technical support services for Geological Survey of Canada and to maintain a national information base of Canada's non-hydrocarbon mineral resources and deposits. Topics: Mineral resources, publishing and editing; exploration geophysics, instrumentation research and development, calibration testing and facilities, special projects, skyvan aircraft equipment and use; radiation and borehole geophysics; exploration geochemistry; national geochemical reconnaissance surveys; mathematical application in geology; mineral resources information systems; mineral deposits geology; international strategic minerals inventory; mineralogy and analytical chemistry; national collections; rock and mineral information services; regional mineral resources assessments; uranium resources evaluation and information bank; uranium reconnaissance program; regional metallogenic studies; mineral resources special projects. Program Record Number: EMR GSC 355

Polar Continental Shelf Project (PCSP)

Description: Information relating to the management and overall functions of the Polar Continental Shelf Project. It includes provision of coordinated logistic support to public and private sector groups, provision of information on scientific operations to the scientific community and local inhabitants. Topics: Polar Continental Shelf Project; Arctic sciences; native land claims; committees; conferences; Research Agreements Program; unsolicited proposals; Frontier Geoscience Program; PCSP logistical support, arctic awareness program, base camp operations, expeditions, field activities, land use permits and research licences, radio and navigational systems, goods and services, aircraft, fuel, and vehicles. Program Record Number: EMR GSC 435

Sedimentary and Petroleum Geology

Description: Information relating to the overall activities, management and operations associated with the sedimentary and petroleum geology activity which specifically entails the provision of a geological knowledge base for Canada and arctic sedimentary basins. Topics: Oil and gas resources and exploration; sedimentary and petroleum geology publications – cartography, books; industrial research agreements program; regional geology, mainland, arctic islands; palaeontology; frontier energy geoscience program; federal-provincial agreements; sedimentary and petroleum geology unsolicited proposals; field work; liaison – associations and organizations, companies, societies, institutes, Canadian Geoscience Council, universities and colleges; conferences; sedimentary and petroleum geology; committees; interdepartmental liaison; departmental liaison; international liaison, international associations and organizations; provincial liaison; research and development (R&D); Panel on Energy Research and Development (PERD); research grants; federal-provincial mineral development agreements; boundary disputes; sedimentary and petroleum geology research projects; new initiatives program; ocean mining and research; coal geology; petroleum geology; petroleum geology – geochemistry, petroleum geology – resources; petroleum resources appraisal secretariat; calibration testing and facilities. Program Record Number: EMR GSC 395

Terrain Sciences

Description: Information of a general nature relating to the management and operations of Terrain Sciences activities to ensure the availability of comprehensive knowledge and expertise on surface materials, natural terrain hazards, and the capabilities of the terrain to support human activities. Topics: Quaternary environments; paleoecology and radiocarbon laboratories; sedimentology research; terrain sciences; environmental studies, publishing and editing; Nuclear Fuel Waste Management Program, committees, external involvement, NRCan/AECL coordinating program; terrain dynamics; terrain dynamics – permafrost research, transportation and hydrocarbon development; geothermics; geothermal energy; quaternary geology. Program Record Number: EMR GSC 380

■ Surveys, Mapping and Remote Sensing Sector

Air Operations

Description: Information relating to utilization, operations, maintenance and calibration of aircraft and of electrical and electronic equipment engaged in remote sensing activities. Topics: Airborne data acquisition; aircraft operations and maintenance; aircraft systems support. Program Record Number: EMR SMR 475

Automated Systems and Methods

Description: Information relating to research and development in computer systems and methods for the processing, analyzing and storing of remotely sensed data acquired from satellites and airborne platforms and the provision of technical assistance and advice for hardware procurement and software development. Also includes the provision and operation of facilities for processing satellite and airborne remotely sensed data. Topics: Synthetic aperture radar digital processor; digital storage technologies; the Digital Image Correction System; image analysis systems; visible infra-red spectroscopy; image processing systems; instrumentation laboratory; National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration's (NOAA) satellite systems; Digital Image Analysis system; Multi-observation Satellite Image Correction system; standard computer compatible tape format. Program Record Number: EMR SMR 480

Canada Centre for Mapping (CCM)

Description: Information relating to the overall management of the topographical mapping program, used to formulate and maintain national standards for mapping, to produce aeronautical information products as well as the National Atlas. Topics: Canada Centre for Mapping (CCM); grants and contributions; unsolicited proposals; status reports; associations and organizations; committees; conferences; foreign aid projects; research and development; operations; arctic and northern program; maps and mapping; National Atlas Information Services (NAIS); Canada Centre for Surveying issues; remote sensing. Program Record Number: EMR SMR 415

Canada Centre for Remote Sensing

Description: Information relating to coordination and administration of research and development activities to improve remote sensing technology and facilitate the acquisition, dissemination and analysis of remotely sensed data from aircraft and satellites for resource management and environmental monitoring. Topics: Associations; committees; conferences; program management; National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA); research and development programs. Program Record Number: EMR SMR 470

Data Applications

Description: Information relating to research and development in remote sensing information extraction techniques and the development and demonstration of applications of remotely sensed data to resource management and environmental monitoring problems.

Topics: Applications development and demonstration; agriculture; forestry; geology and cartography; hydrology. Program Record Number: EMR SMR 485

Data Applications Services
Description: Information relating to provision of analysis facilities, and information and advisory services to assist users in applying remote sensing technologies. Topics: Marketing; image analysis services; library services; publications; transfer of remote sensing technologies to industry; technology enhancement program. Program Record Number: EMR SMR 490

Geodetic Surveys
Description: Information relating to the overall management of a national geodetic survey network which is fundamental to all forms of surveying. Aspects include research and development of standards, measurements of latitude, longitude, elevation and geometry of the earth's surface and its physical anomalies. Topics: Geodetic surveys; operations; unsolicited proposals; status reports; grants and contributions; associations and organizations; committees; conferences; memorandum of understanding; Canada – Newfoundland land surveying and mapping agreement; territorial land use regulations; baselines; geodetic data management; geodetic data analysis and adjustment; geodetic data services; North American Datum and Adjustment (NAD83); North American Vertical Datum and Adjustment (NAVD 88); NAVD88 symposia; US national geodetic survey involvement in NAVD88; geodetic field surveys; surveying equipment and instruments; Inertial Survey System (ISS); levelling systems; global positioning system; primary horizontal control; primary vertical control; satellite Doppler; supplementary control; very long baseline interferometry; geodetic systems development; contracting out; source list for control survey contractors; geodetic projects; internal research projects. Program Record Number: EMR SMR 410

Geographic Information Systems
Description: Information relating to the development and maintenance of national geographic information systems (GIS) and geographic information databases across Canada in order to improve GIS technology. This includes information to promote and coordinate the development and application of GIS within governments and to support the development of a Canadian GIS industry. Topics: Geographic information systems; status reports; associations and organizations; committees; conferences; foreign aid projects; operations; land information management; data interchange format; research and development; geographic information systems projects. Program Record Number: EMR SMR 418

Geographical Services
Description: Information relating to the acquisition and generation of geographical information and knowledge on Canada comprising scientific and scholarly research and surveys on the geography of Canada and the cartographic design, compilation, preparation and completion of maps, publications, computerized information and display systems containing the results of geographical investigations. Topics: associations and organizations; status reports; conferences; committees; contracts; inquiries; unsolicited proposals; aeronautical charting; flight information; instrument flight rules products; Canada Flight Supplement; water aerodrome supplement; visual flight rules (VFR) product; charts; Canadian Aeronautical Charts System (CANACS); aeronautical charts planning and development; National Atlas Information Service (NAIS); National Atlas of Canada; National Advisory Committee on the National Atlas of Canada (NACNAC); Canadian Geographical Names Data Base (CGNDB) – gazetteer of Canada series; geographical mapping; cartographic services; international map of the world; geographical research; Canadian Permanent Committee on Geographical Names (CPCGN); toponomy; Program Record Number: EMR SMR 408

International Boundary Commission
Description: Information relating to maintenance and regulation of the land and water boundary between Canada and the United States. Aspects include positioning of boundary line points, settlement of disputes and jurisdictional questions, regulation of construction and removal of boundary obstructions. Topics: International Boundary Commission; meetings; reports; International Boundary Commission commissioners; operations; associations and organizations; committees and conferences; USA and Canadian section of the International Boundary Commission; international and offshore boundary issues; boundary regulation; International Boundary Commission regulatory files; international boundary field operations; geographical coordinates of boundary monuments. Program Record Number: EMR SMR 425

Legal Surveys
Description: Information relating to management and regulation of all surveys carried out in Canada Lands, as stipulated in the Canada Lands Surveys Act. Canada Lands include all land in the Yukon and Northwest Territories that is not privately owned, Indian reserves, national parks and the lands offshore. Topics: Legal Surveys (LSD) -operations – meetings; status reports; monitoring results of plans of surveys; matrices reports; analysis of completed survey reports; projects; survey information requests; grants and contributions; associations and organizations; Automated Canada Lands Information System (ACLIS); committees; modernization and standards; conferences; memorandum of understanding (MOU); Board of Examiners for Canada Lands Surveyors; contracts; indian reserves surveys; indian school lands; indian bands; indian reserve survey – legal matters; native land claims; indian reserves and indian bands name changes; national and historic parks and sites; bird sanctuaries and wildlife areas; bird sanctuaries and wildlife areas – by province; Yukon Territory rights of way for pipelines; Northwest Territories rights of way for pipelines, roads and transmission lines; territorial resources base mapping; territorial mining surveys; settlements site surveys; interprovincial and territorial boundary commissions and surveys; international boundary surveys; coordinated survey areas; oil and gas – grid areas; aerial photography surveys; survey information and procedures; territorial waters survey information and procedures; intergovernmental and interdepartmental agreements; acts and regulations; North American Datum and Adjustment (NAD83); manual of instructions for the Survey of Canada Lands; federal government surveys; electoral districts; offshore oil and gas surveys; Northwest Territories communities; Northwest Territories communities coordinated control areas; survey and mapping research and development; legal survey monument coordinate data base; surveys records depository; coordinated survey areas. Program Record Number: EMR SMR 405

Policy, Planning and Services

Description: Information relating to policy, planning and services involved in the management of the surveys and mapping activity whose mandate is to ensure geodetic, topographic and selected geographic information required for effective resource management, land use and demarcation, engineering works, urban development, transportation, defence and public safety. The program includes a national network of horizontal and vertical positional reference monuments; topographical and geographical information on the Canadian landmass; preparation, publication and distribution of maps, charts, publications, aerial photographs, gazetteers, and the National Atlas of Canada; boundary and property surveys on federal land and international boundaries. Topics: Policy, planning and services; operations; associations and organizations; committees; conferences; foreign aid projects; surveys and mapping projects; research and development; research agreements; unsolicited proposals. Program Record Number: EMR SMR 400

Products and Services

Description: Information relating to the publication of maps, aeronautical charts, air photographs and related publications, and the maintenance of an adequate supply of these materials for sale to governments, industry and the public through a national network of dealers in the private sector. Topics: Products and services; associations and organizations; committees; aerial photographic services; National Air Photo Library (NAPL); reproduction; shipping and receiving; map distribution; air information publications; map distribution complaints and inventory; maps and charts; topographical charts dealers; map reproduction; shipping and receiving. Program Record Number: EMR SMR 420

Radarsat

Description: Information relating to Radarsat projects for the development of a radar satellite capable of supplying sea ice information; research and development in spaceborn radar technologies; administration and coordination of the Radarsat projects. Topics: Economic studies; concept design studies; mission (user) requirements; technology development; spaceborn synthetic aperture radar; scientific liaison. Program Record Number: EMR SMR 495

Satellite Data

Description: Information relating to the Satellite Data sub-activity ensuring the availability of data from satellites. Aspects include satellite operations and products, the acquisition of data, and research and development of new remote sensing techniques. Topics: European Space Agency (ESA) ERS-1 satellite program; National Aeronautics and Space Administration's (NASA) Landsat satellites; Landsat products; National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration's (NOAA) Landsat-D satellites; Landsat-D receiving stations upgrade; receiving stations; NASA seasat and sursat program and projects; satellite pour l'observation de la terre (SPOT). Program Record Number: EMR SMR 500

Sensors Research and Development

Description: Information relating to development and evaluation of new and novel remote sensors for use from airborne and satellite platforms. Topics: Airborne sensors; airborne laser sensors; microwave radiometer and scatterometer; visible and infra-red sensors. Program Record Number: EMR SMR 505

Topographical Mapping

Description: Information relating to mapping of the Canadian landmass in detail, showing relief elevation, lakes, rivers, roads, buildings, airports and canals, including names of features and places. Topics: Topographical mapping; associations and organizations; committees; conferences; reports; unsolicited proposals; contracts; flood risk contract mapping; digital topographical mapping; Cartographic Data Processing System (CARDAPS); geographic information systems; national digital topographical data base; topographical mapping evaluation; new topographic mapping; nomenclature and toponomy; topographical mapping quality control; remote sensing; topographical mapping research and development; revision mapping; map derivation; Topographical Mapping division production operations; topographical mapping standards and specifications; national digital topographic mapping standards; survey control; aerial survey data base. Program Record Number: EMR SMR 430

■ Mineral and Energy Technology Sector

Authorization and Testing of Explosives

Description: Information relating to the coordination of testing and authorization by the Canadian Explosives Research Laboratory of explosives which are imported, sold or used in Canada. Topics: Explosives Act and Regulations; fireworks; incidents; accidents. Program Record Number: EMR MET 515

Canada Centre for Mineral and Energy Technology

Description: Information relating to the coordination, promotion and administration of research and development activities in the explosives, energy and minerals field. Topics: Canada Centre for Mineral and

Energy Technology; associations and organizations; committees; Ministers National Advisory Council on CANMET; conferences; energy issues; oil and gas; energy conservation; coal; renewable energy; uranium and nuclear energy; impact and control of environmental pollutants; industrial and economic analysis; inventions, patents and copyrights; research consortium agreements; Panel on Energy Research and Development; program management; contract administration; project selection; project monitoring process; Mineral Development Agreements; federal research and development programs; energy conversion cost-shared program; Research Agreements Program; Industrial Research Assistance Program; evaluation of technology proposals; technology transfer and marketing; business development. Program Record Number: EMR MET 450

Canada Explosives Act Administration
Description: Information relating to administration of the Canada Explosives Act by testing and confirming the new explosives submitted for authorization, providing technical advice and investigating accidents. Topics: testing and research; certification and technical advice; research and development of new technical standards. Program Record Number: EMR MET 455

Energy Research and Development

Description: Information relating to formal applications to write Canada Lands Surveyor exams including applicants' names, addresses, date of birth, country of birth, academic qualifications and work experience, copies of diplomas and certificates, statements of marks, names of special examiners and individuals' exam papers. Class of Individuals: Individuals applying to qualify as Canada Lands Surveyors. Purpose: Information is used by the Board of Examiners for Canada Lands Surveyors in the examination process to qualify candidates as Canada Lands Surveyors. Consistent Uses: Marks forwarded to provincial governments at request of candidates. Retention and Disposal Standards: Examination papers retained for two years after correction. Files retained two years after individual reaches age eighty. PAC Number: 85-010 Related to PR#: EMR SMR 400, 405 TBS Registration: 000399 Bank Number: EMR PPU 010

Canadian Exploration Incentive Program (CEIP)
Description: This bank contains information relating to the Canadian Exploration Incentive Program (CEIP) and the Canadian Exploration and Development Incentive Program (CEDIP). The CEIP incentive is available to any corporation that incurs an eligible exploration expense for mineral or oil and gas exploration in Canada using funds raised through the issue of flow-through shares. The CEDIP incentive is available to any individual, corporation or trust that incurs an eligible expense for oil and gas exploration in Canada. Applicants are required to complete forms on which they must provide their identification, the amount of incentive claimed and the eligible expenses of each well, program, or project claimed. Applicants must also provide a certification confirming the completeness and accuracy of the information submitted. Applicants will be required to submit technical data and detailed expense summaries for each well, program or project claimed when this information has not been submitted previously. If an applicant shares the $10 million annual expense limit with another person or persons, a form specifying the amount allocated to each person must be completed. Class of Individuals: Under CEIP, individuals who are partners in a partnership that has acquired flow-through shares and individuals who are associated with applicant corporations. Under CEDIP, individuals who apply for incentives for oil and gas exploration and development in Canada. Purpose: The objective of collecting this information is to determine the eligibility of claimants and expenses for the purpose of making incentive payments. Consistent Uses: This information will also be used to determine cost norms for expenses; to track and control outstanding and completed applications; to facilitate recovery of incentives paid in error; to audit claimants' expenses and eligibility; and to establish internal effectiveness of the incentive payment process. Retention and Disposal Standards: Information is retained for 10 years after program termination. Information is then transferred to Federal Archives Division, National Archives of Canada, for archival purposes. The CEIP Program was terminated on February 20, 1990. Related to PR#: EMR MPS 555 TBS Registration: 001868 Bank Number: EMR PPU 055

Canadian Home Insulation Program (CHIP) Grants
Description: Cases relating to individual applications, invoices, inspection reports and pertinent correspondence pertaining to grants provided to householders for insulation materials and labour costs. Class of Individuals: Grant applicants. Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to control the administration of taxable insulation grants provided to eligible applicants under the Canadian Home Insulation Program (CHIP). It permits the issue of income statement forms in the name of the applicant, provides information requested by provincial governments considering further assistance to applicants, and also assists in evaluation studies associated with the program. Consistent Uses: Information is shared with Canada Mortgage and Housing Corporation, which answers specific enquiries regarding program applications through regional offices located across Canada. Retention and Disposal Standards: After program termination in March 1986, individual grant information existing in all media will be copied onto approximately 70-100 tapes which will then be retained another six years in a federal records centre. PAC Number: 85-015 Related to PR#: EMR ENS 245 TBS Registration: 000401 Bank Number: EMR PPU 020

Certification in Non-Destructive Testing
Description: Information relating to the certification, on a national basis, of non-destructive testing personnel in accordance with CGSB standards. Aspects include examination in industrial radiography, ultrasonics, magnetic particle, liquid penetrant, and eddy current methods. Includes names, addresses, medical certification on eyesight, original application forms, examination copies and results, date(s) of certification and methods, and data on annual certification renewal of individuals who undergo examination. Class of Individuals: Individuals desiring certification in non-destructive testing. Purpose: Information is used to certify individuals in non-destructive testing and answer queries from outside organizations on an individual's certification status. The information is also used to prepare a list of certified personnel in good standing which is published annually and made available to the public. Consistent Uses: Information regarding an individual's marks may be provided to an employer when the employer provides the testing fee. Retention and Disposal Standards: Files are retained ten years after expiry of certification. PAC Number: 85-010 Related to PR#: EMR MET 465 TBS Registration: 000400 Bank Number: EMR PPU 015

Discrimination
Description: This bank contains information on complaints filed with the Canadian Human Rights Commission; includes nature of complaint, testimony of witnesses, legal opinions, investigation reports and correspondence. Class of Individuals: The information relates to current and former departmental employees and members of the general public who have submitted discrimination complaints against the Department. Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to collect and maintain records on complaints, filed with the Canadian Human Rights Commission, to alleged discrimination against an employee on any of the grounds set out in the Canadian Human Rights Act. Consistent Uses: The records are used to assist in the investigation of whether or not discrimination has occurred and to recommend and support management decisions in resolution of complaints. Retention and Disposal Standards: Records are retained for a period of two years after the last administrative use. Related to PR#: EMR HRS 655 TBS Registration: 003307 Bank Number: EMR PPU 075

Emergency Fuel Rationing Program
Description: This bank contains information relating to the implementation of an emergency fuel rationing program in Canada required in the event of a severe oil shortage and pursuant to the Energy Supplies Emergency Act (1979). Ration coupons would be issued to eligible applicants who would be required to provide various discrete personal data elements such as name, address, vehicle plate number and driver's license number. Business applicants would be required to provide information on the nature of their business and fuel consumption over specific periods in order to enable calculation of their ration share. Individuals would be hired under contract to collect this information and issue the ration coupons. Class of Individuals: Individuals who purchase gasoline and diesel fuel at retail outlets during rationing and individuals hired under contract to issue coupons. Purpose: The data would be collected in order to administer the various aspects of the fuel rationing program and only in the event that such rationing is necessary. Consistent Uses: Information would be used to substantiate applicants' eligibility to obtain fuel coupons. Selected samples of vehicle registration data will be checked for accuracy with the Motor Vehicle Registrars in each province. Information relating to individuals hired under contract will be used for processing payments. Retention and Disposal Standards: The Emergency Fuel Rationing personal information bank will be retained for two years after the discontinuance of the rationing program, then transferred to federal Archives Division, National Archives of Canada, for archival purposes. Related to PR#: EMR ENS 195 TBS Registration: 002833 Bank Number: EMR PPU 050

Energy Conversion Grants Program
Description: Information relating to individuals applying for Canada Oil Substitution Program (COSP) grants including applications, correspondence, invoices and financial information. Class of Individuals: Homeowners. Purpose: The information is used to control, justify and process payment of the grant. Information is also used to capture statistical information by geographic location, type of conversion, volume of conversions in each province, and type of fuel. This aggregate data and some personal information is used for planning and program evaluation purposes over the lifetime of the program. Consistent Uses: Information is shared with provincial utility companies who deliver some aspects of the program. This information may be used to qualify applicants for further grants by provincial governments or agencies. Retention and Disposal Standards: Individual applications will be retained eight years after program termination (until March 31, 1993). PAC Number: 85-011 Related to PR#: EMR ENS 245 TBS Registration: 000402 Bank Number: EMR PPU 025

Explosives Licenses and Permits
Description: Information relating to the issue and control of licenses and permits granted for storage, transportation by road, importation, manufacture and sale of explosives. Class of Individuals: All individuals with a need to store, transport, or handle explosives. Purpose: To fulfil the responsibility of the Explosives Branch as the federal licensing and inspection agency for explosives in Canada. Consistent Uses: Transmittal of information to investigative bodies when an infraction or incident concerning explosives occurs. Retention and Disposal Standards: Licenses and permits are retained for seven years after expiry date. PAC Number: 85-010 Related to PR#: EMR MET 530; EMR MET 540 TBS Registration: 000398 Bank Number: EMR PPU 005

Forestry Canada Consultation List and Related Profiles
Description: This bank contains the names, addresses, make-up objectives, activities and concerns of persons and firms who have agreed to be on the Forest Sector consultation list. Class of Individuals: Forestry sector stakeholders. Purpose: To provide a list of persons, companies and agencies willing to be consulted by the Minister of Natural Resources or one of his representatives when critical forest sector issues come under review. Consistent Uses: The information other than names, addresses and telephone numbers is to be used to determine who should be contacted for specific consultations. Retention and Disposal Standards: Information is retained for two years and then destroyed. Related to PR#: FOR CPA 135 TBS Registration: 002775 Bank Number: FOR PPU 035

Geological Survey of Canada Volunteers Program
Description: This bank contains information and applications from individual public or private groups, high school, college and university students, foreign students and scientists, school teachers, senior citizens and retirees and part-time workers with time to spare. Applicants provide their name, address, telephone number, person to contact in case of emergency, work location preference, language, skills, abilities, educational background, experience desired, availability and objectives for working as a volunteer. GSC provides the date of commencement and termination of assignment. Class of Individuals: Individuals 17 years of age or older who wish to volunteer their time and services to the Geological Survey of Canada. Purpose: As of April 1, 1993, the Volunteers Program at the Geological Survey of Canada will enable the GSC to formally accept and utilize voluntary help and services. Through many challenging opportunities, volunteers can gain new experiences in the earth sciences while volunteering at headquarters located in Ottawa or at the regional offices located in Dartmouth, Nova Scotia, Ste-Foy, Quebec, Calgary, Alberta, Vancouver and Sidney, British Columbia. Consistent Uses: A Volunteers Program database will be developed in order to record information on potential volunteers. This database will be used for internal purposes only. Information on volunteers will be provided to division representatives and project managers to identify applicants suitable for particular projects. Retention and Disposal Standards: Computerized database is retained for two years. Records of assignments are retained for two years after the termination of the agreement. Related to PR#: EMR GSC 350 TBS Registration: 002879 Bank Number: EMR PPU 070

Natural Gas Vehicle Program
Description: Contains information and applications from individual private use vehicle owners and fleet operators for a contribution of up to $500 for each vehicle converted to a natural gas fuel system or for a new factory-equipped vehicle purchased by the applicant, including copies of vehicle ownerships, invoices, purchase orders and work orders substantiating the application for each vehicle. Class of Individuals: Private use vehicle owners and corporations and businesses operating vehicles eligible under the program. Purpose: The information is used to substantiate applications, the cost of conversions, to determine the amount to be paid to applicants and for statistical and audit purposes relative to the program.

Consistent Uses: Natural gas utilities in the provinces, accept and process applications on behalf of the Department under a Memorandum of Agreement. Retention and Disposal Standards: The natural gas utilities maintain one copy of each application and any supporting documentation submitted by the applicant during the term of the program and for a period of up to two years following termination of the program. All such records are subject to review or audit by representatives of Canada. Related to PR#: EMR ENS 245 TBS Registration: 002776 Bank Number: EMR PPU 060

Offshore Operations – Divers

Description: Cases relating to an individual diver's diving history. The information consists of the names, addresses, birthdates, birthplaces, physical condition and training of divers. Class of Individuals: Individuals – divers. Purpose: Main use is to provide rapid access to a diver's history to expedite certification and provide data required for annual certification. Diving program approval is contingent upon knowledge of an individual diver's qualifications and work history in order to prevent accidents caused by lack of experience in unusual circumstances. Consistent Uses: Information is also used to develop statistical profiles of the diving population, and to otherwise identify areas of diving regulations requiring updating and improvement for increased diver safety. Retention and Disposal Standards: Information is retained until the diver reaches 65 years of age, and for two years thereafter, after which the data will be transferred to the National Archives of Canada for archival purposes. PAC Number: 85-010 Related to PR#: EMR CGA 065 TBS Registration: 000406 Bank Number: EMR PPU 045

Public Awareness of Forest Sector

Description: This bank contains information on the general public's knowledge and awareness of economic, social and cultural aspects of the forest sector. Class of Individuals: General public. Purpose: To verify effectiveness of the National Forest Awareness Campaign by determining the increase in awareness. Consistent Uses: To establish increased awareness during the campaign and to improve the message if needed. In addition, the bank is also used to establish the base of the tracking survey, and to see the final results of the campaign. Retention and Disposal Standards: Five years after the entire collection is completed. Related to PR#: FOR CPA 135 TBS Registration: 002774 Bank Number: FOR PPU 040

Service Contracts

Description: Information relating to the provision of services by individuals and firms in the private sector to assist in departmental activities and programs. Class of Individuals: Contractors. Purpose: To provide information relative to contracts awarded by the Department. Contracts awarded by the Department of Supply and Services on behalf of EMR are not included. Consistent Uses: To compile statistical information with respect to numbers of contracts awarded by the Department. Retention and Disposal Standards: Files are destroyed six years after completion and non-renewal of contract. PAC Number: 86-001 Related to PR#: EMR FAS 740 TBS Registration: 000404 Bank Number: EMR PPU 035

Unsolicited Proposals Program

Description: Information relating to the executive level coordination of unsolicited proposals for research and development contracts received from Supply and Services Canada that relate to departmental missions, programs and operations. Copies of the proposals are forwarded to the branch having the relevant expertise to assess the project. Class of Individuals: Individuals, companies, and universities engaged in scientific research. Purpose: The information is used to assess the projects and the unique capability of the performer. Consistent Uses: To compile general statistics of interest to the Department with respect to the program as a whole. Retention and Disposal Standards: Proposals are retained for two years after acceptance or rejection. PAC Number: 85-010 Related to PR#: EMR DEX 024 TBS Registration: 000405 Bank Number: EMR PPU 040

Classes of Personal Information

Personal information concerning departmental employees and individuals employed under contract is held for personnel and other administrative functions as described under Employee Personal Information Banks. Some departmental programs and activities result in the accumulation of personal information which is not contained in the personal information banks (PIBs) described in this index. This personal information is stored within subject files where records are not normally retrieved by the name of the individual or other personal identifier. This form of personal information consists of: requests for publications, reports, etc.; enquiries for information of a general nature, enquiries concerning energy, forestry, minerals and earth sciences technology. It is normally retrievable only if specifics are provided concerning the subject matter. Retention of this form of personal information is controlled by the records schedules of the subject files in which the information is stored.

Human Resources Planning and Management

Personal information about employees is also maintained in other departmental files and data bases held by various organizations involved in the human resource planning and management functions. Such systems are used to provide aggregated reports for the purpose of human resource planning and management and to assist in analysis of trends or developments. Although some of the information may be retrieved by a personal identifier, the data bases are not used to provide information about individual employees nor to make any administrative decisions affecting individual employees.

Mailing Lists

This class includes correspondence and request cards from individuals regarding departmental mailing lists for publications, maps and charts, reports, catalogues, and indexes. The information is used for amending addresses and to add or delete individual names on mailing lists which are retained permanently. The correspondence and request cards are retained until the mailing list has been amended.

Ministerial Correspondence
This class of information contains correspondence addressed to the Minister and/or Deputy Minister from external organizations and individuals in the form of requests for information, complaints, opinions and other submissions related to a broad range of policy issues pertaining to Natural Resources Canada's activities, wherein some unsolicited personal information has been provided by the correspondent. This form of information would be retrievable only if specifics of name, date of communication and subject were to be provided; it is not arranged or retrievable by personal identifiers. The retention periods of these classes of personal information are controlled by the record schedules of the general subject files in which they are stored.

Research Agreements Program
This class contains applications for grants submitted to the Department from candidates affiliated with Canadian research institutions. Applications contain information on the description and budget for the proposed project and the applicant's curriculum vitae. The information is used to select and award grants in the natural, physical and social sciences and engineering which can contribute to the Department's purpose. The information is also used to compile general statistics of interest to the Department with respect to the program as a whole, and not in relation to individual applicants. Accepted applications are destroyed after a period of six fiscal years and those not accepted are destroyed after two fiscal years.

Technical Enquiries – Canada Centre for Mineral and Energy Technology (CANMET)
This class includes technical enquiries, comments and opinions of individuals corresponding with the Department regarding issues related to energy, mining and mineral technology. The information is used for reference purposes regarding any subsequent enquiry by an individual. Correspondence is retained for a minimum of two years.

Explosives Safety and Accident Statistics – Explosives Division
The purpose of this class is to provide a record of statistics on safety measures in the explosives industry as well as on all accidents related to explosives. The files contain information on the nature of the accident as well as the victim's name, age and address, if applicable. Records are retained for 25 years after the date of the incident and are then transferred to the National Archives of Canada for selective retention.

Natural Sciences and Engineering Research Council of Canada

Chapter 74

General Information

Background

The Natural Sciences and Engineering Research Council (NSERC) is a departmental Crown corporation that was established on May 1, 1978. Its purpose is to promote and assist research in the natural sciences and engineering, and to advise the Minister in respect of such matters relating to such research as the Minister may refer to the Council for its consideration. NSERC is responsible for the management and administration of the Program of Scholarships and Grants in Aid of Research. These grants and scholarships are intended primarily for university research and graduate students.

Responsibilities

The function of the Council is to promote and support research in the natural sciences and engineering, other than the health sciences, and to advise the Minister on such research. The Council is responsible for the management and administration of the Program of Scholarships and Grants in Aid of Research.

Legislation

- Government Organization (Scientific Activities) Act

Organization

■ Executive Offices

The Executive Offices include the office of the President, who is the chief executive officer of Council, and that of the Executive Vice-President, who is also the Treasurer of the Council. As Council's most senior executives, they are responsible for the overall management and direction of the work of the staff of the Council in the development and delivery of programs.

■ Secretariat-General

The Secretariat-General, headed by the Secretary-General of Council, coordinates the administration of a complex network of committees which form the basis of NSERC's operations. The Secretariat-General also manages program planning, budgeting and evaluation activities and the Council's internal and external communications function, including publishing and public and media relations.

■ Research Grants Directorate

This directorate coordinates the activity associated with support of the research base (operating grants in support of a spectrum of research activities, collaborative research initiatives, grants for the purchase, operation and maintenance of research equipment, facilities and installations) as well as the prestigious E.W.R. Steacie Memorial Fellowships. This activity includes the provision of operational support to selection committees composed of external experts in a series of complex peer-adjudicated competition processes, in program planning and management and in day to day awards administration.

■ Scholarships and International Programs Directorate

This directorate administers competitions, provides operations support to adjudication committees and manages the day to day activity associated with a wide range of awards to undergraduate and graduate students, postdoctoral fellows and scientists and engineers for advanced study and research training in Canadian universities, industry, government laboratories, and abroad.

■ Targeted Research Directorate

This directorate administers programs intended to promote research in selected fields of national importance and to forge closer links between the university research community, research-oriented government departments and the private sector. These programs include strategic grants and research partnerships.

■ Corporate Systems and Services Directorate

This directorate is responsible for the systems and services which support NSERC's officers and staff and facilitate the implementation of programs. In general, this includes administration, finance, personnel and information management activities.

Program Records

Collaborative Research Initiatives
Description: Information related to a series of NSERC programs designed to support collaboration among Canadian scientists and engineers. Topics: Collaborative special projects and programs; infrastructure grants. Access: Files arranged by applicant, university, program, and year. Storage Medium: For certain programs, information maintained in case files is held in a computerized database. Program Record Number: SER RES 031

Communications
Description: Information related to the administration and management of NSERC's internal and external communications function including publishing, public and media relations. Topics: Communications, public relations, publications. Access: Files arranged by subject. Program Record Number: SER SEC 021

Equipment Grants
Description: Information related to NSERC's role in enhancing the research capability of university researchers and providing a stimulating environment for research by supporting the purchase of research equipment and installations. Topics: Equipment grants; major installation grants; research equipment; university research. Access: Files arranged by applicant, university, year. Storage Medium: Computer database and paper case files. Program Record Number: SER RES 036

Evaluation and Audit
Description: Information related to internal audits and to the evaluation of NSERC's programs, corporate systems and services. Topics: Program evaluation, internal audit. Access: Files arranged by subject. Program Record Number: SER SEC 016

General Research Grants
Description: Information related to funds made available to presidents of eligible universities on the basis of the number of researchers at the university receiving NSERC support, as well as information related to special supplements for smaller universities. Topics: General Research Grants; university research; funding university research; small universities. Access: Information arranged by university and year. Program Record Number: SER RES 041

International Activities
Description: Information related to NSERC programs aimed at fostering cooperation and collaboration between Canadian researchers and scientists and engineers in other countries through such activities as joint projects, visits and exchanges. Also information related to NSERC's efforts to alert Canadian universities, governments and companies to the availability of highly qualified Canadian research personnel studying or working in other countries. Topics: International Scientific Exchange Awards; Register of Canadians Studying Abroad; Bilateral Exchange Programs; International Collaborative Research Grants; CIDA/NSERC Research Associateships. Access: Files arranged by applicant name, program and year. Storage Medium: Computer database and paper case files. Program Record Number: SER SIP 065

Operating Grants
Description: Information related to NSERC's operating grants program which is aimed at the promotion and support of a broad base of high quality research in the natural sciences and engineering in Canadian universities. Topics: Operating grants – (individual, team and project); research grants, university research, funding of university research. Access: Files arranged by name of applicant, university, and year. Storage Medium: Computer database and paper case files. Program Record Number: SER RES 026

Other General Support
Description: Information related to a series of NSERC special programs and mechanisms aimed at the promotion and support of research activity nor supported by the Operating Grants Program or other programs which support the university research base. Topics: E. W. R. Steacie Memorial Fellowships; Special Forestry Support; Attachés de recherche du CRSNG; conference grants; scientific publications grants. Access: Information arranged by name of applicant and/or university, program, and year. Storage Medium: Computer database and paper case files. Program Record Number: SER RES 045

Policy and Planning
Description: Information related to corporate and long-range planning and policy development activity. Topics: Policy and planning, five-year plans, organizational development. Access: Files arranged by subject. Program Record Number: SER SEC 011

Postgraduate Scholarships
Description: Information related to NSERC programs which aim to assist in the provision of highly qualified scientists and engineers by providing financial support to excellent students working toward a master's or doctoral degree in the natural sciences or engineering. Topics: Postgraduate Scholarships; 1967 Science and Engineering Scholarships; Postgraduate Scholarships in Science Librarianship and Documentation; scholarships. Access: Files arranged by name of applicant, program and year. Storage Medium: Computer database and paper case files. Program Record Number: SER SIP 055

Research Fellowships
Description: Information related to NSERC programs which provide recent doctoral graduates in science and engineering disciplines with opportunities to add to their experience by engaging in research activities in universities and research institutes in Canada and abroad, and in Canadian research-oriented companies. Topics: Postdoctoral Fellowships; University Research Fellowships; Industrial Research Fellowships. Access: Files arranged by name of applicant, program and year. Storage Medium: Computer database and paper case files. Program Record Number: SER SIP 060

Research Partnerships
Description: Information related to NSERC's Research Partnerships program which promotes and supports joint research initiatives and collaboration between universities, Canadian companies, and research-oriented federal government departments. Topics: University-industry programs; university-government programs, research and development. Access: Files arranged by subject or by case file number. Storage Medium: Computerized database and paper case files. Program Record Number: SER TAR 075

Secretariat
Description: Information related to the organizational structure, membership, agenda, minutes and activities of the Council and its permanent advisory and special purpose committees. Topics: Terms of reference, agenda and minutes, membership, committees. Access: Information arranged by subject or by committee. Program Record Number: SER SEC 006

Strategic Grants
Description: Information related to NSERC's program of strategic grants which provide support to eligible researchers or teams of researchers in Canadian academic institutions for the initiation or acceleration of substantial projects in certain areas of national concern. Topics: Strategic grants; grants; university research; funding of university research. Access: Files are arranged by name of principal applicant, university, and year. Storage Medium: Computer database and paper case files. Program Record Number: SER TAR 070

Undergraduate Research Awards
Description: Information related to awards intended to stimulate the interest of undergraduates be exposing them to research settings in universities and industry. Topics: University Undergraduate Student Research Awards; Industrial Undergraduate Student Research Awards; scholarships. Access: Files arranged by name of applicant and year. Storage Medium: Computer database and paper case files. Program Record Number: SER SIP 050

Description: This bank contains information related to applications for support of Collaborative Research Initiatives. Specifically, it includes material related to applications for grants in support of Collaborative Special Projects and Programs, including infrastructure grants, submitted by individuals who hold academic appointments in eligible Canadian academic institutions. It also contains information related to the administration of these types of awards. It includes details of applicants' post-secondary education, professional experience, and proposals, as well as referee and committee assessments, decisions, reports and recommendations. Class of Individuals: Individuals who apply to NSERC for support of collaborative projects and third parties from whom NSERC has requested assessments of proposals. Purpose: All information collected from applicants and referees is used to evaluate applications, select candidates, monitor awards and administer programs. Consistent Uses: NSERC also uses information in this bank to identify prospective referees and committee members, to evaluate its programs, and to produce statistics and planning information. Retention and Disposal Standards: Paper files, some of which contain documentation on successive applications and awards, are retained by NSERC until ten years from the date of the last correspondence on file. Related to PR#: SER RES 031 TBS Registration: 002573 Bank Number: SER PPU 055

This bank contains information for reference on candidates available for employment at the Natural Sciences and Engineering Research Council when vacancies arise. Records contain letters, completed application forms, applicant resumes; it may contain comments of the interviewer, letters of reference and other application information on individuals who have applied for specific advertised openings or an appropriate future opening. Individuals wishing access should provide their full name and address. Records are retained for two fiscal years and then destroyed. Bank Number: SER PPU 045

General Support Programs
Description: This bank contains applications, forms and correspondence related to NSERC's research support and other general support programs, some of which provide support for research personnel. This would include the Attachés de recherche du CRSNG, the E.W.R. Steacie Fellowships, access to supercomputers and some miscellaneous grants. Files may contain details of applicant's post-secondary education, professional experience, referee and selection committee assessments, and Council's decisions. They may also contain administrative and financial documents related to the administration of awards. Class of Individuals: Individuals who participate in NSERC's Research Support and other general support programs and third parties from whom NSERC has requested assessments of proposals. Purpose: Information in the bank is used to review applications, select candidates, monitor awards and administer programs. Consistent Uses: NSERC also uses information in this bank to identify prospective referees and committee members, to evaluate programs and to produce statistics and planning information. Retention and Disposal Standards: Case files, which can include documentation related to a series of successive applications, are retained by NSERC until seven years from the date of the last correspondence on file. Related to PR#: SER RES 041, 045 TBS Registration: 002574 Bank Number: SER PPU 060

International Scientific Exchange Programs
Description: This bank contains information related to NSERC's Bilateral Exchange Programs, International Scientific Exchange Awards, International Collaborative Research Grants, and CIDA/NSERC Research Associateships. It contains information supplied by participants on their post-secondary education, professional experience and research proposals, and may include third-party assessments. The bank contains administrative and financial documentation generated in the administration of the awards. Class of Individuals: Participants in NSERC's International Scientific Exchange programs and individuals who provide assessments of proposals. Purpose: Information in the bank is used to review applications, select candidates, monitor awards and administer programs. Consistent Uses: NSERC also uses information in this bank to evaluate its programs, and to produce statistics and planning information. Retention and Disposal Standards: Paper files, which may contain documentation related to successive applications and awards, are retained by NSERC until seven years after the date of the last correspondence on file. Related to PR#: SER SIP 065 TBS Registration: 002576 Bank Number: SER PPU 070

Lists of External Referees
This electronic data processing bank contains names, affiliation and mailing addresses of individuals in Canada and abroad who are asked by the Council to review proposals for grants to individuals and groups. The information is used to select external referees for research proposals. Only a few of the fields of natural sciences and engineering are included in this bank. Persons requesting access should provide field of research, name and affiliation. The retention period for records in this bank is under review. Bank Number: SER PPU 050

Operating and Equipment Grants
Description: This bank contains information related to individual, team and project operating grant applications as well as applications for equipment and major installation grants submitted by researchers who hold academic appointments in eligible Canadian academic institutions and information related to the administration of these types of awards. It includes details of applicants' post-secondary education and professional experience, proposals, referee and selection committee assessments, and Council's decisions. Class of Individuals: Applicants for NSERC operating, equipment and major installation grants and third-party reviewers from whom NSERC has requested assessments of proposals. Purpose: Information in the bank is used to review select applications, monitor awards and administer programs. Consistent Uses: As indicated in NSERC's program literature, applications (particularly those for operating grants) may be reviewed in consultation with the other federal granting agencies (the Social Sciences and Humanities Research Council or the Medical Research Council), in order to determine the most appropriate review mechanism or source of funding. NSERC also uses information in this bank to identify prospective referees and committee members, to evaluate its programs, and to produce statistics and planning information. Retention and Disposal Standards: Inactive paper files, which may include the documentation related to multiple applications, are retained by NSERC until seven years after the date of the last correspondence on the volume. Related to PR#: SER RES 026, 036 TBS Registration: 002581 Bank Number: SER PPU 095

Register of Canadians Studying Abroad
Description: This bank contains information on the professional qualifications of Canadians who are doing postgraduate or postdoctoral work in the natural sciences or engineering in the foreign universities and institutes and who have registered with NSERC so that their availability may be made known to participating Canadian employers who require qualified research personnel. Information includes name, address, current field of study or research, and details of post-secondary education. Class of Individuals: Canadian graduate and postgraduate students studying or working in foreign countries who have registered with NSERC. Purpose: Information in the bank is used to facilitate the return to Canada of highly qualified scientists and engineers to meet the needs of Canadian employers. Consistent Uses: NSERC uses the information in the Register to evaluate its programs and to produce statistics and planning information. NSERC also searches the electronic database file associated with the Scholarships and Fellowships Personal Information Bank to identify potential registrants from among scholars receiving NSERC support. These individuals are then contacted and invited to register. Retention and Disposal Standards: Paper documents are retained for three calendar years after the year of registration. Registrants are removed from the electronic database upon request or automatically if no update is received for three years. Related to PR#: SER SIP 065 TBS Registration: 002577 Bank Number: SER PPU 075

Research Partnerships Programs
Description: This bank contains information on individuals participating in NSERC's Research Partnerships which promote collaboration between universities and companies or between universities and research-oriented federal government departments. Files may include details of applicants' post-secondary education, professional experience, and research proposals. They may also include references and assessments by third parties, committee recommendations, Council's decisions and documentation generated in the administration of awards. Class of Individuals: Participants in NSERC's Research Partnerships programs and individuals from whom NSERC has requested expert assessments of applications and proposals. Purpose: Information in the bank is used to review applications, select candidates, monitor awards and administer programs. Consistent Uses: NSERC also uses information in this bank to identify prospective referees and committee members, to evaluate its programs, and to produce statistics and planning information. Some data is shared between NSERC and other federal departments participating in the Research Partnerships. Retention and Disposal Standards: Paper files are retained by NSERC until seven years after the date of the last correspondence on file. Related to PR#: SER TAR 075 TBS Registration: 002580 Bank Number: SER PPU 090

Scholarships and Fellowships
Description: This bank contains information related to the adjudication and administration of NSERC's scholarships and fellowships programs including Undergraduate Research Awards (University and Industry), Postgraduate Scholarships, Industrial Postgraduate Scholarships, Postgraduate Scholarships in Science Librarianship and Documentation, 1967 Science and Engineering Scholarships, Postdoctoral Fellowships, Industrial Research Fellowships, University Research Fellowships, NATO Science Fellowships, and Canadian Shield Foundation Research Awards. It contains details of applicant's post-secondary education and, in some cases, professional experience. It includes ratings, assessments, recommendations and decisions. The bank also contains the administrative and financial documentation generated in the administration of these awards. Class of Individuals: Applicants for NSERC scholarships and fellowships and third parties who provide assessment of applicant's suitability for these awards. Purpose: Information in the bank is used to review applications, select candidates, monitor awards and administer programs. Consistent Uses: As indicated in NSERC's program literature, applications may be reviewed in consultation with the other federal granting agencies (the Social Sciences and Humanities Research Council or the Medical Research Council) in order to determine the most appropriate review mechanism or source of funding. NSERC also uses information in this bank to identify individuals who are also eligible or who might benefit from participation in other initiatives which support or promote the development of highly qualified scientific and engineering personnel, e.g. NSERC's Register of Canadians Studying Abroad (see separate bank description). In these situations, individuals are contacted and given the opportunity to decide for themselves whether they wish to participate. NSERC also uses information in this bank to identify prospective referees and committee members, evaluate its programs, and produce statistics and planning information. Retention and Disposal Standards: Paper files, which may contain documentation related to successive applications in different programs, are retained by NSERC until six years after the date of the last correspondence on file. Related to PR#: SER SIP 050, 055, 060 TBS Registration: 002575 Bank Number: SER PPU 065

Strategic Grants
Description: This bank contains information related to individual, group, and equipment applications received from researchers in Canadian academic institutions for support under the Strategic Grants program as well as information related to the administration of awards. It includes details of applicants' post-secondary education, professional experience, and research proposals as well as referee and selection panel assessments, and Council's decisions. Class of Individuals: Applicants for NSERC Strategic grants and third-party reviewers from whom NSERC has requested assessments of applications. Purpose: Information in the bank is used to review applications, select candidates, monitor awards and administer programs. Consistent Uses: NSERC also uses information in this bank to identify prospective referees and committee members, to evaluate its programs, and to produce statistics and planning information. As indicated in NSERC's program literature, applications may be reviewed in consultation with the other federal granting agencies (the Social Sciences and Humanities Research Council and Medical Research Council;) in order to determine the most appropriate review mechanism source of funding. Retention and Disposal Standards: Inactive paper files, which may include documentation related to multiple applications, are retained by NSERC until seven years after the date of the last correspondence. Related to

Visiting Fellowships
Description: This bank contains information related to the granting of Visiting Fellowships in Canadian Government Laboratories which NSERC administers on behalf of a number of federal departments and agencies. It also contains information on NSERC International Fellowships offered in Canadian Universities. The bank contains details of applicants' post-secondary education and professional experience. It may contain information on an applicant's marital status and the number and ages of children in cases where NSERC is involved in arranging travel and insurance. It includes assessments of applications as well as recommendations and decisions. The bank also contains the administrative and financial documentation generated in the administration of awards. Class of Individuals: Canadian citizens and researchers from other countries who participate in the program of Visiting Fellowships in Canadian Government Laboratories or the International Fellowships Program, and third parties who provide references and assessments of applicants' suitability for awards. Purpose: Information in the bank is used to review applications, select candidates, monitor awards and administer programs. Consistent Uses: NSERC also uses information in the bank to evaluate programs and to produce statistics and planning information. Retention and Disposal Standards: Paper files, which may contain documentation related to successive applications, are retained by NSERC until six years after the date of the last correspondence on the file. Related to PR#: SER SIP 065 TBS Registration: 002579 Bank Number: SER PPU 085

Classes of Personal Information

The general subject files of the Natural Sciences and Engineering Research Council contain a certain amount of personal information not arranged or retrievable by personal identifiers. Typically, this includes routine requests for information from the public or information about individuals (e.g., name, address, views or opinions) that is stored in subject files as a consequence of the dialogue between NSERC and the research community on program matters.

This kind of personal information is not used for any administrative purpose and is normally retrievable only if specifics are given concerning the date, subject and circumstances under which the information was provided. The retention period for this class of personal information is governed by schedules approved by the National Archivist for the various subject files in which it is stored.

Northern Pipeline Agency Canada
Chapter 75

General Information

Background

The Northern Pipeline Agency (NPA) was created with the proclamation of the Northern Pipeline Act in April 1978, to oversee planning and construction of the Canadian portion of the Alaska Highway Gas Pipeline Project by the Foothills Group of Companies. Pending resumption of planning and construction of the pipeline, the only office in the Agency that is staffed is the Office of the Commissioner, which maintains a small support staff.

Responsibilities

The Agency's mandate is twofold. It is required to regulate the project and to streamline and expedite the approvals process. It is also responsible for ensuring that the pipeline system yields for Canadians the maximum economic and industrial benefit with the least amount of social and environmental disruption, particularly to native communities.

The Agency was designed to act as a single window between federal authorities and the Foothills Group of Companies, and between provincial and territorial governments, and the Government of the United States. In keeping with the Act, many regulatory powers of other federal departments and agencies related to the pipeline project have been delegated to the Agency. This is not the case for those powers reserved exclusively to the National Energy Board or shared between the Board and the Agency.

Legislation

- Northern Pipeline Act, R.S.C. 1985, c. N-26

Organization

■ Office of the Commissioner

As Agency headquarters, the Office provides support to both the Minister responsible for the Agency and the Commissioner. The Office is responsible for developing and consulting on major policy issues between the United States, the provinces, and federal departments and agencies, concerning the planning and construction of the Canadian portion of the Alaska Highway Gas Pipeline Project.

■ Office of the Administrator

The Office exercises such powers and performs such duties and functions as the Minister may specify.

■ Office of the Designated Officer

The Office carries out all the responsibilities specifically required under the Northern Pipeline Act.

■ Policy and Programs Unit (not staffed)

This Unit is responsible for most aspects of the Agency's operational role not assigned by statute to the deputy administrator and designated officer, and for contributing to those orders, directions and approvals for the designated officer which require the Minister's concurrence. It is also responsible for socio-economic and environmental matters, industrial benefits, relationships with federal, provincial and territorial government departments, and manpower planning and logistical matters related to the project. It holds special policy responsibilities for the internal planning and administration of the Agency in matters of financial management and adminstration.

■ Socio-economic and Environment Unit (not staffed)

This Unit acts as liaison with various public interest groups and territorial, provincial and federal bodies; advises on socio-economic and environmental policies and procedures; administers terms and conditions; carries out socio-economic and environmental surveillance and monitoring to minimize the negative effects and maximize the benefits of construction and operation of the pipeline. It advises the Agency, federal, provincial and territorial government departments, and community and native groups, and confers with the owners, contractors, and unions on matters related to the avoidance and resolution of labour disputes on the project.

■ Scheduling and Regulatory Unit (not staffed)

This Unit oversees the project scheduling and cost control procedures involved in building the pipeline, including scheduling, critical path planning, and cost review and monitoring. It is also involved in the major areas of project progress information centre and surveillance proceedings, right-of-way responsibilities delegated by the National Energy Board, as well as the issue of permits and orders to ensure correct technical content.

■ Engineering Design Unit (not staffed)

This Unit is responsible for design review and ensuring that appropriate methods are followed by the pipeline engineering section with each company of the Foothills Group. It is responsible for the approval of all engineering design of the pipeline, as well as for providing direction to personnel who will ensure that the company conforms with the engineering requirements, orders, specifications and terms and conditions related to the construction of the pipeline.

Northwest Territories Water Board

Chapter 76

General Information

Background

The Northwest Territories Water Board was established under section 7 of the Northern Inland Waters Act, which was proclaimed on February 28, 1972. The Northern Inland Waters Regulations were promulgated on September 14, 1972. Two amendments to the Regulations have been made since; one on January 15, 1975, and the other on July 17, 1975. The Board held its founding meeting in Yellowknife, N.W.T. on April 8, 1972.

Responsibilities

The Board provides for the conservation, development and use of the water resources of the Northwest Territories in a manner that will provide the optimum benefit for all Canadians, and for the residents of the Territories in particular. Under the Act an application must be made to the Board and a licence issued prior to the use of any waters or disposal of any waterborne waste. The requirement for application applies equally to departments and agencies of the federal government. The only exclusions are the use of water for domestic purposes, for extinguishing a fire or, in an emergency, for controlling or preventing a flood.

Legislation

- Northern Inland Waters Act
- Northern Inland Waters Regulations

Organization

The Board consists of not fewer than three and not more than nine members appointed by the Minister of Indian Affairs and Northern Development. It is made up of at least one nominee from those departments of the Government of Canada which, in the opinion of the Governor in Council, are most directly concerned with the management of the water resources in the Northwest Territories, and at least three persons named by the Commissioner in Council of the Northwest Territories.

Professional and technical staff is provided by the Minister of Indian Affairs and Northern Development to help conduct the business of the Board and its activities. A Technical Advisory Committee was established in 1973 to provide a forum for the discussion of technical matters related to applications for use of water and waste disposal.

Office of the Chief Electoral Officer
Chapter 78

General Information

PLEASE NOTE: THE OFFICE OF THE CHIEF ELECTORAL OFFICER IS NOT SUBJECT TO THE ACCESS TO INFORMATION ACT.

Responsibilities

The Communications Directorate: The Directorate is responsible for developing and implementing programs and activities aimed at increasing public awareness of the electoral system and the role of Elections Canada, and at informing electors about their democratic rights guaranteed under the Charter of Rights and Freedoms and how they may exercise those rights. Activities include advertising, public, community and media relations, publications and the operation of an enquiries service.

The Operations Directorate: The Directorate supervises the administrative conduct of federal elections; trains federal returning officers; prepares books of instructions for election officers; applies the provisions of the Act pertaining to the eligibility of persons to vote; supervises the revision of polling division boundaries; compiles statistics and statutory reports and, as required, assists eleven electoral Boundaries Commissions in carrying out their mandate under the Electoral Boundaries Readjustment Act to determine the boundaries of the electoral districts assigned to each province.

Election Financing Directorate: The Directorate is responsible for both the financial management of the organization and for satisfying all statutory requirements under the Canada Elections Act. The Directorate maintains registries of political parties and registered agents, examines the election expenses returns of candidates and registered political parties at federal elections, establishes the amounts to be reimbursed and arranges payments; refers to the Commissioner of Canada Elections those cases where a breach of the Canada Elections Act is suspected; audits and pays statements of fees and claims submitted by election officers.

The Commissioner of Canada Elections: The Commissioner of Canada Elections is responsible by Statute for ensuring, under the general supervisor of the Chief Electoral Officer, that the provisions of the Canada Elections Act are complied with and enforced.

Legal Services: The Directorate is responsible for dealing with all legal matters arising within Elections Canada. For instance, these problems include claims for damages to rented premises during an electoral event, complaints to the Canadian Human Rights Commission as well as judicial proceedings undertaken in order to obtain a declaration that certain provisions of the Canada Elections Act are unconstitutional as they do not conform to the Charter.

International Services: The Directorate is responsible for maintaining a list of potential candidates to act as observers at eventual electoral events abroad.

Privacy Coordinator: The Privacy Coordinator deals with all requests received pursuant to the Privacy Act. He establishes policies in order to handle the various requests and supervises the general administration of the statute.

Description: This bank contains the names and addresses of individuals or organizations who have asked to be put on mailing lists (two) to receive copies of all new or revised publications or the quarterly newsletter CONTACT, published by Elections Canada. Class of Individuals: The Canadian population in general, some academics and Members of Parliament, libraries, federal government institutions and other organizations and companies. Purpose: To provide information about the electoral system, at the request of the individuals concerned. Retention and Disposal Standards: The lists are routinely updated. TBS Registration: 002765 Bank Number: CEO PPU 020

Election Financing
This information bank contains the names and addresses of candidates, official agents and auditors; the name of each registered political party; their registered agent and auditor; the officers and the registered agents of each party; the election expenses returns of candidates seeking election to the House of Commons and of registered political parties; the amounts of money reimbursed to political parties and candidates who qualify; the name and address of each election officer and other personal data; the amount of fees paid and claims reimbursed to election officers and the particulars of cases referred by the Election Financing Directorate to the Commissioner of Canada Elections for review. This information relates to candidates, official agents and auditors; chief agents, political parties, auditors, officers and registered agents; and election officers, e.g., returning officers, election clerks, deputy returning officers, poll clerks, enumerators, revising officers and revising agents. This information is necessary in order to reimburse election expenses of candidates and political parties as well as to pay fees to various election officers for their services in connection with a federal election. Copies of candidate and party returns are maintained on microfiche at the National Archives of Canada. Information relating to election officers is disposed of in the same manner as all other financial payment records. Bank Number: CEO PPU 010

Election Operations
This information bank contains data on returning officers appointed by Order-in-Council, the names of candidates and their official agents as recorded in the candidates' nomination papers, as well as the names of the electors who sign the candidates' nomination papers; preliminary lists of electors; revising officers' record sheets; record of decisions in cases involving a person's eligibility to vote; complaints with respect to the manner in which election officers discharge their duties; personal data on individuals who are deprived of their right to vote and/or be a candidate because of a conviction for a corrupt or an illegal practice under the Canada Elections Act. This information relates to the Canadian electorate and candidates at federal elections. It has been compiled following the preparation of voters' lists and the completion of nomination papers as required by the Act. Voter's lists are used by candidates during their election campaign and by poll officials to check on the entitlement to vote of citizens presenting themselves at polling stations. The Canada Elections Act authorizes the Chief Electoral Officer to transmit copies of lists of electors to the Chief Electoral Officers of the provinces and the clerks of municipalities to be used for provincial and municipal electoral purposes only. After an election, the lists of candidates and lists of electors are sometimes used for research purposes pursuant to section 8(2)(j) of the Privacy Act. As well, the information appearing on voters' lists may be disclosed in the public interest according to section 8(2)(m) of the Act. Nomination papers are public documents only during the election and can be inspected at the office of the returning officer during the election; after the election the Chief Electoral Officer retains these documents. All election documents, as defined by the Act, are retained by the Chief Electoral Officer for a period of one year following the election as required by the Act. After that year, most of those documents are sent to National Archives of Canada; voters' lists are microfilmed. Bank Number: CEO PPU 005

Office of the Commissioner of Official Languages
Chapter 79

General Information

PLEASE NOTE: THE OFFICE OF THE COMMISSIONER OF OFFICIAL LANGUAGES IS NOT SUBJECT TO THE ACCESS TO INFORMATION ACT.

Responsibilities

The terms of reference of the Commissioner of Official Languages (COL) are set out in the Official Languages Act. This legislation came into effect in September 1988. The terms of reference consist in ensuring recognition of the status of each of the official languages and compliance with the spirit and intent of the Act in the administration of the affairs of federal institutions and in promoting English and French in Canadian society.

The Commissioner fulfils his or her duties in three ways: he/she investigates complaints regarding matters governed by the Official Languages Act; he/she carries out studies, research, analyses and audits with respect to the equality of status and equal rights and privileges of the official languages; and, lastly, he/she encourages application of the Act by providing information and advice, and by working with the public as well as with federal organizations. The Commissioner's mandate encompasses the entire federal apparatus -departments, agencies, Crown corporations, and so on.

Policy and Regional Operations
In order to keep abreast of trends, and with a view to ensuring recognition of the status of Canada's official languages in co-operation with individuals and organizations, the Policy and the Commissioner's Secretariat and Regional Operations Branches keep some information on those organizations and individuals with whom it is necessary for the OCOL to communicate on a regular basis, to obtain or verify information having to do with minority official language rights: languages and education; federal official languages programs; and private sector initiatives in the area of official languages. At this point these files are mainly in the form of lists of names and addresses; they do not contain any personal information beyond that which is necessary to identify the person and/or organization. They are located in Ottawa and in the five regional offices – Edmonton, Winnipeg, Toronto, Montreal and Moncton.

Office of the Grain Transportation Agency Administrator

Chapter 80

General Information

Background

The Grain Transportation Agency was created by the Western Grain Transportation Act, 1983. It is a branch designated as a department for purposes of the Financial Administration Act. The Agency reports to Parliament through the Minister of Transport.

Responsibilities

The Grain Transportation Agency (GTA) is charged with the development, coordination and management of specific aspects of the grain handling and transportation system. The Agency, under the direction of the Administrator, is responsible for promoting transportation system efficiencies, monitoring railway performance relative to grain, allocating grain cars in co-operation with the Canadian Wheat Board and the Canadian Grain Commission, and generally coordinating the handling and transportation of grain. A Senior Grain Transportation Committee (SGTC), made up of senior representatives from all facets of the grain trade, was established under the Western Grain Transportation Act as an advisory body to the Minister of Transport and the Administrator. The Agency provides administration and technical support to the SGTC.

Legislation

- Western Grain Transportation Act

Organization

The overall organizational structure of the Grain Transportation Agency is divided into three divisions:

■ Operations Division

The Operations Division is responsible for car allocation, involving the weekly determination of the number of railway grain cars required and available to move western grains to export and domestic destinations. It is also responsible for the overall coordination of grain movement, including port coordination at Vancouver and Thunder Bay, control of the government hopper car fleet, transportation administration tasks and public information.

■ Planning Division

The division is responsible for improving the efficiency of the grain handling and transportation system, developing and implementing procedures for setting performance targets for the railways and other system participants, developing information systems (including EDP), and conducting studies and analysis.

■ Resource Management Division

The division provides financial and administrative support for the Agency, encompassing the areas of financial systems, accounting, budgetary control, goods and services acquisition, materiel management and contract administration, personnel services, secretarial and clerical support functions, and all general administrative functions.

Office of the Inspector General of the Canadian Security Intelligence Service

Chapter 81

General Information

Background

The present Inspector General was appointed by the Governor in Council on May 6, 1992, pursuant to section 30 of the Canadian Security Intelligence Service Act (the CSIS Act).

Responsibilities

The CSIS Act requires the Inspector General to: monitor the compliance by CSIS with its operational policies; review the operational activities of CSIS, including such reviews as the Security Intelligence Review Committee (SIRC) may direct, and submit to the Solicitor General certificates stating the extent to which the Inspector General is satisfied with each report submitted by the CSIS Director under section 33 of the Act. The certificates must also indicate whether any act or thing done by CSIS in the course of its operational activities during the period to which a report relates is, in the opinion of the Inspector General, not authorized by or under the Act, contravenes any directions issued by the Solicitor General, or involves an unreasonable or unnecessary exercise by CSIS of any of its powers.

Legislation

- Canadian Security Intelligence Service Act

Organization

For administrative purposes, the Office of the Inspector General forms part of the Secretariat of the Ministry of the Solicitor General. The Office is divided into two units:

Policy and Standards Unit:

Analyzes legislative and policy provisions or proposals relating to the performance of the Inspector General's statutory functions; develops standards and guidelines for reviewing and monitoring CSIS operational activities; provides advice on issues of law or policy that concern the Inspector General, and assists the Inspector General with the preparation of reports, certificates and other documents.

Operations Unit:

Develops and implements operational plans for monitoring and reviewing CSIS operational activities; assists the Inspector General in undertaking specific reviews requested by the Solicitor General or the SIRC; advises the Inspector General respecting CSIS operational programs, and provides general administrative services to the Inspector General.

Classes of Personal Information

The Inspector General does not administer a personal information collection program. However, while carrying out his official duties, he may incidentally accumulate personal information that is not contained in the information banks described in this entry. Such information exists in fragmentary form throughout the files maintained at the Office of the Inspector General. It relates to the performance of the Inspector General's statutory or executive functions. Some of this information, originally collected by CSIS, forms part of CSIS records and pertains to specific activities of CSIS that are, from time to time, monitored or reviewed by the Inspector General. Other portions have been generated internally, by other government agencies or by the general public in the form of opinions and enquiries. This information is not intended to be used by the Office of the Inspector General for any administrative purpose affecting individuals. The information may include names, addresses or professions, and is normally retrievable only if specific subjects, events or dates are provided.

Classes of Personal Information

Practically all records held by the Office consist of information relating to supervised financial institutions and pension plans. Some personal information may also be accumulated by the Office in the course of conducting its supervisory function, such as information on names and functions of various company officials, information on individuals seeking to incorporate a new financial institution that would be supervised by the Office, or information about a policy holder or depositor with a complaint against a supervised financial institution. Such personal information is stored as part of the general subject files where records are not retrieved by name of individual or other personal identifier. This form of personal information is normally retrievable only if specifics are provided concerning the financial institution, the individual, and the particular circumstances involved. The retention periods for these classes of personal information are controlled by the record schedules of the general subject files in which they are stored.

Part I of the Excise Tax Act imposes a tax on certain property and casualty insurance premiums related to insurance placed by residents of Canada with unauthorized insurers or with authorized insurers through brokers outside Canada. In carrying out administration of Part I of the Act, some personal information may be accumulated which is not part of the specific personal information bank described in this entry. Most of the insureds subject to the tax are corporations, but for any given year there may also be some individuals subject to tax. The personal information accumulated with respect to such individuals would be their name and address and information related to the insurance premiums subject to tax, such as policy number, description of risk, net premiums and name of insurer. The information is normally retrievable if the name of the individual and the year involved are provided.

Pacific Pilotage Authority Canada
Chapter 83

General Information

Background

As a result of recommendations made by a Royal Commission on Pilotage in Canada, the Pilotage Act was assented to by Her Majesty and the Governor in Council and proclaimed in force February 1, 1972.

The Pilotage Act created four pilotage regions with specific authorities, thereby replacing a large number of local pilotage districts. The four Pilotage Authorities – Atlantic, Laurentian, Great Lakes and Pacific are Crown corporations, responsible to Parliament through the Minister of Transport.

Pacific Pilotage Authority was incorporated pursuant to the Pilotage Act on February, 1972 as a Crown corporation under Schedule III, Part I of the Financial Administration Act.

The Pacific Pilotage Authority is in general governed by the following: Canada Shipping Act; Pilotage Act; General Pilotage Regulations; Pacific Pilotage Regulations; Authority by-laws.

Responsibilities

The role of the Authority is to establish, operate, maintain and administer in the interest of safety, an efficient and economical pilotage service within all coastal waters of British Columbia and the Fraser River. As a further goal, the Authority prescribes tariffs of pilotage charges that are fair, reasonable and consistent with providing revenues sufficient to permit the Authority to operate on a self-sustaining financial basis.

The Pacific Pilotage Authority consists of a chairman, and six members appointed by the Governor in Council.

The Authority's head office is located in Vancouver, British Columbia. All management services – administrative, personnel, financial, contracts, purchasing, etc. – are provided by the Vancouver office.

Legislation

- Authority By-Laws
- Canada Shipping Act, RSC, 1985, c. S-9
- General Pilotage Regulations
- Pacific Pilotage Regulations
- Pilotage Act, RSC, 1985, c. P-14

Organization

■ Administration Branch

Patented Medicine Prices Review Board

Chapter 84

General Information

Background

The Patented Medicine Prices Review Board was created under amendments to the Patent Act which came into force on December 7, 1987.

Responsibilities

The Patented Medicine Prices Review Board was given a mandate to carry out two functions:

Regulatory: To act as a safeguard against excessive prices for patented medicines which might result from the greater market power afforded to patentees under the 1987 amendments.

Reporting: To monitor and report on the Board's activities with respect to its regulatory activities, on price trends in the pharmaceutical industry generally and on the research and development performance of pharmaceutical patentees.

Legislation

- Patent Act

Organization

The Patent Act provides that the Board is to consist of no more than five members, appointed by the Governor in Council (Cabinet), including a Chairman and Vice-Chairman. The Board's Chairman is designated under the legislation as the Chief Executive Officer of the Board and is granted authority and responsibility to supervise and direct the work of the Board, including the management of its internal affairs and the work of its staff.

The Executive Director, as the senior staff member, manages the work of the staff. The senior staff of the Board consists of the Secretary to the Board (Registrar), the Director of Compliance, the Director of Policy, Planning and Evaluation and the Director of Management Services.

The staff provides a communications and education program, data collection, collation, storage and dissemination, quantitative analysis, case preparation and related services for the registry and administrative assistance to the Board. It also provides for hearings preliminary to the making of remedial orders by the Board.

■ Compliance Branch

Its patented medicine price review activities are central to the fulfilment of the Board's Program objective which is to ensure that prices charged for patented medicines are, in the opinion of the Board, not excessive. The price and R&D information gathered by the Branch forms the basis of the Board's Annual Report to Parliament. The Branch is responsible for the implementation of the Board's Voluntary Compliance Policy. That policy includes ongoing review and analysis of prices of all patented medicines sold in Canada through periodic patentee data submissions required by the Patented Medicines Regulations, specific Board directions, and other sources of price information; and analysis of complaints respecting patented medicine prices. The Branch manages the application of the staged compliance process in cases where prices are outside the Guidelines. It also oversees the analysis of R&D expenditures by pharmaceutical patentees.

■ Policy, Planning and Evaluation

It is responsible for developing the broad policy direction of the Program and to see to the development of policies relating to pricing of drugs and economic analyses of related issues. The Branch maintains the effective working relationships with other departments, provinces and territories and international agencies involved in regulating medicine prices. It is charged with the development and implementation of program evaluation activities.

It conducts research studies to support the Board's mandate to report on patentees' price and R&D performance. It produces the Annual Report to Parliament on Board activities, pricing trends in the pharmaceutical industry and R&D expenditures by pharmaceutical patentees.

■ Corporate Management and Services

This group consists of two branches – Secretariat and Management Services. It is responsible for providing management, legal registry, communications and support services to the Board as well as the delivery and application of government-wide programs and policies in the area of finance, administration, personnel, library, security, official languages and internal audit. The Secretariat is also responsible for Access to Information.

Pension Appeals Board
Chapter 85

General Information

Background
The Pension Appeals Board is a tribunal which was constituted by the Parliament of Canada, pursuant to an agreement with the government of Quebec.

Responsibilities
The Tribunal is responsible for the hearing of appeals which arise from decisions of the Minister of National Revenue (Tax Court of Canada has acquired jurisdiction with respect to appeals instituted on or after January 1, 1991) and the Minister of National Health and Welfare under the Canada Pension Plan, and from decisions of the Minister of Revenue of Quebec (The Court of Quebec has acquired jurisdiction with respect to appeals under the Quebec Pension Plan as of October 25, 1991) and, in some circumstances, from decisions of La Commission des affaires sociales under the Quebec Pension Plan.

Most of the decisions of the Board, with respect to the Canada Pension Plan or the Quebec Pension Plan, are available to the public from the Commerce Clearing House (CCH) Canadian Employment Benefits and Pension Guide Reports, from 1993 (pages 5951 and following); in Transfer Binder, 1968 to 1985 (pp. 5953-6714); and in Transfer Binder, 1986 to 1992 (pp. 5953-6237).

Legislation
- Canada Pension Plan, R.S.C., c. C-8
- Quebec Pension Plan, R.S.Q., c. R-9

Organization
The Pension Appeals Board is made up of judges and former judges from across the country who are appointed by Order-in-Council on the recommendation of the Minister of Justice and the Minister of Health and Welfare. They assume these duties in addition to their judicial responsibilities, and are not considered employees of the Pension Appeals Board. An administrative office is located in Ottawa.

Privy Council Office
Chapter 86

General Information

Background

The Privy Council Office came into being under the Constitution Act of 1867. From 1940 on, it has also provided the secretarial functions for the Cabinet.

The Federal-Provincial Relations Office (FPRO), formerly established as a federal department on January 1, 1975, has been re-integrated with the Privy Council Office effective June 25, 1993.

Responsibilities

The Privy Council Office provides secretariat support for Cabinet and the committees of Cabinet to facilitate the collective decision-making of Cabinet, and assists the exercise of the prerogatives of the Prime Minister, including the organization and processes of government and the appointment of senior officials to government positions. The overall responsibilities of the Office include: the coordination and provision of material related to the meetings of Cabinet and Committees of Cabinet for the use of the Prime Minister and the chairpersons of committees; liaison with departments and agencies of government on Cabinet matters; undertaking special studies on matters of current public policy concern as required (this includes participation in interdepartmental committees of officials through the provision of chairpersons, members or secretaries and the preparation of papers for, and on behalf of, such committees). In addition, the Office provides support and advice to the Prime Minister on prime ministerial prerogatives, assumes responsibilities for the organization of the Government of Canada, provides advice to the Prime Minister on national security and intelligence matters, undertakes the examination of submissions to the Governor in Council to ensure conformity with policy and legal requirements, prepares draft orders, and assumes duties related to regulations made under the Statutory Instruments Act including the examination, revision, registration and preparation for publication of federal statutory regulations in Part II of the Canada Gazette.

Also, in addition to the other responsibilities outlined above, the Privy Council Office now provides advice, assistance and information to the Prime Minister and to the Minister of Intergovernmental Affairs concerning federal-provincial relations. The Office also coordinates the policy framework for federal-provincial-aboriginal relations and supports the Interlocutor for Métis and Non-Status Indians.

Legislation

- Order-in-Council (P.C. 1940-1121, March 25, 1940)
- Act Respecting the Office of the Secretary to the Cabinet for Federal-Provincial Relations and Respecting the Clerk of the Privy Council, S.C. 1974-75-76, c. 16

Organization

For the purpose of the Financial Administration Act, the Privy Council Office is regarded as a department of government under the direction of the Prime Minister. The Clerk of the Privy Council and Secretary to the Cabinet, under whose direction the Privy Council Office's functions are carried out, is considered a deputy head taking precedence among the chief officers of the public service. The Privy Council Office is separated into the following main areas: Plans and Consultation; Machinery of Government and Senior Personnel; Operations; Security and Intelligence and Counsel; and, Corporate Services.

Classes of Personal Information

The files held by the Privy Council Office are organized under broad subject headings. The information they contain deals with specific issues of interest to the government from time to time. Since much of the material in these files originates in other government departments, requests for general information should be referred to the government department having the greatest interest in the subject matter.

Exclusion of Records
Under the Access to Information Act, Program Records referred to as confidences of the Queen's Privy Council for Canada are excluded from the provisions of the Act under section 69. These records are less than 20 years old.

It should be noted that Orders-in-Council are published in Part II of the Canada Gazette and are, therefore, records in the public domain. Requests for this material should not be made under the provisions of the Access to Information Act.

Procurement Review Board
Chapter 87

General Information

Background

In the Canada-United States Free Trade Agreement (FTA), Canada and the United States agreed to open to one another certain government procurements. This was accomplished by extending the procedural obligations of the GATT Agreement on Government Procurement (the Code) to a new class of contracts. Unlike the Code, the FTA requires both Parties to introduce and maintain equitable, timely and transparent and effective bid challenge procedures. The Procurement Review Board of Canada (Board) was established, in 1988, to meet this obligation.

Responsibilities

The Board, an administrative tribunal, receives and decides complaints from Canadian and American suppliers who believe that the procurement process conducted by the Canadian Federal Government was not carried out in accordance with the FTA.

However, the North-American Free Trade Agreement Implementation Act provides for, as soon as it comes into force, that the Canadian International Trade Tribunal will have the responsibility to determine bid disputes based on the Agreement and the Implementation Act.

Legislation

- Free Trade Agreement, Chapter 13: Government Procurement
- Free Trade Agreement Implementation Act, S.C. 1988, ch. 65
- GATT Agreement on Government Procurement
- Procurement Review Board Regulations, SOR/89-41

Organization

The Procurement Review Board consists of not more that five members, including the Chairman. The Board's staff is divided into five sections: the Secretary to the Board, the General Counsel, the investigation section, the cost determination section and the registrar.

The Chairman is the Chief Executive officer and is responsible for the Board's operation.

The Secretary to the Board provides day-to-day support services to the organization. This includes giving policy advice, overseeing technical work of investigation complaints, coordinating communications activities and managing the budget.

The General Counsel provides legal advice to the Board and staff on questions of law, procedure and interpretation.

The investigation section conducts investigations into complaints by potential suppliers and prepares cases for presentation to the Board.

The cost determination section manages the cost determination function and assists the Board in determining what costs, if any, should be allowed.

The Registrar looks after all documentation and correspondence to and from the Board and makes arrangements for holding hearings.

Public Service Commission of Canada
Chapter 88

General Information

Background

The Public Service Commission (PSC), a politically independent agency accountable to Parliament for the administration of the Public Service Employment Act, has been in existence since 1908 under various titles and legislations.

Responsibilities

Under the Public Service Employment Act, the Commission must ensure that the merit principle, as determined by the Commission, is upheld in all public service staffing operations. The objective of the Commission is to assist in the maintenance of a competent Public Service by ensuring the best qualified persons are recruited to or promoted within the Public Service, that qualified employees are deployed to meet operational requirements and that certain training services are provided on behalf of the Treasury Board.

Legislation

- Public Service Employment Act (PSEA)
- Public Service Employment Regulations (PSER)

Organization

■ The Commissioners

The jurisdictional powers of the Public Service Commission rest with the three commissioners, one of whom is the President and Chief Executive Officer. Appointed by the Governor in Council for a ten-year term, the commissioners have the status of deputy head. Together, they set overall policy in accordance with the Public Service Employment Act.

■ Regional Offices

The Commission's seven regional offices are collectively responsible for delivering programs and services to federal departments and employees as well as to members of the public across Canada. The Regional Directors are responsible for adapting the Commission's programs and services to the particular needs of its publics in each region.

■ Staffing Programs Branch

The Staffing Programs Branch is responsible for the development and management of legislation, regulations, policies, standards of selection and assessment, instruments of delegation and programs pertaining to appointments to and within the Public Service. The Branch recruits and refers candidates from outside the Public Service, and coordinates and manages post-secondary recruitment programs. It conducts staffing actions not delegated by the Commission to departments, monitors public service staffing activities and issues, and manages appointment-related information. In addition, the Branch develops assessment instruments and operates assessment centres to evaluate a variety of skills and abilities. The Branch is also responsible for certain programs and services delegated to the Commission by the Treasury Board. These include workforce adjustment, employment equity programs and labour market and human resource analysis.

■ Audit and Review Branch

The Audit and Review Branch is responsible for auditing the management of staffing that has been delegated to departments and federal agencies governed by the Public Service Employment Act. It also evaluates the exercise of the staffing authority that has not been delegated to the departments and informs the Commission of the relevance and effectiveness of its staffing policies. The Branch audits on behalf of Treasury Board the implementation of treasury Board's human resources policies. It also conducts internal audits and evaluations of Commission programs.

■ Appeals and Investigations Branch

The Appeals and Investigations Branch establishes independent boards to hear appeals by public servants against alleged breaches of the Public Service Employment Act and Regulations in such matters as appointment, promotion, demotion and release. Decisions of appeal boards are final and binding on the parties and on the Commission, and can be set aside only by the Federal Court of Appeal. The Branch is responsible for investigating and issuing opinions on behalf of the Commission as to whether an employee's opportunity for advancement has been prejudicially affected by an appointment without competition. A positive opinion gives the employee the right to appeal such appointments. The Branch is also responsible for the investigation of complaints of irregularities in the staffing process that are not subject to appeal; for the investigation of complaints of harassment in the workplace and for conciliating settlements where complaints are upheld. Training, advice and assistance are provided to departments, unions and other interested individuals.

■ Executive Programs Branch

The Executive Programs Branch handles the recruitment, selection, assessment and career counselling of the Executive Group. It also administers Treasury Board's career development programs for executives and employees at feeder levels. These programs include the Career Assignment Program, the Interchange Canada

Program, the International Exchange Program, the Business/Government Executive Exchange Program, and the Employment Equity Initiatives Program. This branch also implements initiatives designed to increase the representation of employment equity target groups within the Executive Group.

■ Training Programs Branch

The Training Programs Branch provides training and related support and consulting services to federal departments and agencies to help them meet the job-related training and development needs of their employees. Training is given in the National Capital Region and other regions across Canada. In addition to language training courses, Language Training Canada provides orientation services to determine candidates' aptitudes and eligibility for language training, and develops and produces language training courses and programs to meet general and specific operational needs. Training and Development Canada designs, develops and delivers middle management, supervisory and professional and technical skills training.

■ Corporate Management Branch

This Branch provides services in support of the Commission and its programs. This includes financial, administrative and information systems and services; corporate management and strategic planning; coordination of Commission official language responsibilities; administering several provisions of the Public Service Employment Act; and, assisting with parliamentary, union, international and other external relations.

As of 1 April 1993, the Branch is also responsible for investigating complaints against deployments.

■ Communications Branch

This Branch manages the Commission's communication function according to Government Communications Policy by providing research and analysis, planning, advice and project management services to the President, Commissioners and Commission managers. It is the focal point for the Commission's external communications, particularly with regard to recruitment advertising, issues management, media and public relations and the production of tools such as publications, audio-visuals and exhibits.

■ Human Resources Management Branch

The Human Resources Management Branch is responsible for developing policies and guidelines and for ensuring that the corporate management team possesses the strategies, structures and mechanisms required to manage its human resources. The Branch provides consultation and support services to Commission managers and employees in such areas as classification of positions, staffing, career and professional development, staff relations, and language training and development. The Branch provides compensation and benefits services to all employees of the Commission, as well as confidential employee assistance and counselling. It also provides advice and assistance to managers in the application of various policies and provisions governing the management of human resources, and is responsible for planning, managing and monitoring such departmental activities as employment equity and official languages.

Classes of Personal Information

General Administrative Documentation
In the course of conducting the activities and programs of the Public Service Commission, categories of personal information are accumulated which are not contained in the specific information banks described in this entry. Examples of such personal information include routine correspondence of an administrative nature, complaints and inquiries files as well as contracts for personal and professional services and unsolicited applications for employment. This information is normally filed by general subjects and is retrievable only if specifics are provided concerning the data and subject matter. The retention periods for these classes of personal information are controlled by the records schedules of the general subject files in which they are stored.

Surveys and Studies
The Public Service Commission occasionally surveys individuals and private firms who have participated in PSC programs or made use of its services. In the majority of cases, the identities of persons responding to the surveys are not recorded. These surveys usually form part of studies and are done to obtain individual's views and opinions on PSC activities such as training, staffing, appeals, audits and other departmental responsibilities. The information is used for program planning and to evaluate the effectiveness of training methods and of PSC operations. It is also used to respond to training needs; to obtain a basis for the establishment of policies and procedures; and to ascertain the quality of services, identify problems in those services and make the necessary improvements. The retention periods for this class of personal information are controlled by the record schedules of the general subject file in which they are stored.

Public Service Staff Relations Board
Chapter 89

General Information

Background
The Public Service Staff Relations Board was established in 1967 by the Public Service Staff Relations Act.

Responsibilities
The Board administers the Public Service Staff Relations Act. Its responsibilities include such matters as determination of bargaining units, certification and decertification of bargaining agents, arbitration of interest disputes, adjudication of rights disputes and generally providing an administrative structure within which the rights and responsibilities of the employers and employees in the federal public service may be exercised and/or enforced. The Board also administers the provisions of the Parliamentary Employment and Staff Relations Act, as well as certain provisions of Part II of the Canada Labour Code.

Legislation
- Parliamentary Employment and Staff Relations Act
- Part II – Canada Labour Code (certain provisions only)
- P.E.S.R.A. Regulations and Rules of Procedures
- Public Service Staff Relations Act
- Public Service Staff Relations Board Regulations and Rules of Procedures

Organization
Pursuant to the Public Service Staff Relations Act (R.S.C. 1985, chapter P -35), the Board is composed of "...a Chairman, a Vice-Chairman, not less than three Deputy Chairmen and such other full-time and part-time members as the Governor in Council considers necessary to discharge the responsibilities of the Board." All appointments are for periods not exceeding seven years, with the exception of the chairman, vice-chairman and deputy chairmen, whose appointments are for periods not exceeding ten years. Part-time members are appointed primarily for the purpose of adjudicating upon grievances.

■ Operations Branch
The Operations Branch is responsible for the development and administration of an effective and efficient case management and control system for all proceedings coming before the Board under the provisions of the Acts and their regulations. This includes, in addition to an individual case registration and file system for each type of proceeding, the provision of support services for Board meetings and hearings throughout Canada such as hearing accommodations, clerical and secretarial assistance, recording and transcribing facilities and arrangements for translation services. In addition, responsibility for communications and corporate planning have been vested in the Operations Branch.

■ Office of Mediation Services
The office provides a mediation and conciliation service to employers and bargaining agents when impasses occur in the negotiation of collective agreements. Assistance, including the conduct of examination hearings on behalf of the Board, is provided to the same parties to determine managerial or confidential positions which are to be excluded from the bargaining unit. Similar assistance is given in the matter of the determination of positions designated as necessary in the interest of the safety or security of the public. Finally, mediation and/or advice and guidance is provided to parties and individuals in complaints and grievances before the Board.

■ Legal Services
This unit provides the chairman, members and officers with legal advice and counsel on matters relating to the operations of the Board. It also represents the interests of the Board in judicial review proceedings before the Federal Court of Appeal.

■ Corporate Services and Systems Branch
The Corporate Services and Systems Branch consists of the Financial Services Division, the Library Services Division, the Human Resources and Administration Division and the Information Systems Division. This branch is responsible for the provision of support services to the various organizational units of the Board.

Public Works and Government Services Canada
Chapter 90

General Information

Background

Public Works and Government Services Canada (PWGSC) is the current departmental structure which amalgamates two departments historically known as Supply and Services Canada (SSC) and Public Works Canada (PWC). As well, the new structure includes Translations Services and Government Telecommunications Agency.

The department of SSC was created on April 1, 1969, by the Government Organization Act and the department of PWC was established as the Board of Works in 1841 and, at Confederation, was recognized as the department of Public Works (SC 1867-68 C.12).

Responsibilities

(Formerly SSC)
The Department of Public Works and Government Services Canada is the supply and accounting arm of the government and operates under two major programs. As a common service agency, the Department, through the Supply Program, acquires and provides goods and services in support of the operational programs of other federal government departments and agencies. Its activities include requirements definition; the acquisition of goods and services of a scientific, engineering and commercial nature; printing and publishing; traffic management; advertising management; security services; expositions; warehousing and distribution; assets managements; and disposal services.

The Services Program provides a broad range of administrative, management and advisory services to the government, including the administration of the Consolidated Revenue Fund and making payments from it; maintaining the accounts of Canada; administering the public service payroll and superannuation systems; and providing optional auditing, management consulting and certain accounting services to departments and agencies.

(Formerly PWC)
Public Works and Government Services Canada attends to the government's office and other real property needs, offers expert advice and services in the provision, management, operations, and disposal of federal real property at market-based rates, while contributing to the government's social, economic, and environmental objectives.

The department, under the provisions of the Public Works Act, has a dual role with respect to real property. As custodian, the department is responsible for the administration, charge, and control of federal general purpose office accommodation, certain bridges, highways, locks, dams, and the Parliamentary Precinct. As service agent, the department is responsible for providing to the federal government, at market-based rates, architectural and engineering services, including the design, construction, and project management of federal facilities, dredging and fleet services, and as well as real estate and property management services.

Organization

Communications Branch

The Communications Branch provides a full range of communications services and products; provides advice on the communications implications of programs, policies and decisions; supports the Minister and the Deputy Minister in carrying out their parliamentary responsibilities; and supports individual branches and agencies in communicating their services to client publics. The Communications Branch also works with managers to facilitate ongoing, two-way communications with employees by developing internal communications strategies so that PWGSC employees are informed about, and can participate in, key developments in the department.

Audit and Evaluation Branch

Comprises the Audit function which is responsible for the development and implementation of a management oriented integrated and comprehensive audit program linked to the strategic directions, operational programs, plans and priorities of the department; the Evaluation function which provides senior management with timely and credible information about the continued relevance, success and cost effectiveness of departmental activities; and the Contract Quality Assurance function responsible for reviewing contract submissions requiring Deputy Ministerial, Ministerial and Treasury Board approval.

Corporate Services Branch

Services offered by the Corporate Services Branch include: ministerial and executive support, finance, materiel, accommodation, security, advertising, public opinion research, industrial and corporate security, corporate management information holdings, library, administration, marketing, contracts dispute resolution, policy and planning, emergency preparedness, cabinet liaison, and environmental safety.

■ Finance Sector

Plans, develops, administers and monitors financial policies and procedures for the Department; Provides financial planning, analysis and reporting services, including the production of the public accounts year-end submissions; Prepares operational plans, including the Operational Plan and Budget, the Multi-Year Operational Plan and Quarterly Review, and the Main Estimates; Develops and coordinates the implementation of quantitative measures to assess the operational performance of PWGSC Branches; Provides authoritative advice to HQ and regional management on central agency and departmental financial policies; Develops and monitors the implementation of a framework for the regional delivery of financial services; Develops and implements a framework to provide sound business advice regarding the operations of Special Operating Agencies and Crown Corporations and provides cost-effective delivery of financial management services, including the department's financial transactions, travel and relocation programs and cash management.

■ Administration Sector

Responsible on behalf of the Deputy Minister for the provision of Corporate Administrative Support Policies and Services to all Public Works and Government Services Canada Branches and Special Operating Agencies (where practical) in order to assist them in the efficient and effective delivery of government operations.

Corporate Services includes the provision of appropriate accommodation to ensure the well-being of PWGSC employees in the work environment; the establishment and management of Government of Canada Ministers' regional offices; the responsibility for employee safety, WHMIS compliance, fire prevention and protection of departmental property; management of information (forms, records, information holdings, library, graphics and publication services); provision of mail and messenger services; management of advertising and public opinion research; as well as the procurement of goods and services, warehousing, materiel management policies and systems and control of moveable assets.

Industrial and Corporate Security Directorate:

Meets the Canadian government's national and international industrial security commitments; provides a broad range of internal security services including physical and personnel security and designated and classified information protection; conducts a personnel security clearance and reliability check program for the department and industry; manages the departmental Business Resumption Planning and fire safety programs; conducts internal investigations; and manages the departmental and industrial Information Technology Security (ITS), COMSEC Material Control and Foreign Ownership Control or Influence (FOCI) programs.

■ The Business Processes and Systems Sector

The Sector has particular responsibility for the management and re-engineering of generic departmental administrative business processes and related electronic commerce applications. The Sector provides support to Regional Directors General in marketing these re-engineered products to other government departments. The Sector is also responsible for the maintenance, development and operation of internal PWGSC corporate processes and systems.

■ Policy Planning and Marketing Sector

Is responsible for strategic and corporate planning, departmental emergency preparedness and a corporate marketing program for Public Works and Government Services Canada. It is also responsible for corporate policy, analysis of corporate issues, and departmental coordination on government-wide initiatives. It also provides research and secretariat services to the Procurement Review Committee.

■ Contract Claims Resolution Board

Responsible for terminations for convenience of supply contracts, as well as the resolution and settlement of disputes arising from such contracts. Also provided are periodic quantitative reports concerning the department's dispute resolution program. The Board is responsible for maintaining a current inventory of all construction contract claims and disputes. In concert with Architectural and Engineering Services, Realty Services and Legal Services, the Board reviews claims to identify those that seem impossible to resolve through the normal departmental process. Claims that cannot be resolved internally can be referred to a contract disputes advisory board or go to commercial arbitration or litigation. The Board provides guidance, any necessary research, and administrative resource capabilities should one of these alternatives be pursued. In addition to providing guidance to senior management and project managers in the handling of disputes, the Board formulates policies and procedures through careful monitoring, post-audit and evaluation of various disputes, including those involving litigation.

■ Office of the Corporate Secretary

Provides a secretariat service to the department and the Minister. This responsibility includes coordinating all Access to Information and Privacy requests, providing executive services in support of the departmental decision-making process, preparing ministerial and deputy ministerial correspondence and the coordination of information between the department and the Procurement Review Board of Canada.

Human Resources Branch

Staff Relations and Compensation and Systems Directorate:

Responsible for the provision of staff relations advice to senior management and for assisting personnel advisers in ongoing staff relations functions. As well, the directorate is responsible for the development of compensation policies, programs and procedures to ensure standardized administration of pay and benefits across the department. The directorate also coordinates the planning, development and operations of personnel information processing systems and developing policies and programs to ensure the systems' continued effectiveness in meeting requirements.

Operations Directorate (Special Operating Agencies):

Responsible for the provision of the full range of human resources services to managers and employees of the department's Special Operating Agencies.

Supply Operations Service Branch

The Supply Operations Branch is responsible for providing supply related common services to other government departments and agencies. These services include requirements definition; acquisitions of goods and services; and traffic management services.

It is the responsibility of the acquisitions service, to procure complex technical engineering and science products and services, as well as those that are of a commercial nature. The branch is also responsible for contracting out research and development requirements and public awareness programs.

The Branch is composed of four sectors, one Special Operating Agency and the Washington and European Regions, each with specific responsibilities.

■ Supply Program Management Sector

Responsible for policy development and advice, planning, systems management, operational support, client and supplier relations and business renewal for the Supply Service. The sector is composed of four directorates: Supply Management Directorate, Supply Policy Directorate, Statistical Information and Data Management Directorate and Acquisitions 2000 Project.

■ Aerospace, Marine and Electronics Systems Sector

Responsible for providing electronics systems, aircraft, logistics, aerospace products support, marine inspection and technical services, armoured vehicles, marine and armament systems, as well as providing support within the commodity group. It also oversees the operation of a number of major Crown projects, such as: Canadian Patrol Frigate (CPF); Canadian Airspace Systems Plan (CASP); Tribal Class Update and Modernization Project (TRUMP); Drone Systems Project (DSP); Low Level Air Defence (LLAD); Tactical Command, Control and Communication Systems (TCCCS); North American Air Defence Modernization Project (NAADM); Canadian

Towed Array Sonar Systems (CANTASS); the Anti-Armour Projects (AAP); the Maritime Coastal Vessel Project (MCDV); and Military Operational Support (MOST); the Canadian Commercial Corporation Light Armoured Vehicle (CCC/LAV), the Canadian Forces Utility Tactical Transport Helicopter (CFUTTH), the CF-5 Avionics update, the CF-18 Systems Engineering Support, the Military Automated Air Traffic Service (MAATS), and the Light Armoured Vehicle Reconnaissance (LAV-REECCE).

■ Industrial and Commercial Products Sector

Composed of an Operations Directorate, a Business Development Directorate and five product directorates. Each product directorate is responsible for the supply management of a grouping of similar products and services.

Traffic Management Directorate:

Responsible for information on ensuring least-cost for travel and shipping or movement of goods via one or all six modes of transport (air, road, sea, pipeline, rail and off-highway).

Consumer Products Directorate:

Responsible for the procurement and design advice for clothing textiles, accessories and related equipment, as well as food, drugs, agricultural, forestry, scientific, photographic and medical products.

Vehicles and Petroleum Products Directorate:

Responsible for the procurement of special and standard vehicles as well as mobile equipment and logistics; it also procures lubricants, industrial chemicals and coal.

Civil Engineering Logistics Products Directorate:

Responsible for the procurement of security and fire fighting equipment, industrial machinery, tools, industrial and testing equipment as well as electronic and electrical products, mechanical equipment and prefabricated buildings.

Commercial Supply Directorate:

Provides transaction-based purchasing services for stocked, as well as non-stocked goods and services identified by client departments in the National Capital Region.

Operations Directorate:

Manages all support services, including operations planning, general administration, special projects such as the units located within client departments. Contract quality control services are also performed by this Directorate.

Business Development Directorate:

Handles program development functions, systems integration, training and development, as well as supplier and client relations.

■ Office Automation Services and Information Systems (OASIS) Sector

Is the procurement centre of PWGSC responsible for the acquisition of the following goods and services for federal departments and agencies: electronic data processing (EDP) systems; computer hardware and software; informatics professional services; micrographic services; office equipment; office furniture and suppliers; and Stocked Item Supply (SIS). OASIS is organized into four directorates: the Information Systems Procurement Directorate, the Informatics Services Procurement Directorate, the Stocked Item Supply Directorate and the Management and Client Services Directorate. In addition, OASIS is currently responsible for two Major Crown Projects: Income Security Programs Re-design (ISPR) with Health Canada and the Canadian Forces Supply System Upgrade (CFSSU) with National Defence as well as other major projects such as Public Service Compensation System (PSCS); TECHSOURCE; Human Resource and Labour Canada; and Intelligence Security Complex (ISX).

■ Science and Professional Services Sector

Science Directorate:

Is responsible for the procurement of government science and technology requirements, including research and development, data collection, feasibility studies and prototype development for subjects ranging from satellites and solar energy to sample analysis, food research and transportation technology. This Directorate is composed of the Space, Communications and Human Sciences Division, Defence Sciences Division, Earth Resources Division, Space Sciences Division, Physical and Life Sciences Division, Science Procurement Projects Division, and the Space Station and RADARSAT project offices. Major Crown Projects managed on behalf of the Canadian Space Agency (CSA).

Professional Services Directorate:

The mission of the two professional services directorates is to provide departments with an accessible centre of supply expertise to meet their needs for services. This expertise is also available, on a consultative basis, to others who may be performing the supply function.

At the same time, the directorates manage the supply management functions of a wide range of professional and technical services on a government-wide basis. This is done to enable government to have ready access to often-used services of standard quality and at pre-negotiated prices.

As an optional central contracting authority whose function is to contract on behalf of and for the provision of client department required services, the directorates procure and manage a wide range of services.

Business and Consulting Services Directorate:

Contracts for training services of all types, translation and re-publication of technical manuals, library services, the services of former public servants in receipt of a pension, services in the fields of business systems, financial, general, material, personnel and marketing management as well as collection agency, financial accounting, verbatim reporting, auctioneering, custom brokerage and temporary help services.

Technical and Specialist Services Directorate:
Contracts for aircraft operation, pilot training, maintenance, air charters, insurance and risk management services, security guard and Corps of Commissionaire services, maintenance and operation of government facilities, banking and relocation services, surveys and mapping, engineering, water treatment, laboratory testing and quality assurance.

Programs Directorate:
Provides program management services designed to help customer departments effectively deliver and administer their programs. The Unsolicited Proposals Brokerage Service (UPBS) offers a single point of entry for the submission of innovative science and technology proposals from the private sector and provides the liaison between the public and potential government sponsors. In addition, the directorate offers the UPBS for information technology (on behalf of OASIS) which encourages proposals for the application of information technology in government operations; the Environmental Innovation Program, which is administered on behalf of Environment Canada as part of Canada's Green Plan and provides funding for projects based on environmental research; Science Culture Canada, administered on behalf of Industry and Science Canada sponsors projects and activities that raise public awareness of scientific and technological issues.

The Directorate also provides systems support services to the Sector and is responsible for the National Supplier Information System for Science and Technology, and Professional Services' sources. The Programs Directorate publishes the R&D Bulletin ten times a year, which is a publication containing information on government science contracts and manages the Homebased Disabled Program for the Sector.

Crown Assets Distribution Division (CADD):
The Crown Assets Distribution Division (CADD) provides functional management and support to the eight (8) regional Crown Assets Distribution Centres (CADC) in the disposal of all crown assets declared surplus by federal departments, agencies and Crown Corporations located in Canada and abroad so as to achieve best value for the Crown. Each CADC acts as agent for the United States, British and other governments in the sale of their surplus assets located in Canada, CADD has arrangements with certain European governments for the disposal of Canadian military surplus located in their countries.

Washington Region:
Is located at the Canadian Embassy on Pennsylvania Avenue in Washington, D.C. It provides acquisition management and complete administrative services to the departments of the Canadian and U.S. governments, and facilitates liaison between them. The region also provides these services to the Canadian Commercial Corporation, provincial governments and federal agencies. The majority of the region's acquisition business volume is generated by the procurement of defence-related products and services from the U.S. Department of Defense, under its Foreign Military Sales program, and the administration of resulting contracts. The Washington Region is the only accredited Canadian procurement office to the United States Armed Services and, as such, negotiates to obtain the most advantageous terms and conditions for the acquisitions. The region also assists and represents the Canadian Commercial Corporation in the promotion of business opportunities for Canadian industry. Working closely with the economic section at the Canadian Embassy, the region contributes to the enhancement of trade opportunities with the U.S.A.

European Region:
With headquarters in London, England, is responsible for serving the needs of customer departments located in Canada, as well as federal agencies overseas. The London office, located in the Canadian High Commission, is responsible for procurement, mainly of specialized, unique items from all countries of Europe other than those noted below. This office also provides a field contract administration service for major contracts placed directly from Canada, and a security clearance facility for Canadian government and industrial personnel visiting United Kingdom secure facilities. The Canadian Government Supply and Services Office located in Koblenz, Germany, supports Canadian Forces Europe and Canada through purchases from Germany, France, Belgium, Austria and Switzerland. The Canadian Government Services Office located in Lahr provides payment and accounting services to the Canadian Forces and their dependents stationed in Europe. There is also a Crown Assets Disposal Office in Lahr.

Government Operational Service Branch

The mission of Government Operational Service Branch is threefold: the fulfilment of Receiver General responsibilities, the administration of compensation services, and the provision of services and optional products in the area of finance and personnel. In fulfilling these roles, Government Operational Service Branch is organized into the following areas of responsibility each of which are detailed below:

■ Banking and Cash Management Sector

GOSB is responsible for carrying out the public money and banking program activities mandated to the Receiver General by the FAA. Banking and cash management functions include the administration of the receipt, transfer, holding and disbursement of all public money of Canada, both at home and abroad, and the negotiation or tendering for all banking services and facilities required by the government. It has responsibility for the management of the deposit of all monies collected by government, and placement of all public money in interest earning accounts at Canadian and foreign financial institutions. GOSB also redeems and validates all government payment instruments, (Receiver General cheques, direct deposit payments, and Unemployment Insurance warrants).

■ Central Accounting and Reporting Sector

GOSB carries out its Receiver General central accounting and reporting responsibilities through the maintenance of the Accounts of Canada; the preparation of interim financial reports including the monthly statements of financial operations; the preparation and publication annually of the public accounts. To carry out these responsibilities, the Sector operates and maintains the Central Accounting Systems (CAS).

■ Compensation Administration Sector

Authority and responsibility for the pay and benefits function for federal public servants are shared by all Government departments and agencies. The Treasury Board manages the compensation function for employees who staff the Government's departments and many of its agencies; individual departments and agencies administer day-to-day pay and benefits operations; and, some Crown Corporations manage and administer compensation for their respective employees.

GOSB is responsible for the administration of compensation systems such as the provision of pay, pensions and insurance services on a government-wide basis through such products as Public Service Pay and Superannuation, RCMP Compensation, Canadian Forces Superannuation and Members of Parliament Retirement Allowances and Judges Pensions. Delivery of these services is accomplished through a national network of 13 services offices which respond to 100 departments and other federal organizations.

■ Common Services Sector

GOSB offers to departments and agencies optional personnel and financial systems and services derived from PWGSC's core systems in the compensation, payments and accounting areas. Services such as FINCON, ad hoc reporting and downloading (AHRD) FINCAP, the Departmental Personnel Management System (DPMS), the Departmental Reporting System (DRS), the Central Agency personnel information systems, PERSFILE, and departmental employee benefit statements, support common administrative functions within departments and central agencies. Operating costs for providing most of these services are recovered from customer departments.

■ Payment Administration Sector

GOSB is also responsible for the issue of payments on behalf of all government departments and agencies using the Consolidated Revenue Fund. It provides development of both generalized and customized systems for production and distribution of payments to the public, file maintenance systems and support services for keeping files up -to-date, and management administration reports. These services allow program departments to communicate with their clientele through the use of inserts with cheques and direct deposit statements.

Financial Information Strategy (FIS) Project:

The Financial Information Strategy (FIS) is a joint Public Works and Government Services Canada (PWGSC)/Treasury Board (TB) strategy for satisfying government-wide financial needs using modern delivery mechanisms, as well as clarifying the roles and responsibilities of all players. Under FIS, PWGSC is responsible for developing, implementing and operating central and optional financial systems in accordance with the policies and standards framework provided by the Treasury Board. The TB framework includes a study of user requirements, government-wide impact analysis, fast track initiatives, and implementation of common information management.

Within PWGSC the FIS Project is composed of the following system development sub-projects: Common Departmental Financial Systems (CDFS), Central Financial Management and Reporting System (CFMRS), Interdepartmental Settlements System (ISS) and related Utility Services (US).

Real Property Branch

This organization, through it's Real Property Program, is responsible for managing a diverse portfolio of federal real property in order to provide appropriate accommodation to federal tenants and to optimize investments. The Real Property Program comprises four activities: Program Coordination, Office Facilities, Federal Facilities, and Municipal Grants. Within these four activities are four functions: Program Management, which includes the policies, standards, and practices governing the financial and operational planning, reporting and controls used to administer tenant accommodation, to regulate and protect Public Works and Government Services Canada assets, and to manage the investment in the portfolio; Accommodation Management, which includes the policies and procedures governing tenant demand, tenant operational norms, tenant long-term planning, tenant counselling, and space planning and utilization; Asset Management, which comprises the standards and regulations affecting the efficient and effective performance of the assets in such areas as health, safety, environmental and social considerations, and the life-cycle performance and return on investment of the Public Works and Government Services Canada portfolio; and Investment Management, which entails the management of financial resources associated with the portfolio, including the acquisition of real estate through construction, purchase, lease, and lease-purchase, and the divestiture, devolution, or disposal of disinvestments by sale, transfer, or demolition.

Translation Services Branch

Translation Services fosters a better appreciation among Canadians of the linguistic duality of Canada by contributing to effective communication in both official languages within the federal public service, and between the public service and the general public.

■ Terminology and Linguistic Services Sector

The Sector is responsible for terminological research, harmonization and standardization, for the development and promotion of the Linguistic Databank of Canada TERMIUM, for linguistic publications and advice, for translator training and translation quality assessment, and for the promotion of Canadian linguistic expertise within the French-speaking world.

■ Government Telecommunications Agency (GTA)

Provides common and customized telecommunications services to federal departments and agencies and carries out the function of the telecommunications architect for the government. GTA is responsible for planning, establishing and managing telecommunications facilities and services to economically satisfy the needs of federal departments and agencies.

■ Business Application Services Sector (BASS)

Develops and maintains information systems in support of the Department's mandate: compensation and personnel management; financial management; supply procurement management. BASS provides personnel and expertise for the development of applications initiated by PWGSC or its clients. It also manages internally and externally directed initiatives through the development/acquisition and maintenance of government-wide information systems.

■ Computing Services Sector (CSS)

Delivers high quality, cost-effective computing services to support the delivery and management of PWGSC business functions. This includes the architecture, engineering and operational support of the technology platforms utilized by three national datacentres and twenty-one regional service centres. It also directs and manages the day-to-day operations of the national data network and the two datacentres. CSS also provides system software support, database management support and consulting services.

■ Information Management, Planning & Training Services Sector (IMPTSS)

Develops and communicates PWGSC policies, strategies, plans and standards, for Information Management/Information Technology (IM/IT) including coordinating the development and promulgation of a departmental, client-server based Target IM/IT Architecture. IMPTSS, which has developed an Information Architecture to support the business functions of the department also provides data management services including data administration, modelling and repository services within departmental and government-wide architectural frameworks. IMPTSS provides IM/IT training services for GTIS and government-wide through the Institute. The Software Exchange Service facilitates the government-wide sharing and use of government owned application software. IMPTSS also directs and provides executive support services for operational planning and issue analysis and management.

■ IM/IT Client Support Sector

Responsible for providing client responsive, cost effective and value-added services that support the internal operations and business of PWGSC and for promoting, guiding and managing the timely introduction and the productive utilization of informatics technology and expertise. Services include the development and maintenance of Departmental computer applications, and support for the Department's computer users.

Telephone Call-Detail Information
Description: This bank contains details of most commercial long-distance calls (depending upon configuration of the switch that routes the call) and all Government Intercity Calling Service (GICS) calls placed from government telephones, which are provided as part of the GTA (GTIS) Local Shared Services (LSS). It also includes details of all GICS calls made using government TeleCanada Card authorization codes. For each call originating from an LSS telephone, details include the start date and time of the call, the call duration, the telephone or truck number from which the call originates, the number dialled, the GTA (GTIS) billing code under which the number dialled, the GTA (GTIS) charge for the call, and other information such as the features used in making the call. For calls placed using the TeleCanada Card, the related authorization code and the corresponding account code are added to the above information, and the originating number is replaced by an incoming trunk or facility number. The telephone number from which the user called the network may be included, if it is recorded by the switching equipment which receives the call. Dialled telephone numbers can include any telephone which is accessible on the commercial long-distance network, GICS, or on other dedicated departmental networks. Class of Individuals: Anyone who has access to an LSS telephone or a TeleCanada Card can place calls which will be recorded in this information bank. This includes employees and contractors of government departments, agencies and Crown Corporations specified in Schedules 1, 2 and 3 of the Financial Administration Act; Members, employees of Members, and employees of the House of Commons; and Senators, employees of Senators, and employees of the Senate. Since many LSS telephone numbers can be identified with specific individuals, and since call authorization codes are assigned to specific individuals by customer departments, dialled numbers and calling patterns may reveal personal information about those individuals. They may also reveal personal information about calls to third parties. GTA (GTIS does not maintain in the call-detail files the names to which either the telephone numbers of call authorization codes have been assigned. GTA (GTIS) does, however, maintain an entirely separate telephone directory database, which is public knowledge, and which is published in government telephone directories either semi-annually or annually. This database, which is in no way related to the call-detail information, is the only database under GTA (GTIS)'s control that associates individuals' names with specific telephone numbers. Departments and agencies may also maintain and periodically publish departmental telephone directories which include telephone numbers assigned to specific individuals. Purpose: GTA (GTIS) collects call-detail information only for purposes relevant to its legislative mandate: the establishment and maintenance of responsible business relations between and with customers; the development and provision of products and services; the provision and administration of telecommunications networks; the provision of information to customers to enable them to manage their operations and control their expenditures in an effective manner; the billing of usage to the appropriate operating units within the Government of Canada; and the detection of use of telecommunications facilities by unauthorized users. Consistent Uses: Call-detail information is used by GTA (GTIS) to manage, control, forecast, plan and analyze the performance of GTA (GTIS)-managed government networks. The information is provided to all GTA (GTIS) customers (persons or organizations) or Authorized Customer Representatives (who have been identified to GTA (GTIS), in writing, by the customer) to enable them to manage and control GICS usage, allocate costs internally, and ensure that GICS-related services are used appropriately. Designated persons in GTA (GTIS)'s regional offices also have access to such information in order to respond to customer inquiries. In providing GICS to customers, GTA (GTIS) ensure that appropriate measures are in place to detect the unauthorized use of network facilities, thus minimizing such use and providing assurance to customers that these measures adequately protect them from charges resulting from unauthorized use. Retention and Disposal Standards: Maintenance of call-detail information is the responsibility of the customer organization which is responsible for paying for the usage charges. Once the information has been delivered to the customer, it becomes the customer's responsibility to retain and dispose of the information in a manner consistent with the Privacy Act, the Access to Information Act and other relevant policy and legislation. Normally, specific inquires about call-detail information should be addressed to the customer organization. GTA (GTIS) retains call-detail information only for as long as is required by good business practice. In this context, the Agency ensures that the information for which it has custodial responsibility is maintained until the end of the retention period, which, for customer billing inquiry purposes, is 90 days after invoice issue. The call detail is also summarized for network analysis purposes with certain numerical data eliminated, which precludes the association of calling patterns with specific individuals. Because the summarized data are no longer protected, data retention becomes a function of network analysis and network administration activity. In cases where technical or billing issues arise, GTA (GTIS) may retain full call-detail information beyond the standard retention period, until such time as the specific issues are resolved. Bank Number: SSC PPU 050

Architectural and Engineering Services Branch

Building Performance

Description: This bank contains information on workers' subjective rating of their office environment. Office environment is the combination of physical and organizational factors that affect workers. Examples include: temperature, lighting, sound, air quality (composition, distribution), spatial layout, and work flow. The information consists of individual ratings of environmental features and work-related experiences, coded to quantitative descriptions of the physical setting. A sample file would include workers' rating of lighting, the type of lights, performance of the lights, and the visual requirements of the workers' tasks. Class of Individuals: Government employees, office workers and tenants in PWC-controlled accommodation. Purpose: The purpose of this information is to establish a relationship between measured performance of building aspects and workers' perceptions of those aspects. This information will be used to guide construction to correct building deficiencies and new performance specifications for office accommodation. Retention and Disposal Standards: This bank is updated on a continuing basis with information from new surveys. It is maintained indefinitely. Names and ID numbers are removed after floor location has been coded. Selected data will be stored for archival reference. PAC Number: 79-010 TBS Registration: 002124 Bank Number: PWC PPU 045

Consultants Inventory

Description: This bank contains information relating to firms and individuals specializing in architectural, engineering and related disciplines associated with departmental activities whose services have been, are or may be commissioned by the Department. This bank contains names, addresses, personal qualifications, a record of previous commissions and experience, along with performance appraisals. Class of Individuals: Professional and paraprofessional consultants. Purpose: This information is used to select consultants for projects administered by the Department. Retention and

Disposal Standards: Information is updated continuously and is maintained for two years after removal from the inventory. PAC Number: 79-010 Related to PR#: PWC PWC 005, PWC PWC 025 TBS Registration: 000703 Bank Number: PWC PPU 040

■ Emergency Preparedness

Emergency Response

Description: This bank contains information including the name, home address, home telephone number, security clearance, special skills and qualifications of departmental employees, or persons associated with departmental activities, whose duties require them to respond to emergencies involving the Department. Class of Individuals: Government employees and other individuals, including employees of provincial and municipal governments and private contractors who might be called upon to respond to emergencies involving the Department. Purpose: Information is used to contact designated personnel in the event of emergencies occurring outside normal working hours in order to coordinate departmental response and provide information to senior management. It is also used to identify employees or private contractors who possess special skills and qualifications applicable to specific emergency situations. Information concerning provincial government employees is used to establish liaison in situations requiring federal-provincial coordination. Security clearance data is needed to ensure that classified information is passed only to authorized persons. Consistent Uses: Data will be used within PWGSC. Data concerning specifically designated PWGSC personnel will be provided to Emergency Preparedness Canada, other federal departments and provincial governments. Retention and Disposal Standards: Data are updated on a continual basis. Data are not retained on individuals who cease to have designated emergency response functions. PAC Number: 79-010 Related to PR#: PWC PWC 010 TBS Registration: 002123 Bank Number: PWC PPU 065

National Directory of Community Shelter Planners

Description: This bank contains a record of qualified community shelter planners, including the name, address and place of representation for each qualified person. Class of Individuals: Community shelter planners. Purpose: Information in this bank is used for the selection and recommendation of qualified community shelter planners for the National Shelter Program. Consistent Uses: Information in this bank is shared with anyone who wishes to access it. Retention and Disposal Standards: Information is maintained for two years following removal from the register. PAC Number: 79-010 Related to PR#: PWC PWC 010 TBS Registration: 000707 Bank Number: PWC PPU 060

Classes of Personal Information

Project Records
In carrying out its mandate, the Department generates and receives a large volume of information and correspondence related to work projects. These projects include property acquisition, disposal, expropriation and management; building, highway and marine construction, repair and demolition; dredging services and fleet management; and the provision of associated research, development and consulting services.

Included in this material are often found the personal views and opinions of individuals; evaluations of contractors' and consultants' performance; financial information relating to the management of projects; and any other correspondence associated with specific projects. The retention periods associated with this class of personal information are controlled by the records schedules of the general subject files in which they are stored.

Project records are organized by location. Consequently, access to personal information in project records requires the individual to provide the location of a specific project as well as the nature of the project.

General Information
The Department maintains, in addition to specific project records, general files associated with its operational activities. Occasionally, personal opinions expressed by individuals are maintained on these general records. Access to these records requires the requester to identify, in sufficient detail, the subject of the information to which he/she wishes access.

RCMP External Review Committee

Chapter 91

General Information

Background

The RCMP External Review Committee was created on December 18, 1986 as a result of the 1976 Report of the Commission of Inquiry Relating to Public Complaints, Internal Discipline and Grievance Procedure within the Royal Canadian Mounted Police.

Responsibilities

The RCMP External Review Committee is a neutral third party that provides an independent and impartial review of certain types of grievances, and of formal disciplinary, discharge and demotion appeals referred to it from the Royal Canadian Mounted Police. The Committee reports annually to Parliament through the Committee Chairman. The Committee may institute hearings, summon witnesses, administer oaths and receive and accept such evidence or other information as the Committee sees fit. The findings and recommendations of the Chairman or the Committee are sent to the parties and the Commissioner of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police.

Legislation

- RCMP External Review Committee Rules of Practice and Procedure
- Regulations pursuant to the RCMP Act
- Royal Canadian Mounted Police Act

Organization

The RCMP External Review Committee is designated as a department within the meaning and for the purposes of the Financial Administration Act. Treasury Board is its employer.

The Committee is made up of a chairman, a vice-chairman and three other members, all appointed by the Governor in Council. The Chairman is a full-time member, and is the chief executive officer of the Committee. The Chairman has engaged staff to form the Committee Secretariat. The Executive Director is responsible to the Chairman for the administration of the case review function.

■ Grievances and Appeals

The Committee Secretariat is responsible for the operational review of certain types of grievances, and of formal disciplinary, discharge and demotion appeals referred to the Committee by the Royal Canadian Mounted Police. The review program provides an investigation, analysis and reporting service; an independent and impartial third-party mediation service to those involved in these matters; and associated procedural and logistical services required to support an orderly and effective review process.

RCMP Public Complaints Commission
Chapter 92

General Information

Background

The Royal Canadian Mounted Police Public Complaints Commission was established by Parliament in March 1986, as a result of recommendations arising from the 1976 Marin Commission of Inquiry Relating to Public Complaints, Internal Discipline and Grievance Procedure within the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, and the 1981 McDonald Commission of Inquiry Concerning Certain Activities of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police. Part VII of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police Act, which made the Commission operational, came into force on September 30, 1988.

Responsibilities

The Royal Canadian Mounted Police Public Complaints Commission is an independent administrative tribunal empowered to conduct external and independent reviews of public complaints concerning the conduct of members of the RCMP in the course of their duties. The Chairman of the Commission reviews the disposition of the complaint by the RCMP and may conduct investigations and institute public hearings of the Commission. The Chairman may, as well, initiate a complaint personally if there are reasonable grounds for investigation. If the Chairman considers it advisable in the public interest, the Chairman may conduct an investigation of any complaint or institute a hearing regardless of whether the complaint has been investigated or otherwise dealt with by the RCMP. The findings and recommendations of the Chairman are sent to the Commissioner of the RCMP and the Solicitor General of Canada. The Chairman reports annually to Parliament through the Solicitor General of Canada.

Legislation

- Royal Canadian Mounted Police Act, Parts VI and VII

Organization

The Commission consists of a Chairman, a Vice-Chairman, a member for each contracting province and not more than three other members, to be appointed by order of the Governor in Council. The Chairman is the Chief Executive Officer of the Commission and has supervision over and direction of the work of the Commission staff. The senior staff of the Commission consists of an Executive Director, a General Counsel, a Director of Operations, Senior Reviewer/Analysts, Reviewer/Analysts, Investigators, a Senior Advisor Policy, Planning and Research, Regional Directors and an Office Manager.

Revenue Canada – Customs, Excise and Taxation
Chapter 93

General Information

Background

In 1927, the Department of National Revenue Act (now RSC 1985, C. N-16) established the Department of National Revenue by renaming the Department of Customs and Excise. The Department was responsible for assessing and collecting duties and taxes, monitoring the movement of people and goods across the Canadian border and protecting Canadian industries from foreign competition.

The same Act created a second department to collect income taxes, a responsibility that had been carried out by a commissioner from the Department of Finance. Each Department had the same minister, but had its own departmental organization headed by its own Deputy Minister.

The March 1993 budget indicated the Government's intention to integrate the two Departments under a single Deputy Minister. Today's Department of National Revenue operates two programs, Customs and Excise, and Taxation.

Responsibilities

The Customs and Excise component of the Department of National Revenue collects revenue on both imported and domestic goods and controls the movement of international travellers and product shipments of every description.

Customs is concerned primarily with the control of people and goods across Canada's international boundaries. The other main function of Customs is collecting revenue, mainly import duties and taxes, through the administration of the Customs Act, Customs Tariff Act, Special Import Measures Act and some 60 other Acts of Parliament that touch on matters as varied as illicit narcotics and firearms, animal diseases and fisheries protection.

Excise administers the Excise Act, Excise Tax Act and Softwood Lumber Products Export Charge Act. It is primarily concerned with administering the goods and services tax; the licensing of manufacturers and wholesalers; the collection of sales and excise taxes on domestic and imported goods; the regulatory control of breweries and distilleries; and the collection of excise duties on spirits, beer and tobacco.

The Customs and Excise Offshore Application Act extends Customs and Excise jurisdiction beyond 12 nautical miles to the outer edge of the continental shelf or to 200 nautical miles, whichever is greater. Its impact is limited to the offshore, non-living, natural resource industries. All equipment, ships, drilling vessels, etc. operating in the defined area are subject to Canadian customs and excise laws and regulations. Canadian manufacturers and suppliers to the offshore drilling rigs and related industries have the same tariff and other protection as exists on the mainland.

Legislation

- Customs Act
- Customs and Excise Offshore Application Act
- Customs Tariff
- Excise Act
- Excise Tax Act
- Softwood Lumber Products Export Charge Act
- Special Import Measures Act
- Canada Pension Plan Act, Part 1
- The Income Tax Acts of Canada
- Unemployment Insurance Act, Part IV

The Taxation component of Department of National Revenue administers the income tax legislation enacted by Parliament. Taxation collects individual taxpayers' federal income tax and their provincial and territorial taxes in all provinces and territories, except Quebec, and federal and provincial corporate taxes on behalf of all provinces and territories except Ontario, Quebec and Alberta. It also collects Canada Pension Plan contributions and Unemployment Insurance premiums imposed under the law.

Organization

■ Headquarters

Head Office is the administrative decision centre of Revenue Canada, and develops the Department's plans and policies. Nine assistant Deputy Ministers and two Directors General, responsible for the eleven branches, report directly to the Deputy Minister. The Senior General Counsel of Legal Services serves in an advisory capacity to the Deputy Minister.

■ Regional Offices

For administrative purposes, Revenue Canada, has divided Canada into several regions. A central office in each region is responsible for operations.

The function of the regional offices is to ensure the uniform and impartial application of departmental programs and policies across Canada. The regional offices are also responsible for coordinating the activities of the district offices and taxation centres in their region.

There are five Taxation regions for Atlantic, Quebec, Central, Western and Ontario. Customs regions are located in Halifax, Quebec City, Montreal, Ottawa, Toronto, Hamilton, Windsor, Winnipeg, Calgary and Vancouver. There are regional excise offices in Halifax, Québec City, Montreal, Ottawa, Toronto, London, Calgary and Burnaby.

■ Customs Operations Branch

The Customs Operations Branch is responsible for developing and operating the systems and procedures relating to the assessment and collection of import duties and taxes, and the examination and release of goods, persons and vehicles entering Canada. It is also responsible for interpreting and administering all relevant legislative and administrative requirements related to the international movement of people, goods and conveyances at the point and time of entry or exit, including the application of relevant provisions of statutes and regulations on behalf of other departments and agencies. The Branch is composed of four directorates, together with ten Customs Regions, which implement the various programs.

■ Customs Programs Branch

Customs Programs Branch is responsible for interpreting the customs laws, particularly for the classification of goods for tariff purposes and the determination of value for duty. Major responsibilities include investigating allegations of dumping, subsidization and undervaluation of imports, processing appeals made to the Deputy Minister, adjudicating seizures and providing advice to the public in response to enquiries. It is divided into five divisions.

■ Excise Branch

The Excise Branch administers the Excise Act, the Excise Tax Act and the Softwood Lumber Products Export Charge Act. Excise researches, develops and evaluates legislative proposals, regulations and remission orders relating to those acts, and coordinates Excise litigation efforts as well as researching, analyzing and developing plans and programs for the Excise Branch.

■ Taxation Programs Branch

This branch is accountable for the formation and assessment of national policies for a variety of programs relating to tax administration.

■ Appeals Branch

This branch establishes policies and guidelines for the disposition of Notices of Objection submitted by taxpayers who do not agree with their Notices of Assessment. It also deals with appeals under the Canada Pension Plan and Unemployment Insurance Acts, and assists and advises the Tax Litigation Section of the Department of Justice Canada on appeals to the courts.

■ Legislative and Intergovernmental Affairs Branch

This branch is responsible for interpreting the Income Tax Act, the Canada Pension Plan Act and the Unemployment Insurance Act; and serves as advisor on technical matters to other federal departments and governments.

■ Communications Branch

The Communications Branch provides structured communications research, planning, advice, and services to support the Minister, the Deputy Minister, and the delivery of departmental programs. The Branch's regional communication function provides support for national programs and services at the local level. The objective of the Branch is to help ensure that the Department's clients receive the information they need to comply with the relevant legislation and that the information is in a form which clients can understand and use.

■ Corporate Affairs Branch

The Corporate Affairs Branch conducts internal audits and program evaluations for Revenue Canada, Taxation. It also develops departmental policies and procedures. As well, the Branch provides executive support services and assists in corporate developments. It analyses taxpayer correspondence and controls the production of ministerial and deputy ministerial correspondence. This Branch is also responsible for the administration of the Access to Information and Privacy programs.

■ Finance and Administration Branch

This branch has the responsibility for planning, developing and reviewing national policies, procedures and programs in areas of finance, administration, security and tax forms. It also provides services in these areas to head office.

■ Human Resources Branch

This Branch plans, develops, manages and reviews all human-resource policies and programs.

■ Information Technology Branch

This branch is responsible for the research, development, maintenance and operation of ITB systems and services. It also provides computer-related services and data to other government departments and to other governments.

■ Legal Services

Legal Services advises the Deputy Minister and the Department on legal matters arising from the administration of the Income Tax Act and related statutes. (Staff are employed by the Department of Justice.)

Non-Compliance Identification Research Data
This bank contains information relating to financial transactions of individuals, including names and addresses. It is used to assist in audit, investigative and other compliance actions taken under the Income Tax Act. The purpose is to (1) detect non-filers of income tax and information returns and (2) confirm the correctness of reported taxable income. The information includes publicly available data obtained from federal, provincial and municipal governments, such as lists of shipping, Canadian civil aircraft registrations, municipal building permits, business licences, and business and city directories. It also includes information on some federal government subsidy and incentive programs, as well as information obtained in confidence from a variety of other sources in the public sector, such as marketing and distribution boards, colleges, and school boards. Some information is also obtained from the business and commercial sector regarding the purchase of goods and services, such as delivery of raw materials, removal of waste products, provision of security services and free-lance professional and administrative services. When the information described above is first collected, it is included in the Class of Personal Information described subsequently in this part of the Personal Information Index. Once organized for a compliance action, this personal information becomes part of this bank and is normally retrievable by name and some other personal identifier. Some of the information in this bank may subsequently be transferred to other established personal information banks. Access will not be permitted without the necessary authority and/or adequate proof of identification including a Social Insurance Number and signature. The retention period varies according to the record schedules of the general subject files in which they are stored. Related to PR#: RCT PSB 181 Bank Number: RCT PPU 025

Royal Canadian Mint
Chapter 94

General Information

Background

The Ottawa Mint was originally established in 1908 as a branch of the Royal Mint of London, England. On December 1, 1931, an Act of Parliament established the Royal Canadian Mint as a branch of the Department of Finance. On April 1, 1969, the Mint became a Crown corporation reporting to Parliament through the Minister of Supply and Services. New legislation passed in December 1987 marked the Mint's reclassification as a Schedule C-II Crown corporation. Its Head Office is in Ottawa, Ontario. Its two plants are located in Ottawa and Winnipeg, Manitoba.

Responsibilities

The Mint's primary purpose is to produce and arrange for the production and supply of coins of the currency of Canada. It also competes on the world market for contracts to produce circulating and numismatic coins and other devices for foreign trade dollars for government departments and private firms. The Mint also operates a refinery to melt, assay and refine gold, silver, and other metals.

Legislation

- Currency Act (Part I)
- Royal Canadian Mint Act

Organization

Office of the Master of the Mint

The executive control is vested in the Board of Directors. The principal officer of the Mint is the Master (president and chief executive officer), who is also a member of the Board of Directors. The Master is supported by a vice president for each of four divisions: Administration and Finance, Human Resources, Marketing, and Manufacturing.

Communications:

This section plans, organizes and directs the Mint's public information program. It informs the public on policies and programs of the Mint and supervises media relations nationally and internationally.

Marketing

This division is responsible for planning, organizing and directing sales of Mint products and services in both domestic and foreign markets. It develops sales strategies and marketing activities, prepares sales forecasts and is responsible for obtaining the necessary contracts to keep the Manufacturing Division working at full capacity. Another aspect of the Marketing Division is the research and development function, which surveys and reports on present and future markets for Mint products and services. The Division is comprised of four units: Foreign Coin Products, Marketing, Direct Marketing and Sales.

Foreign Coin Products Division:

Responsible for the procurement of contracts from foreign countries for the supply of their circulation and numismatic coinage.

Sales Division:

Responsible for the market development and sales of the Mint's products. This section is also responsible for the acquisition of contracts for the manufacture of bullion coins, numismatic coins, refinery services and medals and tokens.

Marketing Division:

This section plans, organizes and directs all Canadian numismatic programs by developing short and long range objectives; develops and recommends marketing policies for Mind products, assists in the national and international promotion of Canadian numismatic programs; coordinates the coin design program from each new Canadian numismatic coin. The unit is also responsible for the advertisement campaigns for the Canadian numismatic program. It also conducts research and development activities.

Direct Marketing Division:

Responsible for planning, developing and coordinating direct marketing campaigns for numismatic coins to the Royal Canadian Mint house file as well as consumers from other sources; develops and manages all aspects of a customer-driven automated order fulfillment and customer service operation, which involves reception of orders, system entry, transaction management, customer relations and communications. This section is also responsible for: the development of integrated direct marketing strategies that will maximize sales volume and achieve revenue objectives, as well as new customer acquisitions; the development and management of an extensive customer file, which involves response and sales analyses; sales forecasts and budget control related to the marketing of numismatic coins.

Manufacturing

This division produces Canadian circulation coinage and Canadian numismatic coins for sale to collectors. Foreign circulation and numismatic coins are also produced, as well as medals and trade dollars, all under a competitive bidding process. The Division keeps astride of new developments in metals and metal alloys and their possible applications to coinage. It coordinates research and liaison with the Association for the Blind, coin-vending machine companies, and the general public whenever a change in size, weight or metal content of circulating coinage is being considered. In addition, the Ottawa plant operates the Mint's refinery, which refines precious metal for mines, jewellers, banks and other institutions, both Canadian and foreign.

■ Engineering Services

Provides advice on equipment and maintains liaison with the Department of Public Works for some utilities, and with outside contractors for repairs and alterations to buildings. It proposes plans, specifications and drawings for equipment fabrication and purchase, designs toolings required in manufacturing and provides product specifications.

Technical Services:

Responsible for the maintenance, repairs and installation of equipment, as well as building repairs and services, including janitorial. It is also responsible for the manufacture of coining dies, dollars and tooling.

■ Engraving

This unit prepares and uses supplied designs for coins, medals, tokens and other Mint products. It models, photographs, etches, casts and produces matrixes from which master punches are made to produce required working dies. All master tooling is engraved with artistic excellence and precision to ensure the high quality of the final product.

■ Mint Office

This unit receives, weighs and records incoming shipments of rough gold, platinum and silver bullion, which are then sent to the refinery. The bullion is refined and assayed, then returned to the Mint Office where the data of the assay report is recorded, charges for the refining are calculated, and the metal is either stored or returned to the owner.

■ Production

The production of coin is divided between the Ottawa and Winnipeg Plants. The Winnipeg Plant has sole responsibility for producing Canadian circulating coin and also fills contracts for foreign circulating coin. In addition, this branch receives worn and mutilated Canadian circulating coins and returns them to the original metal supplier for melt-down. The Ottawa Plant produces medals, tokens, trade dollars and other devices, foreign numismatic coins, Canadian numismatic gold and silver coins, the Gold Maple Leaf bullion coins, and coins for special commemorative programs such as the Olympics. This plant also produces the gold and silver blanks used in making the numismatic coins.

■ Quality Assurance and Assay

Quality Assurance Unit:

Maintains quality standards and performance of equipment; ensures that all incoming materials meet standards and specifications; inspects all work-in-progress and finished articles to control the quality of the products of the Mint; and performs metallurgical investigations in the heat treating of different metals.

Assay Division:

Performs assays of bullion, scrap jewellery, fine gold, fine platinum, fine silver, alloyed silver and gold coins, coinage bars, refinery sweeps, commercial gold, platinum and silver under the Precious Metals Marking Act and of suspect counterfeit coins.

Analytical Laboratory:

Performs chemical and metallurgical analyses and assists other divisions with problems of an analytical nature; prepares and standardizes gold, platinum and silver trial plates; and processes control work on the production of coins.

■ Refinery

This unit refines mined bullion and placer gold, jewellery scrap and other gold and silver bearing materials received from Canadian and other sources. The refined gold and silver are turned into trade bars or granules. The Refinery also makes cast bars for the various medal and coin programs. As well, recycled metals from the blanking and coin-making operations are remelted or refined.

Direct Mail Marketing – Computerized Mail Master
The purpose of this bank is to maintain a list of direct mail customers for Royal Canadian Mint numismatic products. Information in this bank includes customer name and address, customer number, and language. This information is used to comprise a listing of purchasers of coins for future solicitation through a direct mail approach. This file is also utilized for name, address, and order status information required in the order fulfilment process and to answer enquiries from customers concerning their particular order. This bank may be accessed by any one of the following identifiers: customer name, customer number, or postal code. Records are retained for two years after the most recent purchase. Bank Number: RCM PPU 015

Mail Order Fulfilment – Computerized Order Master
The purpose of this bank is to capture, update and report direct mail orders for Royal Canadian Mint coins. Information in this bank includes customer name and address, product and quantity ordered, amount and method of payment, payment identification number, address and method for shipping. This information is used to record direct mail orders for coins, payment data related to orders for financial reporting, shipping documentation on fully paid orders, and names and addresses of collectors for future solicitations. Information may be accessed by any one of customer name, customer number, order number or postal code. It is retained for two years after the close of the applicable numismatic program. Bank Number: RCM PPU 010

Mail Order Fulfilment – Customers Relations
The purpose of this bank is to record service provided to purchasers of Royal Canadian Mint coins and answers to enquiries from the general public concerning numismatic programs. This information includes the customer's name and address. Where an order for a product is concerned, it will also include the telephone number, charge account number or other method of payment, product and quantity ordered. This information is used to aid in processing and tracing orders in cases of delay or loss. Information is accessed by the customer number, assigned by the Mail Master. The information is destroyed two years from the end of a coin program or when enquiries cease. Bank Number: RCM PPU 020

Mail Order Fulfilment – Individual
The purpose of this bank is to record direct mail orders for Royal Canadian Mint coins. Information in these files includes the original order, customer name and address, product and quantity ordered, amount and method of payment, payment identification number, address and method employed for shipping. This information is used to initiate fulfilment, distribution, and verification of orders for coins. The information is retained for one year from the closing date of each numismatic program. Bank Number: RCM PPU 005

Classes of Personal Information

In the course of conducting the programs and activities of the Royal Canadian Mint, categories of personal information may be accumulated which are not contained in the specific personal information banks described in this entry. Such personal information includes letters of appreciation; complaints and enquiries; campaigns and canvassing, such as Canada Savings Bonds and the United Way campaign; information concerning the use of copyrights and patents; records of distributors and dealers of Royal Canadian Mint products; appeals under the Human Rights Act. These categories are stored as part of the general subject files where records are not normally retrieved by name of individual or other personal identifier. This form of personal information is normally retrievable only if specifics are provided concerning the subject matter. The retention periods for these classes of personal information are controlled by the record schedules of the general subject files in which they are stored.

Royal Canadian Mounted Police
Chapter 95

General Information

Background
The Royal Canadian Mounted Police was formed in 1873, under an Act of Parliament.

Responsibilities
The Royal Canadian Mounted Police enforces laws throughout Canada made by or under the authority of Parliament. Administration of justice within the provinces, including enforcement of the Criminal Code, is the responsibility of provincial governments. The RCMP has contract agreements with the two territories and all provinces, except Ontario and Quebec, to enforce criminal, territorial and provincial laws, pursuant to section 20 of the RCMP Act.

Legislation
- Criminal Code
- Most federal statutes
- Municipal bylaws under contract
- Provincial laws under contract
- Territorial laws under contract

Organization
In accordance with the Royal Canadian Mounted Police Act, the Commissioner, under the direction of the Solicitor General of Canada, is responsible for the control and management of the RCMP. Four Deputy Commissioners manage the following activities at Headquarters: Administration, Corporate Management, Operations and Law Enforcement & Protective Services. Each Deputy Commissioner is assisted by Directors who manage their respective sub-activities.

The headquarters of the RCMP is located in Ottawa. The RCMP is divided into divisions, each division being roughly responsible for a province or territory. These divisions are alphabetically designated and each is further divided into subdivisions and detachments.

Specialized support is offered to the operational divisions by Air, Marine, Forensic Laboratory, and Identification Services. The RCMP Academy located in Regina, Saskatchewan, is responsible for recruit training. The RCMP Musical Ride and the RCMP Band are located in Ottawa and are administered by headquarters. Additionally, the RCMP is responsible for the administration of the Canadian Police College, located in Ottawa. The Canadian Police Information Centre (CPIC), a computer-based police information system, is also based at and administered by RCMP Headquarters in Ottawa. The CPIC system is an advanced computerized information storage and retrieval facility, designed for the use of participating Canadian law enforcement agencies. The CPIC acts as a central repository of operational data that is contributed to and maintained by participating Canadian law enforcement agencies. RCMP records entered into the system are identified in their respective Bank of Personal Information. The participating Canadian law enforcement agencies are entirely responsible for the accuracy and immediacy of the data which they supply and maintain within the CPIC System. Records entered into the CPIC system by participating Canadian law enforcement agencies must be supported by documented reports held by the originator. The originating agency is the only one entitled or enabled to alter their records in the system.

ADMINISTRATION ACTIVITY
The Administration Activity encompasses the organization and management of the Department's human resources. It maintains an internal administrative policy function and service in relation to training, staffing and personnel, health, materiel, language and organizational issues. These issues pertain to members of the RCMP as well as Public Service Employees employed by the organization. In addition, the Administration Activity is responsible for the management of property, material, transport and food related services.This Activity is comprised of the following Sub-Activities:

■ Personnel (RCMP)
This program provides RCMP management with a number of diverse services to assist in management of the department's human resources. The Sub-Activity includes the following initiatives: Multiculturalism, Staffing & Personnel, Recruiting, Internal Affairs, Compensation, Classification, Human Rights and Conflict of Interest.

■ Public Service Personnel
This program is responsible for the planning, design and implementation of an integrated human resource management program for Public Service Employees within the RCMP. This Sub-Activity is comprised of the following: Classification, Staffing, Staff Relations & Compensation, and Human Resources Planning and Development.

■ Training
This program provides RCMP employees with the opportunity to acquire the knowledge, skills and attitude necessary to perform their duties in the most efficient and professional manner. It controls all training by the RCMP for its employees including basic recruit training, centralized and divisional technical and management training.

■ Services and Supply

This program provides internal support in accommodation, transport, food, materiel and miscellaneous services for the RCMP in accordance with relevant policies, regulations and statutes.

■ Health Services

This program administers all health related assessment and treatment services to regular members of the RCMP and establishes health programs and standards for employment. It also manages research projects for the development of psychological services, fitness/ lifestyle programs as well as programs directed at promoting health and environmental safety. The Sub-Activity also maintains the medical records of members to ensure confidentiality.

■ Official Languages

This program is responsible for developing policy, implementing centralized planning and ensuring compliance with the Official Languages Act and derivative policies.

■ Officers' Staffing and Personnel

This program provides a centralized staff support service to the Commissioner for the appointment, promotion, training, succession/ career planning of the Regular Member officers (Inspectors to Deputy Commissioners) and Civilian Members of officer equivalency.

CORPORATE MANAGEMENT ACTIVITY

The Activity of Corporate Management includes the functions of strategic and corporate planning, corporate policy design, financial planning, audit and program evaluation. Responsiveness and accountability to the government are ensured by the coordination of communications, public affairs, information access, ministerial liaison and external review and appeals.This Activity contains the following Sub-Activities:

■ Corporate Services

This program develops and coordinates strategic and corporate planning, formulates corporate policy, manages corporate information and conducts program evaluations and management studies. Annual accountability reports and briefings are developed for the Commissioner and in response to the government's planning process. The program is delivered through three components, Corporate Planning and Information Management, Strategic Planning and Corporate Policy, and Program Evaluation.

■ Financial Services (Chief Financial Officer)

This program manages the financial affairs of the department to satisfy requirements for financial control and accountability of the RCMP, contracting partners, legislation and government.

■ Audit

This program is designed to plan, develop and implement a comprehensive audit approach to examine and review all RCMP law enforcement and administrative activities.

■ Information Access

This program provides a centralized response to requests under the Access to Information and Privacy Acts for access to records under the control of the RCMP. The Sub-Activity develops policies and procedures to ensure conformity with the legislation while maintaining the protection of sensitive information and privacy of individual records.

■ Public Affairs

This program aims at promoting good public relations and conveying an accurate and constructive image of the RCMP in Canada and abroad. This includes the provision of information and responses to requests from the general public and the media regarding RCMP activities, the maintaining of contemporary and historical materials, the production of RCMP publications, operation of the RCMP Museum and the provision of performances by the RCMP Musical Ride.

■ RCMP Commissioner and Ministerial Correspondence Unit

This program provides the Minister, the Deputy Minister and their staff with urgent and accurate information respecting the activities of the RCMP.

■ External Review & Appeals

This program assists the Commissioner by providing advice, research and background material for all reviews and recommendations generated by the External Review Committee (ERC) and the Public Complaints Commission (PCC). The Sub-Activity also advises the Commissioner on appeals or grievances which must be considered by him, but which are not reviewed by an external agency.

■ OPERATIONS ACTIVITY

The Operations Activity manages all planning and policy aspects of law enforcement programs in support of federal, provincial and municipal government requirements. Assistance and cooperation is provided to accredited police agencies as well as to the general public. It is also the focal point, on a nation-wide basis, for the coordination and evaluation of criminal operations and criminal intelligence gathering.This Activity is comprised of the following Sub-Activities:

■ Community and Aboriginal Policing

This program initiates, develops and evaluates a practical and culturally sensitive policing service for aboriginal Canadians. It also includes cost shared policing services to all provinces and territories, except Ontario and Quebec, under agreements signed between the Solicitor General of Canada and the provinces and territories. The RCMP provides municipal police services under separate agreements.

This Sub-Activity is also responsible for the Crime Prevention and Victim Services, Aboriginal Liaison and Policing, Community Policing and Contract Management programs in the RCMP.

■ Enforcement Services

This program includes federal policing services as well as various specific initiatives in support of federal, provincial and municipal governments such as Customs and Excise, General Enforcement, Immigration & Passport, Special Services (video and physical surveillance, polygraph, voice identification), and Operational Support Interception of private communications.

■ Drug Enforcement

This program manages the investigation of offenses related to the importation, exportation, manufacturing, cultivation, trafficking and possession of narcotics and other dangerous drugs in Canada. It also administers and operates the RCMP's Undercover, Source and Witness Protection programs; the Coordinated Coastal Enforcement Program; the Anti-Drug Profiteering program; and the RCMP's Drug Awareness program.

■ Economic Crime

This program provides specialized investigators to combat criminal activity in the business sector through the investigation of fraudulent corporate and personal bankruptcies; provides a criminal investigative service within the Canadian securities industry and a national repository of securities fraud information; with Revenue Canada, the investigation, prosecution and recovery of monies owing to the Government of Canada through the provisions of the Income Tax Act; a criminal investigative service to departments and agencies of the Government of Canada with respect to program abuse of a number of statutes such as the Unemployment Insurance Act; and the investigation and prosecution of individuals and corporations involved in major business oriented crime of an interprovincial, national or international nature.

■ Foreign Services

This program includes a liaison function which provides a Canadian link with foreign enforcement agencies for the exchange of information relative to the interdiction of international criminal activity and the maintenance of law and order in Canada. It provides support and assistance to all Canadian law enforcement agencies which require criminal information or assistance from foreign governments to further Canadian investigations or legal proceedings. Another component of the Sub-Activity is International Law Enforcement Liaison which manages the activities of the RCMP and the Canadian law enforcement community within the International Criminal Police Organization (ICPO), more commonly known as Interpol.

■ Criminal Intelligence

This program is designed to enhance management of the RCMP's criminal intelligence functions to provide a more comprehensive criminal operations capability. It includes the coordinating, monitoring and assessing of all major organized crime and criminal operations investigations, including those involving gaming specialists, as well as all criminal investigations having a national security dimension; overseeing, coordinating and monitoring the collection, handling, review and dissemination of criminal intelligence; maintaining a threat assessment program specific to the RCMP's protective policing responsibilities and management of the RCMP's National Emergency Operations Centre. The Sub-Activity also manages the liaison program between the RCMP and Canadian Security Intelligence Service (CSIS).

PROTECTIVE ACTIVITY

The Protective Activity encompasses the protective policing functions of the RCMP which includes providing security for designated government dignitaries; government property; internationally protected persons and their residences; and major events. It is responsible for coordinating security for VIP visits, conducting security inspections and surveys of physical installations and providing consultations for officials regarding security requirements.This Activity is comprised of the following Sub-Activities:

■ Protective Services

This program is responsible for the development, implementation and coordination of the National Protective Policy, including all policy relating to the personal protection of the Prime Minister, Governor General, visiting Heads of State, other Internationally Protected Persons and Justices of the Supreme Court of Canada, as well as all policy relating to the physical security of foreign missions, the Supreme court, the residence of the Prime Minister and Governor General and other government property.

■ Departmental Security

This program is responsible for developing, monitoring and coordinating the implementation of internal security policies relative to the security clearance of RCMP employees, properties and information systems.

■ Technical Security Services

This program provides technical security expertise in support of law enforcement investigations and the protective functions of the RCMP. Inspections are conducted and consultations provided relating to the selection and use of protective security equipment in government, the security of government buildings and other designated properties and the security of Electronic Data Processing facilities of government and certain private sector facilities which process classified or other sensitive information under government contracts.

■ Airport Policing

This program provides police and security services at designated domestic and international airports. The main focus of the program is the protection of the travelling public and the guarding of airport property by controlling access to critical areas within the airport terminals and aircraft operational areas.

■ Major Events

This program ensures that security procedures at national and international events are sufficient to ensure the safety of all participants. Security advice is provided in the planning of major events. The program develops, implements and maintains the policies and procedures pertaining to security measures. Security coordinators are appointed to control and direct the planning of all major event security measures.

■ Prime Minister's Protection Detail

This program provides security for the Prime Minister and his family within Canada, and assists local security personnel during visits abroad. The program coordinates requirements for personal protection, drivers and site security as are necessary for travel within Canada, and liaison with foreign security officers in anticipation of and in preparation for foreign visits.

LAW ENFORCEMENT SERVICES ACTIVITY

The Law Enforcement Services Activity provides technical expertise and operational support to all accredited Canadian law enforcement agencies and specialized institutions within the criminal justice system.This Activity is comprised of the following Sub-Activities:

■ Informatics

This program administers comprehensive and integrated information management systems and services required to support RCMP programs. The major components of the Sub/Activity are: Information Management, which provides control and coordination of information systems, policy and procedures regarding recorded information, libraries, archival programs and administration of records imaging systems; Systems Development; and Central Operations, which is responsible for a number of automated information systems including, the Canadian Police Information Centre (CPIC), the Criminal Operations Police System (COPS), the Administrative Information Management System (AIMS), the Police Information Retrieval System (PIRS), the National Automated Drug Intelligence Program (NADIP), the Comparative Analysis and Resourcing System (CARS), the Secure Criminal Information System (SCIS) and the Airport Security Telecommunications Program.

■ Air Services

This program provides transportation support to meet the operational requirements of the RCMP.

■ Forensic Laboratory Services

This program provides scientific and technical assistance to the Canadian Criminal justice system. Physical evidence acquired during the course of investigations is examined by scientists, to provide information of evidentiary significance. Expert opinions based on scientific examinations are provided to aid investigations and as court evidence. This sub-activity also manages the Canadian Police Research Centre which co-ordinates the development of scientific and technical research projects of a law enforcement nature. The program also provides a consultative service to other government departments, and an assistance role to other countries in relation to the transfer of expertise through training, analysis of exhibit materials and testimony within their judicial systems.

■ Identification Services

This program, through its Fingerprint Operations Section, provides the police community and other authorized agencies with a national computerized repository for fingerprint records on a data base known as the Automatic Fingerprint Identification System (AFIS). The Criminal History Information Section maintains a central repository of criminal history information on behalf of the law enforcement community. They disseminate information to accredited law enforcement agencies and other approved investigative and security organizations. Additionally, the Sub-Activity through its General Services Section administers a number of specific services including Firearms Registration, a national repository for Fraudulent Cheques and related documents, the Missing Children's Registry, Photographic Services and Forensic Identification Support.

■ Canadian Police College

This program provides advanced police training in matters of organization, administration, personnel management and specialized investigative techniques to the Canadian law enforcement community and some foreign agencies. An integral part of the College is its research and program development function.

■ Criminal Intelligence Services Canada

This program is a national law enforcement community intelligence organization administered by the RCMP with a Central Bureau in Ottawa and nine provincial bureaux across Canada. The program, focusing on organized crime, gathers criminal intelligence and ensures that tactical intelligence is submitted through the provincial bureaux, where facilities for the collection, analysis and dissemination of criminal intelligence are provided, and are accessible to its members. The program oversees a computer system known as the Automated Criminal Intelligence Information Services (ACIIS), which is a repository for criminal intelligence information available to the intelligence community.

■ Professional Standards

This program supplies a centralized pool of legally trained RCMP members dedicated to providing representation and assistance to appropriate officers and members of the RCMP for formal discipline, discharge and demotion tribunals across the country.

LINKING STATEMENT

All records retained by the RCMP are subject to one classification methodology. Records are retained in accordance with the subject content of the record, based on a central file classification system, rather than function or activity. Each Detachment, Sub-Division, Division and Headquarters, Ottawa classifies records under three main groups, Administrative, Operational Policy, and Sequential (Operational Investigative Records). The Administrative records are divided into seven sub-classifications. These are further categorized, as are the Operational Policy records, into sub-topics, which are standard throughout the RCMP. The Sequential (Operational Investigative Records) pertain to the general investigative records generated and retained at each site, and as the name suggests, each is sequentially numbered. The volume of records will vary from location to location, however the retention system is uniform.

This system is centrally regulated by the Director Informatics, and this enables the RCMP to describe its record holdings in the three distinct categories.

Requesters need only describe the record they wish to access. If the request pertains to a specific incident, the location of that incident is also required.

Security Intelligence Review Committee
Chapter 96

General Information

Background
The Security Intelligence Review Committee was established under the Canadian Security Intelligence Service Act on July 14, 1984.

Responsibilities
The Security Intelligence Review Committee, an independent external review body, is mandated to review the performance by the Canadian Security Intelligence Service of its duties and functions. The Committee is required to investigate complaints from individuals who have had their employment prospects affected by the denial of a security clearance. It also investigates reports made to it by the Secretary of State for Citizenship, the Minister of Immigration, the Human Rights Commission, and the Solicitor General of Canada, which relate to national security or to an individual's involvement in organized crime. The Committee is required to report annually to Parliament, through the Solicitor General, on these matters.

Legislation
- Canadian Security Intelligence Service Act

Organization
Research Section:
Carries out studies and other activities to provide the external review of the Canadian Security Intelligence Service.

Complaints Section:
Investigates complaints by individuals, or reports by Ministers, related to security clearances and the national security of Canada.

Section 41 of the Canadian Security Intelligence Service Act – Complaints Against the Canadian Security Intelligence Service
The Security Intelligence Review Committee may receive complaints from any person with respect to any act or thing done by the Canadian Security Intelligence Service (CSIS) and the Committee shall investigate the complaint if (a) the complainant has made a complaint to the Director with respect to that act or thing and the complainant has not received a response within such period of time as the Committee considers reasonable, or is dissatisfied with the response given; and (b) the Committee is satisfied that the complaint is not trivial, frivolous, vexatious or made in bad faith. Upon completion of its investigation of a section 41 complaint, the Review Committee shall provide the Solicitor General and the Director of the Canadian Security Intelligence Service with a report and will then advise the complainant of the Committee's conclusions and recommendations. The information was obtained to complete investigations resulting from the submission of a complaint against the CSIS under section 41 of the Canadian Security Intelligence Service Act. Consistent uses are to support the recommendations resulting from the investigation of a complaint. Bank Number: SIR PPU 005

Section 42 of the Canadian Security Intelligence Service Act – Complaints from Federal Employees – Including DND and Contractors
When complaints are received from individuals where, by reason only of the denial of a security clearance required by the Government of Canada, a decision is made by a deputy head to deny employment to an individual or to deny a promotion or transfer to an individual, or to deny an individual or any other person a contract to provide goods or services to the Government of Canada, the deputy head shall send, within ten days after the decision is made, a notice informing the individual of the denial of the security clearance. The Review Committee shall, as soon as practicable after receiving a complaint made under section 42, send to the complainant a statement summarizing such information available to the Committee as will enable the complainant to be as fully informed as possible of the circumstances giving rise to the denial of the security clearance and shall send a copy of the statement to the Director of the Canadian Security Intelligence Service. Upon completion of an investigation in relation to a complaint under section 42, the Review Committee shall provide the Solicitor General, the Director of the Canadian Security Intelligence Service and the deputy head concerned with a report containing any recommendations that the Committee considers appropriate and those findings of the investigation that the Committee considers it fit to report to the complainant. This information was obtained as part of an investigation by the Review Committee under section 42 of the Canadian Security Intelligence Service Act. Consistent uses are to support the recommendations made following the investigation. Bank Number: SIR PPU 010

Section 73 of the Canadian Security Intelligence Service Act – Reports Submitted to the Canadian Human Rights Commission

When, at any stage after the filing of a complaint with the Human Rights Commission and before the commencement of a hearing before a Human Rights Tribunal in respect thereof, the Commission receives written notice from a Minister of the Crown in right of Canada that the practice to which the complaint relates was based on considerations relating to the security of Canada, the Commission may (a) dismiss the complaint; or (b) refer the matter to the Security Intelligence Review Committee. The Security Intelligence Review Committee shall, as soon as practicable after a matter in relation to a complaint under subsection 36.1 of the Canadian Human Rights Act is referred to it, send to the complainant a statement summarizing such information available to it as will enable the complainant to be as fully informed as possible of the circumstances giving rise to the referral. Upon completion of its investigation, the Review Committee shall provide the Commission, the Minister concerned, the Solicitor General, the Director of the Canadian Security Intelligence Service and the complainant with a report containing the findings of the Committee. This information relates to any individual who has filed a complaint with the Canadian Human Rights Commission, or the person against whom the complaint was made. This information was obtained as part of an investigation by the Review Committee under section 73 of the Canadian Security Intelligence Service Act. Consistent uses are to support the recommendations arrived at following the investigation. Bank Number: SIR PPU 015

Section 75 of the Canadian Security Intelligence Service Act – Citizenship Reports

The Secretary of State for Citizenship under subsection 17 of the Citizenship Act may make a report to the Review Committee when he is of the opinion that a person should not be granted citizenship under section 5 or subsection 10(1) or administered the oath of citizenship or be issued a certificate of renunciation under section 8 because there are reasonable grounds to believe that the person will engage in activity that constitutes a threat to the security of Canada, or that is part of a pattern of criminal activity planned and organized by a number of persons acting in concert in furtherance of the commission of any offence that may be punishable under any Act of Parliament by way of indictment. The Secretary of State shall, within ten days after the report is made, cause a notice to be sent informing the person of the report and stating that following an investigation in relation thereto, a declaration with respect to that person may be made by the Governor in Council under section 18. The Review Committee shall, as soon as practicable after a report is made to it pursuant to paragraph 1 above, send to the person with respect to whom the report is made a statement summarizing such information available to it as will enable the person to be as fully informed as possible of the circumstances giving rise to the report. The Review Committee shall, upon completion of an investigation in relation to a report made to it, make a report to the Governor in Council on all matters relating thereto; and at the same time as or after a report is made to the Governor in Council provide the complainant with a report containing the conclusions of the report. The complete report is also sent to the Director of the Canadian Security Intelligence Service and the Solicitor General. This information relates to any individual who is the subject of a report made to the Review Committee by the Secretary of State for Citizenship under section 17 of the Citizenship Act. This information was obtained as part of an investigation by the Review Committee under section 75 of the Canadian Security Intelligence Service Act. Consistent uses are to support the recommendations arrived at following the investigation. Bank Number: SIR PPU 020

Section 79 of the Canadian Security Intelligence Act – Immigration Reports

Under section 79 of the Canadian Security Intelligence Act, the Minister of Employment and Immigration and the Solicitor General may make a report to the Review Committee when they are of the opinion, based on security or criminal intelligence reports received and considered by them, that a person, other than a Canadian citizen, is (a) in the case of a permanent resident, a person described in subparagraph 19(1)(d)(ii) or paragraph 19(1)(e) or (g) or 27(1)(c) of the Immigration Act, or (b) in any other case, a person described in any of paragraphs 19(1)(d) to (g) or 27(2)(c) of the Immigration Act. They shall, within ten days after the report is made, cause a notice to be sent informing the person that following an investigation in relation thereto, a deportation order may be made against that person. The Review Committee shall, as soon as practicable after a report is made to it, send to the person with respect to whom the report is made a statement summarizing such information available to it as will enable the person to be as fully informed as possible of the circumstances giving rise to the report. The Review Committee shall, upon completion of an investigation in relation to a report made to it pursuant to subsection 2, make a report to the Governor in Council containing its conclusion as to whether or not a certificate should be issued under subsection 40(1) and the grounds on which that conclusion is based. At the same time as or after a report is made to the Governor in Council, the Committee shall provide the person with respect to whom the report is made with another report containing the Committee's conclusions. This information relates to any individual who is the subject of a report made to the Review Committee by the Secretary of State for Immigration under sections 19 and 27 of the Immigration Act. This information was obtained as part of an investigation by the Review Committee under section 79 of the Canadian Security Intelligence Service Act. Consistent uses are to support the recommendations arrived at following the investigation. Bank Number: SIR PPU 025

Social Sciences and Humanities Research Council of Canada

Chapter 97

General Information

Background

The Social Sciences and Humanities Research Council is a grant-giving body whose funds are voted by Parliament. Its mandate, in the terms of Section 4 of the Government Organization (Scientific Activities) Act, 1976-77, is "to promote and assist research and scholarship in the social sciences and humanities; and advise the Minister in respect of such matters relating to such research as the Minister may refer to the Council for its consideration." The Council administers programs of support for Canadian research and training in the social sciences and humanities, including fellowships, research grants, and funding for research dissemination, international scholarly activities, and other research-related activities.

Responsibilities

The Council's objectives are to enhance the advancement of knowledge by supporting basic research in the social sciences and humanities; to support strategic research in fields of national importance; to help ensure Canada's national capacity for research and expertise in the social sciences and humanities by supporting advanced training in these disciplines; to facilitate communication among scholars in Canada and abroad and to promote awareness and use of SSHRC-funded results within the academic community, the public and private sectors and the general public. In addition, the Council performs a leadership role in research policy in Canada through consultations and liaison with government and the scholarly community.

Legislation

- Government Organizations (Scientific Activities) Act, 1976
- Social Sciences and Humanities Research Council By-Laws

Organization

■ Office of the Secretary General

The Office of the Secretary General supervises the administration of the Secretariat, the Policy and Planning Division, the Evaluation and Statistics Division and the Communications Division. It is also responsible for administering the Presidential Fund for Innovation and Development.

Secretariat:

Performs secretariat functions for the Council and its standing committees and any other ad hoc groups created to study particular issues. The Secretariat also administers the Access to Information and Privacy (ATIP) legislation.

Policy and Planning Division:

Conducts research and analysis related to the work of the Council and is responsible for program budget projections and allocations, and for coordinating policy and program development.

Evaluation and Statistics Division:

Plans and conducts evaluations of Council programs, develops and implements new approaches for evaluating the results of research support, and for preparing and distributing summary statistics on the participants and results of Council programs in response to internal and external requests.

Communications Division:

This Division is responsible for Council's internal and external communications, public and media relations, communication policy and strategy. It provides information about Council programs and activities to the scholarly community, government, the media and the general public. It publishes Council's annual report, applicant guides and forms, reports of consultative groups, as well as other informational material for all SSHRC programs. It also prepares news releases, newsletters, official correspondence, briefs, statements and speeches.

■ Program Branch

The Branch is responsible for fostering, promoting and assisting research through the delivery of the Council's grants and scholarships programs.

Research Grants Division:

Awards grants to researchers occupying positions or affiliated with Canadian universities and/or postsecondary institutions to support programs of scholarly research.

Strategic Grants Division:

Awards grants to institutions and individual scholars to provide assistance for research and other scholarly work contributing to the fulfilment of national objectives. The Strategic Grants Programs develop a capacity for multidisciplinary research in particular areas. The Joint Initiatives share this objective but are developed in partnership with other agencies.

Research Communication and International Relations Division:
This Division is responsible for grants awarded to assist learned journals, scholarly publications and associations, specialized research collections in university libraries, occasional scholarly conferences in Canada and umbrella organizations. It provides general research funds directly to universities for small-scale research activities and for travel grants for Canadian scholars contributing to major international scholarly meetings, and to aid small universities for the development of research potential. This division also administers programs which provide travel grants for international representation, grants for international congresses in Canada, and support for international summer institutes in Canada.

Fellowships Division:
Administers fellowships for research training and independent research.

■ Administration Branch

The Administration Branch provides administrative support to the Council in the areas of personnel, information management, finance, materiel and records management.

Solicitor General Canada – Ministry Secretariat
Chapter 98

General Information

Background

The Department of the Solicitor General was established in 1966 when Parliament enacted the Department of the Solicitor General Act, which assigned to the Solicitor General, responsibility and accountability for the management and direction of reformatories, prisons, penitentiaries, parole, remissions, and the Royal Canadian Mounted Police.

Evolutionary additions and changes to this mandate resulted in the Department's reorganization into a ministry, incorporating the Secretariat, the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, the Correctional Service of Canada, the National Parole Board, the Office of the Correctional Investigator, the Canadian Security Intelligence Service (CSIS) and the Office of the Inspector General.

Responsibilities

Under the Departmental Act, the Solicitor General is responsible for federal matters relating to policing, corrections and parole, and domestic aspects of national security. The Solicitor General is also the lead minister for counter-terrorism.

These responsibilities are fulfilled through the activities of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police (RCMP), Canadian Security Intelligence Service (CSIS), Correctional Service Canada (CSC), the National Parole Board (NPB), and the review agencies: the Inspector General of CSIS, the Correctional Investigator, the RCMP Public Complaints Commission, the RCMP External Review Committee, and the Secretariat. Please note that each of the above mentioned agencies has its own Information Holdings and its own Personal Information Banks and is autonomous in terms of the administration of the Access to Information Act and Privacy Act. In order to access information from any of the Agencies, please forward your request directly to them. Please consult the Table of Contents and Introduction portions of Info Source for more information concerning the Information Holdings and addresses of the respective Agencies.

The Secretariat supports the Minister by developing strategic plans and policies that provide long-term direction for the Minister; by developing legislation, sectoral policies and programs to strengthen security, policing and corrections consistent with national requirements and government priorities; by advising on operational plans, policies and practices, external relations and public communications; and, by coordinating the management of crises and issues of strategic concern to the Minister.

Organization

■ Police and Security Branch

The Branch provides policy advice to the Solicitor General on the role, priorities, programs and operational activities of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police and the Canadian Security Intelligence Service. The Branch also develops policy on federal law enforcement, national policing issues, national security, contingency planning and counter-terrorism. To facilitate clear, effective direction to the RCMP and the Canadian Security Intelligence Service and the coordination of the counter-terrorism program, the Branch consists of three Directorates as well as the Federal Law Enforcement Under Review Secretariat:

The National Security Directorate:

Established in September, 1992, as a result of an amalgamation of the Security Policy and Operations Directorate (SPOD) and the National Security Coordination Center (NSCC), supports the Solicitor General in his leadership role relating to national security and in his accountability for the security activities of CSIS and RCMP. The Directorate advises on national security by initiating, developing, administering and analyzing federal government and Ministry national security policies, programs and operations, and by coordinating national counter-terrorism and crisis management programs, as well as the federal response to terrorism and other crises which threaten public order.

Police and Law Enforcement Directorate:

Responsible for developing and reviewing policy proposals governing the overall effectiveness and accountability of the RCMP; developing and implementing federal policy on the management of RCMP policing agreements with provinces, territories and municipalities; and reviewing RCMP policy and expenditure submissions. It is also responsible for developing policy, programs and research for federal-provincial law enforcement initiatives and participating in the development of policy, programs and research initiatives with federal and national policing and law enforcement implications.

Aboriginal Policing Directorate:

Comprises two divisions: Operations and Liaison, Policy and Research. The Directorate is responsible for the implementation of the First Nations Policing Policy and related program administration. Responsibilities include facilitating, negotiating tripartite agreements and monitoring their implementation; program development and evaluation, research for First Nations Communities both on and off reserve; providing strategic advice to the Minister regarding the policy, program and research related to the Solicitor General's responsibilities for the implementation of the First Nations Policing Program.

The Federal Law Enforcement Under Review Secretariat:

Responsible for support to the Interdepartmental Committee of Deputy Ministers Responsible for Federal Law Enforcement in the discharge of their mandate. That mandate is to coordinate the law enforcement function within departments and agencies to ensure the optimum degree of effectiveness, efficiency, uniformity and consistency is achieved in the conduct of that function. The support includes problem identification, the conduct of research and the development of strategies and solutions related to such problems. The Secretariat develops implementation strategies to give effect to Committee decisions and policies.

■ Communications Group

The Communications Group explains Ministry objectives, roles and activities to all those within the criminal justice system and to the public, and serves the information and communication needs of the Solicitor General and the Secretariat in particular. The Group ensures effective communications with the public and the media in support of government and Ministry objectives through the integration of communications with policy and program development as well as operations.

■ Corrections Branch

The Corrections Branch advises the Minister and the Deputy Minister on corrections matters; develops federal policy and legislation to meet government responsibilities for correctional services; conducts research and analysis in support of policy, program development and planning; and advises on the operational submissions of the CSC and NPB.

Corrections Research and Strategic Policy Directorate:

Responsible for research and long-term policy and program development to advise the Minister on strategic directions for policy, program, and legislative initiatives, with respect to the Minister's responsibilities for the CSC and the NPB and to his national role.

Corrections Policy and Program Analysis Directorate:

Provides advice and information regarding on-going and proposed federal correctional policies and operations, as well as the criminal justice environment in which they occur. Advice is provided on ministerial decision-making related to the Solicitor General's responsibilities for the management and direction of the CSC and the NPB.

■ Planning and Management Branch

The Planning and Management Branch advises the Solicitor General and the Deputy Solicitor General on a range of Ministry corporate management issues including strategic and operational plans and planning processes; research and statistics policy and priorities; management information systems, informatics policies and plans; evaluation and audit; financial, administrative and human resource policies; Cabinet and parliamentary affairs; federal-provincial, private and voluntary sector issues; ministerial correspondence and Access to Information and Privacy issues. The regional offices of the Secretariat inform the Secretariat and the Ministry of provincial and community pressures, opportunities and priorities; and is responsible for regional communications.

Planning, Financial Management and Administration Directorate:

Responsible for the development of corporate policies and the delivery of related services in the areas of strategic and operational planning; resources management and controls; informatics; financial management; records and administrative services.

Executive Services Directorate:

Supports the Minister, the Deputy Minister, the agencies and the Secretariat on: Cabinet and parliamentary affairs; federal-provincial, private and voluntary sector relations; international issues; Access to Information and Privacy issues. Through the regional offices, the Group provides regional representation, consultation, liaison, planning and communications support for the Minister, the Secretariat and, as requested, for the agencies.

Management Review Directorate:

Responsible for Secretariat audit program, coordination of program evaluation and other reviews. The Directorate advises the Deputy Solicitor General and senior management regarding information and experience gained through audit and other reviews.

Human Resources Division:

Promotes effective human resources management by coordinating and offering advice on Ministry-wide human resources planning and management. The Division also offers advice on the development of comprehensive human resources policies, plans and programs; provides a full range of personnel services for the Solicitor General Secretariat and the review agencies; and manages special projects and studies in support of human resources management.

Classes of Personal Information

Secretariat Records Offices
In the course of conducting the programs and activities of the Ministry Secretariat, personal information may be accumulated which is not contained in any of the specific personal information banks described in this entry, or the standard banks located elsewhere in the index. Such personal information exists in a fragmented form throughout some 45,000 files located in Ottawa and five other cities across Canada. The information relates to criminal justice system policy; police and law enforcement issues; and general administrative matters. Most of the information is generated internally. However, a portion comes from the general public in the form of opinions or inquiries. This information is not intended to be used for any administrative purpose affecting individuals by the Ministry Secretariat. Information may include names, addresses, profession, and is normally only retrievable if specifics are provided, e.g., project titles, dates, events, organization titles and locations.

Security Intelligence Transitional Group (SITG)
In the course of conducting the activities and programs of this planning group, personal information may have been accumulated which was not contained in the specific personal information bank described in this entry, i.e. planning information on the organizational, personnel and administrative structure for the new security agency; public opinions and enquiries. This information is not intended for use in any administrative purpose affecting individuals by the Security Intelligence Transitional Group. The information may contain names, addresses, and position titles and is stored as a part of the general subject files where records are not normally retrieved by personal identifiers. The information is only retrievable if specific subjects, dates, or events are provided.

St. Lawrence Seaway Authority, The

Chapter 99

General Information

Background

The St. Lawrence Seaway Authority (SLSA) was established in 1954 by the St. Lawrence Seaway Authority Act, and is designated a proprietary corporation (Schedule III, Part I) within the meaning and purpose of the Financial Administration Act.

Responsibilities

The Authority was incorporated to ensure the acquisition of lands for, and the construction, maintenance and operation of all such works as may be necessary to provide and maintain, alone or in conjunction with an appropriate authority in the United States, a deep waterway between the Port of Montreal and Lake Erie; and the construction, maintenance and operation of all such works as the Governor in Council may deem necessary to fulfil any obligation undertaken pursuant to any present or future agreement. It also ensures the acquisition of lands for, and construction, maintenance and operation, alone or in conjunction with an appropriate authority in the United States, of bridges connecting Canada with the United States as authorized by the Act; and acquisition, with the approval of the Governor in Council, of shares in or property of any bridge company, as well as operation and management of these bridges; and the acquisition of lands for, and construction or acquisition, maintenance and operation of such works or other property as the Governor in Council may deem necessary for works undertaken pursuant to the Act. The Authority reports to Parliament through the Minister of Transport.

The Seaway International Bridge Corporation, Ltd.: Its head office, located in Cornwall, Ontario, operates and manages an international toll bridge system between Cornwall, Ontario and Rooseveltown, New York, on behalf of the owners – The St. Lawrence Seaway Authority of Canada and the United States Saint Lawrence Seaway Development Corporation.

The Jacques Cartier and Champlain Bridges Incorporated: was established to provide the public with a safe and efficient transit over the Jacques Cartier Bridge, the Champlain Bridge and a portion of the Bonaventure Autoroute, and to provide this service while attempting to make the bridges self-financing. Specific objectives of the corporation are: (1) to continue the implementation of a program to maintain the bridges and autoroute at an acceptable standard; (2) to ensure operational safety and efficient flow of traffic; (3) to assess the need for improvements to the system and plan for their implementation; (4) to develop a long-term financial plan; (5) to examine its personnel requirements on a continuing basis to assure the optimum utilization of human resources.

Legislation

- St. Lawrence Seaway Authority Act, R.S.C. 1970, c. S-1

Organization

The three members of the Authority, appointed by Order-in-Council, as well as the Corporate Secretary, Legal Counsel and the Director of the Planning and Business Development Branch, are located in Ottawa, Ontario. Corporate Services are located in Cornwall, Ontario. The headquarters of the Maisonneuve Region, which extends from Montreal to Lake Ontario, is in St. Lambert, Quebec. The Engineering Services Branch is also located there. The Niagara Region headquarters, which operates the Canadian-owned Welland Canal, is in St. Catharines, Ontario.

■ Planning and Business Development Branch

The responsibilities of the group include:

Corporate/Strategic Planning:

to coordinate preparation of the Corporate Plan for the purposes of the Financial Administration Act; to coordinate preparation of the Strategic Plan; to apply a comprehensive and systematic approach to clarifying corporate objectives, making strategic decisions and checking progress towards objectives.

Manages the administration, the development, leasing or disposal of Authorityowned property. Facilitates and coordinates the Risk Management Program and Insurance Portfolio for the Authority and subsidiary companies' requirements.

■ Engineering Services Branch

Primary function of the Branch is to ensure the integrity and reliability of all lock and canal installations and to permit efficient and continuous operation of the Seaway using a highly trained, multi-disciplined staff to deal with civil, mechanical and electrical engineering design requirements, maintenance and repair; to prepare construction contract specifications for structures and facilities of the Maisonneuve and Niagara regions and all branches of the Authority; and to offer engineering services to The Jacques Cartier and Champlain Bridges Incorporated, the Thousand Islands Bridge Authority, federal and provincial government departments, standards associations and outside consultants.

■ Maisonneuve Region

The Maisonneuve Region administration, with headquarters in St. Lambert, Quebec, is comprised of three divisions under the responsibility of a vice-president.

Operations Division:

Administers the movements of vessels from Montreal to Lake Ontario through the operation of a vessel traffic control centre, also located in Saint-Lambert, and several structures such as locks and bridges. It ensures safe, efficient and expedient vessel transits in accordance with Seaway regulations, policies and programs, regional operating procedures and federal statutes.

Engineering and Maintenance Division:

Responsible for making the regional structures available so as to permit the most efficient and continuous movement of vessel traffic. It provides systems for regular preventive maintenance in the civil, electrical and mechanical trades.

Administrative Services Division:

Supplies the human resources necessary to support the rest of the organization.

■ Niagara Region

The Niagara Region administration, with headquarters in St. Catharines, comprises three divisions under the direction of a vice-president and is responsible for the operations and maintenance of the Welland Canal.

Operations Division:

Responsible for the efficient manning of the vessel traffic control centre and other operating structures to ensure a safe, efficient and expedient movement of vessel traffic through the Welland Canal and in adjacent waters of Lakes Erie and Ontario in accordance with Authority policy, programs, procedures, approved budgets and applicable federal statutes. The Division is also involved in liaison with the shipping trade and United States and Canadian government agencies involved in the operation of the Seaway.

Engineering and Maintenance Division:

Responsible for the continuous availability and reliable operation of all structures and Seaway facilities of the Niagara Region St. Lawrence Seaway Authority to ensure safe and expedient movement of vessel traffic in accordance with Authority policy, programs and service objectives. This is achieved by establishing both basic short– and long-term objectives for the Division encompassing the essential maintenance, rehabilitation and improvement projects to be carried out.

Administrative Services Division:

Provides administrative support to the other two divisions within the region in the areas of Human Resources Management, Accounting, Purchasing and Stores, Real Property Management and Vehicle and Building Maintenance Management.

■ Welland Canal Twinning Project Contractors' Association

This now defunct association was formed to ensure a stable labour environment in the trades working on the Welland Canal By-pass Project between 1964 and 1974. Although the office was abolished in 1974, the records created are still available.

Classes of Personal Information

Purchasing Section
In the course of conducting the programs and activities of the Purchasing Section, categories of personal information may be accumulated which are not contained in the specific personal information banks described in this entry. Such personal information includes surplus assets files containing information on the disposal of surplus materiel and equipment, including the declaring of surplus assets, the location of assets, the names and addresses of purchasers and pertinent sales documentation, stored as part of the general subject files where records are not normally retrieved by name of individual or other personal identifier. This class is maintained on a regional basis. This form of personal information is normally retrievable only if specifics are provided concerning the surplus declaration number and a description of the surplus assets. The retention period for surplus assets files is two years after disposal.

Corporate Services and Regional Operations Sections
In the course of conducting the programs and activities of the Corporate Services and Regional Operations Sections, categories of personal information may be accumulated which are not contained in the specific personal information banks described in this entry. Such personal information includes reports completed by ships' captains or pilots as required, and reports by Authority employees making reference to ships' captains or pilots. Such reports are included on ship history files containing accident, incident, violation, inspection and delay reports on specific ships, stored as part of the general files where records are not normally retrieved by name of individual or other personal identifier. The files are used for reference purposes and the personal information contained therein could be used to assess liability. This form of personal information is normally retrievable only if specifics are provided concerning the name of the ship and date of occurrence of the event. The retention period for these classes of personal information is controlled by the records schedules of the general subject files in which they are stored.

Standards Council of Canada
Chapter 100

General Information

Background

The Standards Council of Canada (SCC) was established in 1970 by an Act of Parliament to foster and promote voluntary standardization in Canada as a means of advancing the national economy, benefiting the health, safety and welfare of the public, assisting and protecting consumers, facilitating domestic and international trade, and furthering international co-operation in the field of standards.

Responsibilities

The Council carries out its task through the National Standards System (NSS), a federation of accredited independent organizations concerned with standards writing, certification, testing and quality systems registration coordinated by the SCC. The system was created to provide a medium through which Canadian organizations involved in such activities may operate and co-operate to recognize, establish and improve standardization in Canada. It provides a comprehensive Canadian standardization capability to meet both national and international requirements and responsibilities.

The Council ensures effective Canadian participation in the work of the International Organization for Standardization (ISO) and the International Electrotechnical Commission (IEC). Both of these international agencies have as their objective the development of standards, with a view to facilitating international exchange of goods and services. ISO work is concerned with standardization in many disciplines, except for the electrotechnology field which is IEC's responsibility.

Legislation

- Standards Council of Canada Act

Organization

■ Standardization Branch

The Branch coordinates voluntary standardization activities among standards writing, certification and testing organizations, and maintains liaison with federal and provincial government authorities, industry and consumers. It assesses and recommends for accreditation organizations engaged in standards writing, certification, testing or registration and also reviews standards for acceptance as National Standards of Canada. The Branch is responsible for ensuring effective Canadian participation in the work of international standardization organizations and for programs of training and technical assistance to developing countries in the field of standardization.

■ Information and Sales Branch

The Information and Sales Branch is responsible for planning, developing and implementing activities and programs to ensure that the private and public sectors have ready access to national and international networks of information services on standards and standards-related activities. Information provided by the Branch may concern Canadian and/or foreign standards, specifications, technical regulations, codes, certification systems, standardization activities and other standards-related information. The Branch acts as the Canadian Enquiry Point, required by the Agreement on Technical Barriers to Trade under the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade (GATT), as well as the Canada-United States Free Trade Agreement (FTA) and functions as the Canadian member of the International Organization for Standardization Information Network (ISONET). The Branch coordinates Canadian participation on the ISO Committee on Information (INFCO) and functions as the central information and referral agency for the Standards Information System of Canada (CANSIS). The Branch also operates as the national centre for information on standardization activities of the Single European Market initiative.

The Branch is also responsible for the sale of standards published by the International Organization for Standardization (ISO), the International Electrotechnical Commission (IEC), and national standards published by approximately 91 member bodies of the ISO as well as a wide variety of standards and standards-related publications.

■ Communications Branch

The Communications Branch is responsible for Council's corporate communications program. Through its two divisions, Publications and Media Services, the Branch informs the general public and specialized audiences on Council's services and activities at the national and international levels.

Publications Division:

Publishes the annual report and CONSENSUS, a quarterly journal. The division also produces general information brochures about the Council and its services, as well as specialized trade-related newsletters of particular interest to exporters, importers, manufacturers and government officials.

Media Services Division:

Places advertising and public service announcements with various media, including print, television and radio to publicize the activities and services of Council. The division is also responsible for writing speeches, the production of audio-visual materials and for trade show exhibits.

■ Executive and Administration Branch

The Branch ensures the coordination of Council programs within budgetary limitations and verifies that all activities are in keeping with its objectives and procedures as set out in the Standards Council of Canada Act and by-laws. It provides administrative services for all Council staff. It also performs the planning, accounting and reporting functions for all of the Council. It is accountable for revenues and appropriations and is responsible for discharging Council's liabilities.

Statistics Canada
Chapter 101

General Information

Background

Statistics Canada collects and provides statistical information on the characteristics and behaviour of Canadian households, businesses, institutions and governments for research, policy development, program administration, decision-making and general informational purposes. This is done under the authority of the Statistics Act which prohibits the disclosure of identifiable information to anyone but the individual person, business or organization concerned.

The statistical information banks maintained by Statistics Canada contain some personal information that has been obtained from a variety of sources. Information is collected directly from the individual through the censuses of population and agriculture, from sample surveys such as surveys on income and expenditure, labour force surveys and special surveys. It is also collected through certain formal agreements the agency has entered into with large social institutions and various levels of Canadian governments. These arrangements give Statistics Canada access to administrative records for the purpose of extracting data on the client populations of the institutions of Health, Education and Justice and on the activities of the population as it comes in contact with the state (e.g., the registration of births, deaths and marriages).

One of the most important of these agreements is one Statistics Canada has with Revenue Canada (Taxation) to access taxation returns for statistical purposes, thus allowing the use of an administrative file of the federal government containing a wealth of information on the socio-economic fabric of the Canadian population. The accessing of taxation records has allowed Statistics Canada to exempt many respondents, particularly small businesses, from the filing of regular questionnaires.

Information banks maintained by Statistics Canada are largely automated. Since records in these banks are meant to be used for statistical purposes and not for administrative purposes, they are rarely classified by name. In fact, few data banks contain names. Some banks are organized by a unique identifier, be it a number assigned by Statistics Canada, a number assigned by the administrative source, such as a registration number, or the social insurance number. Records in other banks are classified geographically, or by the name of the company. It should be noted that many of the statistical data banks contain only a sample of the population. To locate a statistical record, Statistics Canada will require, in most cases, not only an identifier, but additional information such as the time period in which an individual has responded to a survey, or his/her street address, or his/her industry sector.

Responsibilities

The mandate and program objectives of Statistics Canada are: to collect and publish in impersonal formats statistical information on the characteristics and behaviour of Canadian households, businesses, institutions and governments for research, policy development, program administration, decision-making and general informational purposes; to collaborate with other participants in the broader national statistical system in extending the system's scope, usefulness and use; and to provide leadership, professional expertise and coordination in such efforts.

Legislation

- Corporations and Labour Unions Returns Act (CALURA), 1962, c. 26
- Statistics Act, R.S.C. 1985, c. S19

Organization

■ Office of the Chief Statistician of Canada

The Chief Statistician is a deputy of the Minister Responsible for Statistics Canada. The Chief Statistician advises on matters pertaining to statistical programs of the departments and agencies of the Government of Canada, and confers with such departments and agencies to that end. The Chief Statistician supervises generally the administration of the Statistics Act and controls the operations and staff of Statistics Canada.

■ Departmental Secretariat

The Departmental Secretariat serves as the principal focal point for liaison with the Minister Responsible for Statistics Canada, other ministers, and members of Parliament generally. In support of the Minister, the Departmental Secretariat processes correspondence, deals with parliamentary returns, responds to oral and written questions and prepares briefing material on issues relating to Statistics Canada's programs and policies.

Its other functions include providing staff support to the Chief Statistician and the Policy Committee, as well as liaising with various management committees. The Departmental Secretariat is also responsible for review and control of official government documentation.

Social, Institutions and Labour Statistics Field

The Social, Institutions and Labour Statistics Field conducts a wide range of statistical programs dealing with virtually all aspects of the social, institutional and labour market characteristics and activities of Canadians.

The Field is headed by an Assistant Chief Statistician with responsibility for the Canadian Centre for Justice Statistics, Census and Demographic Statistics, Institutions and Social Statistics, Labour and Household Surveys Branches.

■ Census and Demographic Statistics Branch

This Branch conducts a program of censuses, surveys and related activities designed to provide comprehensive social and demographic statistics on the Canadian population. It includes the Census Operations Division, the Housing, Family and Social Statistics Division, the Demography Division, the Demolinguistics Division and the 1991 Census Analysis.

Census Operations Division:

Responsible for the planning, development and implementation of all production-related operations of the periodic decennial and quinquennial censuses of population, Canada's national inventory of key socio-economic phenomena.

Housing, Family and Social Statistics Division:

Responsible for the housing, family and social variables produced by the census, the General Social Survey, and conducting research and analysis of census data and other survey and administrative data. It publishes reports on the socio-economic characteristics of the population and subsets of the population.

Demography Division:

Responsible for the following four areas: (i) population estimates; (ii) population, household and family projections; (iii) census and survey related activities; and (iv) developmental and analytical research.

Demolinguistics Division:

Carries out the verification, processing, dissemination and analysis of demolinguistic data from the census as well as the exploitation of survey data pertaining to the situation of language and language groups. It analyses the quality of demolinguistic data and carries out the planning and development of questions pertaining to language in the census and in certain surveys.

1991 Census Analysis:

Objectives are to conduct studies which focus on major topics that are germane to the development of Canadian society over the next decade and beyond, to demonstrate the power and value of Census data when analytically coupled with other sources, to produce a series of studies, monographs and texts that stand the test of time, which may be integrated into a variety of academic programs and that will serve as a background in the formulation and development of public policy, and to stimulate further research using Census and other data sources. The monographs are under preparation and will be available in 1995/96.

■ Labour and Household Surveys Branch

This Branch conducts statistical programs of household surveys such as the Labour Force Survey, the surveys of income and expenditure, and establishment-based surveys of employment. It includes the following divisions: Household Surveys, Labour and Household Surveys Analysis, and Labour.

Household Surveys Division:

Responsible for a number of household surveys, including the monthly Labour Force Survey, the Survey of Consumer Finances, and the Survey of Family Expenditure and for the special surveys program, which provides a capacity to develop and carry out occasional or ad hoc household surveys.

Labour and Household Surveys Analysis Division:

Provides resources for the content, analysis and evaluation of income and labour market related data, including data on labour force status, occupation, labour compensation, pensions, industry, individual and family income and expenditure, for both Census and Sample Surveys.

Labour Division:

Responsible for producing a wide range of labour data from surveys and administrative records. In addition, information is produced on pension plans, the operation of the Unemployment Insurance Act, Help-Wanted Index, Work Injuries and Labour Income.

■ Institutions and Social Statistics Branch

This Branch is responsible for the collection, production analysis and dissemination of socio-economic statistics related to justice, health, education, culture and tourism, and public institutions, which are required for decision-making and research in both the public and private sectors. It consists of the Canadian Centre for Health Information, the Education, Culture and Tourism Division and the Post-Censal Surveys Program.

Canadian Centre for Health Information:

Responsible for the production of statistics on the health of the Canadian people, the occurrence of illnesses, the distribution and cost of health care and treatment in Canadian hospitals and special care facilities and services provided outside institutions. It also produces information on vital statistics (births, deaths, marriages and divorces).

Education, Culture and Tourism Division:

Responsible for the Education Statistics, Culture Statistics, and Travel and Tourism Programs.

Post-Censal Surveys Program:

Undertakes surveys immediately following a Census, using information from the Census questionnaire to identify who should be sampled in the new survey. For each individual selected for a post-censal survey, selected Census information is added to the new survey information base.

■ Canadian Centre for Justice Statistics

This is a federal-provincial initiative dedicated to national statistics and information on the justice system in Canada. Established in 1981, the Centre is responsible for producing information on the extent and nature of crime and the administration of criminal and civil justice in Canada.

National Accounts and Analytical Studies Field

This Field is responsible for providing a set of macroeconomic series within the five complex frameworks of the Canadian System of National Accounts. It provides a broad band of research and analysis intended to animate society's perception of social and economic behaviour, and undertakes research and development of statistical techniques. The Field is headed by an Assistant Chief Statistician with responsibility for the system of national accounts and analytical studies.

■ System of National Accounts Branch

The System of National Accounts provides a conceptually integrated framework of statistics and analysis for studying the state and behaviour of the Canadian economy. The accounts are centred on the measurement of activities associated with production of goods and services, and the sales of goods and services in final markets. The Branch includes the following divisions: National Accounts and Environment, Industry Measures and Analysis, Balance of Payments, Input-Output and Public Institutions.

National Accounts and Environment Division:

Responsible for: the conceptual and statistical integration of statistics within the System of National Accounts; research on the restructuring and extension of the Canadian System of National Accounts in conjunction with the re-examination of the accounts which is taking place at the international level; providing quarterly and annual estimates of the national and provincial output of goods and services by expenditure category and also by type of income generated in the production process; providing a picture of the key economic processes of production, income generation, sales of major markets, consumption, and capital formation; providing quarterly estimates of financial flows among fourteen broad sectors of the economy, by type of asset and liability; providing annual estimates of Canada's national balance sheet, broken down by sector and by type of asset and liability; and the development of a core set of statistics relevant for environment analyses and assessment of the national state of the environment in Canada.

Industry Measures and Analysis Division:

Produces monthly, quarterly and annual measures of the Gross Domestic Product by industry for Canada, the provinces and territories.

Balance of Payments Division:

Produces statistics on transactions and positions between Canada and other countries.

Input-Output Division:

Develops annual input-output tables and annual multifactor productivity accounts for the business sector industries in Canada, interprovincial input-output tables with trade flows on an occasional basis and structural economic models of the Canadian and Provincial economies.

Public Institutions Division:

Produces statistics on the financial activities and employment of the Canadian public sector, more specifically: government revenues, expenditures, assets, liabilities and debt statistics on a federal, provincial, local and consolidated level. Data are also produced on incomes, expenditures, assets and liabilities of government business enterprises; sales values and volumes and government revenues from the sale of alcoholic beverages in Canada; and on Canada's social security program.

■ Analytical Studies Branch

This Branch is responsible for the integration, analysis and interpretation of data collected both within the agency and elsewhere, to describe, draw inferences and make deductions about the nature of Canadian society. As well, it is responsible for the development of new and improved techniques for the statistical analysis and interpretation of socio-economic data sets. It includes the following Divisions: Family and Community Support Systems, Social and Economic Studies, Business and Labour Market Analysis and Current Economic Analysis.

Family and Community Support Systems Division:

Provides social-scientific analysis of data relating to trends and patterns of important variables pertaining to support programs and informal support networks for key population groups in Canadian communities as well as assistance to users of such data.

Social and Economic Studies Division:

Its role is to conduct analysis as well as to stimulate, support and integrate analytic work throughout Statistics Canada. It is also responsible for facilitating the utilization of social and economic data files.

Business and Labour Market Analysis Program:

Its goal is to conduct analysis and data development in two major areas: business/industry and labour market. This is done by using a combination of survey data and administrative data, often involving the linkage of data sources in order to obtain enriched data sets for analytical purposes.

Current Economic Analysis Division:

Provides Statistics Canada's assessment of current economic conditions. This is done through articles in the "Canadian Economic Observer" and the production of the composite leading indicator. The group also supports research and analysis in other areas of the organization.

Business and Trade Statistics Field

This field produces a wide range of monthly, quarterly and annual statistics on manufacturing, primary industries, transportation, communications, computing, construction, agriculture, merchandising services, external trade, prices, business finance, science and technology, small business, public finance, Corporations and Labour Unions Returns Act (CALURA), regional industrial structure and related areas. It is headed by an Assistant Chief Statistician with responsibility for the Industry, Trade and Prices Statistics and the Resources, Technology and Services Statistics branches.

Large Enterprise Statistics:

The objective of this project is to improve the quality of our industrial and financial statistics through a better and more integrated method of reporting by large businesses. This objective will initially be confined to surveys of annual production, capital formation and financial statistics and their quarterly derivatives.

■ Industry, Trade and Prices Statistics Branch

This Branch is responsible for planning, directing, coordinating and controlling the activities of subject-matter divisions to ensure the provision of statistical information and advice to governments, private organizations and institutions. It includes the following divisions: Industry, Transportation, International Trade and Prices.

Industry Division:

Conducts annual Surveys of Manufacturers and Forestry, annual surveys of the mineral fuels, pipeline and utility industries, as well as current surveys of these areas to produce a range of cost structure information, material input and commodity output and employment data. It also collects annual and current data on the retail and wholesale trade sectors.

Transportation Division:

Collects, publishes and makes available statistics on air, rail, road and water transportation industries and on related traffic and infrastructures.

International Trade Division:

Responsible for the compilation, analysis and dissemination of Canada's merchandise export and import statistics and related price and volume indices.

Prices Division:

Provides information on retail (consumer) prices, living costs, and industrial products, raw materials and construction price indexes, as well as a number of indexes relating to capital expenditures.

■ Resources, Technology and Services Statistics Branch

This Branch is responsible for planning, directing, coordinating and controlling the activities of the subject matter divisions to ensure the provision of statistical information and advice to governments, private organizations and institutions. This Branch includes the following divisions: Services, Science and Technology, Industrial Organization and Finance, Agriculture, Investment and Capital Stock, and Small Business and Special Surveys.

Services, Science and Technology Division:

Responsible for the development of an integrated and comprehensive program of statistics on services, science and technology, and communications.

Industrial Organization and Finance Division:

Produces incorporated financial enterprise statistics, taxation statistics and financial statistics of labour unions. It also administers the Corporation and Labour Unions Returns Act (CALURA).

Agriculture Division:

Produces information on the supply of agricultural commodities (production and inventory levels), the resources employed to produce these commodities (land and capital) and the returns to farmers arising out of production.

Investment and Capital Stock Division:

Provides a focus for the collection, analysis and publication of statistics relating to investment activities.

Small Business and Special Surveys Division:

Its mandate is to respond to the data needs of a wide variety of clients, in both the private and public sectors. Data needs are met either through the ongoing Small Business Statistics Program or through Special Projects carried out by the division. The objectives of the division are to produce, on demand, special tabulations, and to formulate and implement new techniques of data management including the integration of data from different sources.

Informatics and Methodology Field

This field ensures that the statistical methodology used by all surveys is sound and statistically efficient, and provides leadership for and management of information processing in Statistics Canada. It is headed by an Assistant Chief Statistician with responsibility for Informatics, Classification Systems and Methodology.

International and Professional Relations Division:

Coordinates Statistics Canada's contacts with the statistical offices of other countries and international organizations, such as the United Nations, its specialized agencies and regional economic commissions; the Organisation for Economic Co-operation and Development; the European Communities; the International Statistical Institute; and so on. It provides policy advice on international matters to senior departmental management; co-ordinates the work required for fulfilling international obligations, such as representation at intergovernmental meetings and data reporting; manages the department's International Technical Assistance Program; and maintains contact on behalf of the department with the Department of External Affairs and the Canadian International Development Agency. The division's responsibilities also include co-ordination of the department's relations with professional societies; the co-ordination of the department's advisory committees; the management of the department's Research Fellowship and Internship Program; and the administration of the department's approval system for foreign and non-operational domestic travel.

■ Informatics Branch

This Branch provides electronic data processing (EDP) services to Statistics Canada. The headquarters staff, in conjunction with other members of the Branch, is responsible for the formulation of policies relating to EDP and managing overall branch activities. It also coordinates relations with the users of various systems and data processing services. The Branch provides the chairman and secretariat services for the executive sub-committee on EDP. It includes the System Development Division, the Informatics User Services Division and the Main Computer Centre.

System Development Division:

Responsible for designing, developing and maintaining software for the support of surveys, censuses and other computer-based operations conducted by the agency.

Informatics User Services Division:

Provides end-users of informatics a comprehensive range of informatics and communications services. Services include the maintenance and support of informatics equipment, and communications hardware, and related software, training and consultation and liaison with clients. In addition, the division is involved in planning and development of EDP policy and standards, information modelling and is responsible for EDP security.

Main Computer Centre:

Responsible for the provision of large-scale computer and mid-range computer services to Statistics Canada, including data storage facilities for the agency's EDP data.

■ Classification Systems Branch

This Branch develops and promulgates classification systems; standardizes economic, social and geographic concepts; develops, enhances and maintains the business register as a major integration instrument of survey-taking; and is responsible for the exploitation of taxation and other administrative data. It includes the Geography Division, the Business Register Division and the Standards Division.

Geography Division:

Maintains Statistics Canada's geographic classification infrastructure, develops geographic concepts and products and services for clients, particularly the Census, and is the centre of expertise in the application of computerized geographic and cartographic techniques.

Business Register Division:

Responsible for the development and maintenance of a central register of firms and their constituent establishments for purposes of statistical collections. It is also responsible for accessing and transcribing statistical data from Revenue Canada Taxation records to supplement or replace data collected by survey, and for maintaining a tax database.

Standards Division:

Develops standard classifications, monitors their implementation, and establishes official concordances between international and Canadian classifications. It standardizes economic and social concepts, and provides a system of comprehensive documentation for all surveys conducted in Statistics Canada.

■ Methodology Branch

This Branch plans, organizes and directs the work of the divisions and staff engaged in the development, implementation, analysis and evaluation of the statistical methodology underlying all of the programs of the agency. The Branch includes the following divisions: Social Survey Methods, Business Survey Methods and Small Area and Administrative Data.

Social Survey Methods Division:

Responsible for providing methodological services to social, institutions and labour statistics programs including the Census, the Labour Force Survey, other cross-sectional and longitudinal surveys, and special surveys carried out on a cost recovery basis. The division includes the Questionnaire Design Resource Centre and is responsible for the journal "Survey Methodology". It is also responsible for research and development on problems related to survey design, evaluation and data analysis.

Business Survey Methods Division:

The Business Survey Methods Division is responsible for providing methodological services to business, trade and agriculture statistics programs as well as for services on seasonal adjustment of time series, data analysis, re-engineering and quality assurance to all statistics programs. It is also responsible for the development and maintenance of methodology standards, for the development and support of generalized methods for survey functions and for research and development on problems related to survey design and evaluation, time series and survey data analysis. The division includes the Time Series Research and Analysis Centre, the Re-engineering Support Centre and the Data Analysis Resource Centre.

Small Area and Administrative Data Division:

Studies and develops methods and approaches to explore the statistical potential of administrative data files from other federal or provincial institutions for small area social statistics. It is also responsible for the development and dissemination of social, economic and demographic statistics and indicators for sub-provincial geographic areas.

Communications and Operations Field

This Field provides a full range of external communication functions, including respondent, user, and media relations. It also administers the central and regional operational functions essential to the conduct of the agency's statistical programs, including regional data collection and processing activities, marketing, publishing and electronic data dissemination. This Field is headed by an Assistant Chief Statistician with responsibility for the Marketing and Information Services, Surveys and Regional Operations Branches.

■ Marketing and Information Services Branch

This Branch is responsible for the activities which design and organize the information products of the agency to service the needs of its various clients at the federal, provincial and municipal government levels, and in the public and private sectors. It includes the following Divisions: Communications, Marketing and Dissemination.

Communications Division:

Promotes effective communications between Statistics Canada and its publics. The Division coordinates the release of the Agency's information to the public, notably through the "Daily/Le Quotidien" (the Agency's official release publication) and provides communications planning, environmental monitoring, media relations, client relations and respondent relations support to Agency programs. In addition, the Division provides assistance with public consultations and coordinates federal-provincial consultative system. Publishing of information products, such as the "Canada Year Book", "Canada: A Portrait", and "Infomat", is another major responsibility. Through the employee newsletter, "SCAN", and a special events program, the Division contributes to internal communications in the Agency. Finally, Communications Division maintains and improves the overall quality of communications at Statistics Canada by providing editorial services and communications training.

Dissemination Division:

Responsible for the production of the Department's catalogued publications and the development and operation of techniques and mechanisms to foster the public access to Statistics Canada's information through electronic means.

Marketing Division:

Provides overall leadership and coordination for the marketing activities of Statistics Canada. These activities include the development of strategic marketing plans, market research to identify client needs, coordination of promotional and sales campaigns, pricing and licensing of the agency's products and the management of a marketing information system.

■ Surveys Branch

This Branch is responsible for analysing, evaluating and reviewing all statistical operations; and for managing the integrated headquarters operations. It also develops and implements approaches and strategies for integrating operations and services throughout the agency, including the regionalization of operational activities, and manages and coordinates related production support services. It includes Administrative Support Services Division, the Operations and Integration Division and the Operations Research and Development Division.

Administrative Support Services Division:

Involved in the following areas: records management, distribution of data collection material, publications and general correspondence, materiel management and facilities management, and contract administration.

Operations and Integration Division:

Responsible for the planning and management of the operations for more than 180 surveys conducted centrally and for the data capture of many more documents, as well as the planning of the integration and regionalization of all surveys of Statistics Canada as approved by the management of Statistics Canada.

Operations Research and Development Division:

Its primary mission is to initiate and manage a program of research and development designed to improve efficiency, effectiveness, and job satisfaction with potential application to the Operations and Integration Division and other operational entities in Statistics Canada.

■ Regional Operations Branch

This organization is responsible through a headquarters staff and a network of regional offices for survey data collection, primary processing and editing, for the provision of statistical information and advice at the regional level, and for related user respondents and community relations. Regional offices are located in St. John's, Halifax, Montreal, Toronto, Sturgeon Falls, Winnipeg, Regina, Edmonton, Vancouver and Calgary. The Branch includes the Survey Operations Division and the Advisory Services Division.

Survey Operations Division:

Responsible for researching, costing, developing, delivering and evaluating data collection and data capture procedures and training in cooperation with client divisions and several external departments. The Division provides services in the areas of project management, operations research and analysis, organization and methods of data collection, financial control, logistical support, data capture and operations audit and evaluation.

Advisory Services Division:

Provides an information dissemination network across the country through ten regional Reference Centres. A team of information consultants carry out a range of marketing and sales functions, dealing directly with Statistics Canada's clients in order to customize the information to meet their needs.

Management Services Field

This Field organizes and coordinates internal management services, including the development and implementation of all management policies and systems within the Agency and the assessment of the efficiency and effectiveness of these programs. It is headed by an Assistant Chief Statistician with responsibility for Management Practices, Operational Planning and Finance, and Personnel.

Corporate Assignments Division:

Responsible for a human resource development and deployment program, the principle operational mechanism of which is the temporary assignment of indeterminate employees from their "home jobs" to temporary assignments which range in length from three months to two years. Assignments arranged by this program can be within or without Statistics Canada. Principle objectives of the program are: (a) attraction and retention of high quality employees; (b) development of individual employee capacities to the maximum; (c) deployment of overall human resources in an efficient manner; (d) improvement of human relations; (e) improvement of organizational relations between sub-units of the department and between this department and other departments, agencies, etc.

Data Access and Control Services Division:

Serves as a departmental focal point for matters relating to the confidentiality of the information collected by Statistics Canada, departmental security, information management, statistical agreements, record linkages for statistical purposes and the implementation of Treasury Board's Management of Government Information Holdings Policy and Statistics Canada's Policy on Informing Survey Respondents. It also administers services pursuant to the Access to Information Act and the Privacy Act.

■ Management Practices Branch

This Branch is responsible for developing good management systems to support the agency's managers in achieving departmental objectives and for ensuring that management practices identified by the Office of the Comptroller General are carried out. It includes the following divisions: Audit and Evaluation and Corporate Planning and Programming.

Audit and Evaluation Division:

Provides a systematic and independent review of all operations for purposes of advising Statistics Canada's management on the efficiency, effectiveness and economy of management, and is responsible for evaluating Statistics Canada's programs to assess the continued relevance of their objectives, and for investigating alternatives that might achieve the objectives in a more cost-effective manner.

Corporate Planning and Programming Division:

Responsible for the effective management of the corporate planning, multi-year operational planning and budget development processes; for the development, implementation and evaluation of cost accounting systems and costing methodologies; for the conduct of expenditure and revenue forecasting activities; and for the development and implementation of a variety of management processes aimed at improving overall program effectiveness and efficiency.

■ Operational Planning and Finance Branch

This Branch is responsible for determining the financial resources required by Statistics Canada and supervising the Agency's expenses. The Branch is also responsible for operations related to program and financial planning, financial services, and management information systems. It includes the Financial Policies and Systems Division and the Financial Operations Division.

Financial Policies and Systems Division:

Responsible for the development, design, implementation and review of departmental financial policies, systems and procedures in Statistics Canada.

Financial Operations Division:

Responsible for the accounts office, which retains records on all expenditure and revenue transactions, recoverable projects accounting, and general accounting services.

■ Personnel Branch

This Branch is responsible for assisting management in obtaining, deploying, developing and retaining the staff necessary to execute Statistics Canada's responsibilities. It is also responsible for ensuring fair and equitable treatment of individual employees. It includes the following Divisions: Personnel Operations, Personnel Policies, Official Languages, and the Employee Assistance Program.

Personnel Operations Division:

Responsible for operations in the areas of classification, recruitment, promotions, redeployment, language identification of positions, staff relations and pay and benefits administration, and for the development, implementation and ongoing operations of personnel policies and programs related to staffing.

Personnel Policies Division:

Responsible for the development, implementation, analysis and ongoing operations of personnel policies and programs related to employment equity, human resources planning, career management training, human resource development, work design, classification and the personnel information system.

Official Languages Division:

Responsible for developing departmental guidelines on official languages, providing information and advice to managers on the requirements of the Official Languages Act and on the implementation of related policies and programs in their respective areas, providing information to employees in general of their rights and obligations regarding official languages, planning language training of employees, and administering language tests.

Employee Assistance Program:

Responsible for providing confidential health assistance and advice to employees, and disseminating information on the various social agencies available to provide service to employees.

Description: Census records are maintained in three formats: hardcopy format which is kept for five years following each census, microfilm copies of the original questionnaire and machine-readable data stored in the census micro database. The latter are used in tabulations. Names and addresses of individuals are not contained in these files. Information extracted from the database, therefore, cannot directly be related to an individual. Individual data from microfilm copies of original questionnaires are available only to the respondent under the Privacy Act. Topics: Different types of variables can be obtained for various universes on the database. Population and Families -Demographic Characteristics: age, sex, marital status; Ethno-cultural Characteristics: age at immigration, citizenship, ethnic origin (data on population can also be obtained at the family level); Language Variables: home language, mother tongue, official language; Schooling Variables: highest level of schooling, major field of study; Labour Force: class of worker, industry, occupation; Family Size: family composition; Income: census family income, economic family income, income from each source and total income. Households – household maintainer, type of household, household size, length of occupancy, mortgage or rent, household income. Dwellings – condition of dwelling, fuel, heating equipment, structural type. These variables are available at various levels of geography across Canada. The information collected in the census varies somewhat from one census year to the next. Note: Individual information contained in the microfilmed records is available as far back as the 1906 Census (1891 and 1901 Census are in the custody of National Archives of Canada). It can be accessed only by the person named in the record or by a legal representative authorized to administer the estate of a dependant adult or minor or a deceased person. To access such information, the person concerned must complete an "Application and Authorization for a Search of Census" obtainable from the Census Pension Searches Unit, Statistics Canada, Ottawa, K1A 0T6. Aggregate data from the census micro-database are available to the public. Requests for such information should be directed to the Statistical Reference Centre, Statistics Canada, Ottawa, K1A 0T6. Program Record Number: STC COP 015

1940 National Registration Records
Description: The records provide social and economic information on individuals as well as information on their skills. Class of Individuals: All persons 16 years of age or older in the period 1940-1946 with the exception of those people who were, at the time of registration, members of the armed forces or a religious order, or confined to an institution. Purpose: The information was originally obtained under the authority of the National Resources Mobilization Act, 1940, and the War Measures Act to permit the mobilization of all of the effective resources of the nation, both human and material, for the purpose of the defence and security of Canada. The National Registration Regulations pursuant to this legislation gave custody of the records to Statistics Canada, then known as the Dominion Bureau of Statistics. Consistent Uses: A program has been established called the Census Pension Searches to provide proof of age, place of residence, family relationships or length of residence in Canada from historic census records and 1940 National Registration Records. The service is normally provided in support of application for pensions, citizenship, passports and similar situations where other more preferred administration records are required but no longer exist or, as in a number of cases, were never issued. Searches are also conducted to provide third parties with information on individuals who were included in the 1940 National Registration. This information is typically requested for genealogical purposes and is made available only if proof is provided that the person about whom information is requested has been deceased for more than twenty years. A standard fee of $45.00 (+ $3.15 GST) is charged for each search undertaken but the fee will be refunded if the search is not successful. Requests should be sent to: Census Pension Searches Unit, Statistics Canada, Ottawa, Ontario, K1A 0T6. Retention and Disposal Standards: The records are retained indefinitely. Related to PR#: STC COP 020 TBS Registration: 001840 Bank Number: STC PPU 010

Census of Population – Evaluation Program
Description: This bank contains information from post-censal studies to measure coverage and data quality, and to evaluate the Census enumeration of unoccupied dwellings and non-response in the housing universe. Class of Individuals: Individuals selected to participate in evaluation studies. Purpose: The studies are part of the evaluation program for the Census of Population. The objective of the overcoverage study is to measure gross overcoverage by estimating duplicate and erroneous census enumerations. The purpose of the Reverse Record Check is to estimate gross undercoverage, i.e., the number and characteristics of persons and households missed by the Census. The purpose of the Vacancy Check is to estimate the number of occupied private dwellings which were misclassified as vacant and to adjust the Census occupied dwelling counts accordingly. Retention and Disposal Standards: Records are retained for 10-16 years, depending on the type of record. Related to PR#: STC COP 015 TBS Registration: 003015 Bank Number: STC PPU 008

Census of Population – Questionnaires
Description: This bank contains information obtained from the censuses of population taken since 1906. The records are identified by name and contain information on the social and economic characteristics of every person in the country. The records in this bank, which are organized on a geographical basis, are microfilmed copies of the original questionnaire dating back to 1906. To retrieve a record from this data bank, the precise address at the time of the census is required. Please note that only the individual named in the record can have access to information it contains, or the legal representative of a minor, incompetent or deceased person, but only to settle the affairs of the estate of that person. Class of Individuals: All individuals in Canada at the time of the census. Purpose: The Census of Population is a national inventory of Canada's key socio-economic phenomena, conducted at prescribed intervals by statutory requirement. The data collected, when compiled into statistics, are used for a wide range of purposes including the determination of economic and social policies, planning industrial development, and estimating needs for schools, roads and many other public services. Population figures are used to determine electoral district boundaries, and to calculate per capita grants to provinces and municipalities. Consistent Uses: A program has been established called the Census Pension Searches to provide proof of age, or length of residence in Canada from historic census records and 1940 National Registration Records. The service is normally provided in support of application for pensions, citizenship, passports and similar situations where other more preferred administration records are required but no longer exist or, as in a number of cases, were never issued. Census questionnaires may be used to draw samples for post-censal surveys addressing issues of current social concern and studies that are part of the evaluation program for the Census of Population. Retention and Disposal Standards: Records are retained indefinitely. Related to PR#: STC COP 015 TBS Registration: 001839 Bank Number: STC PPU 005

Census of Population – Testing Program
Description: This bank contains information collected from surveys used to test Census of Population questions. The records in this bank are organized geographically, by test module and year. To retrieve a record from this bank, the precise address at the time of the test, the name of the test module and the year surveyed are required. Class of Individuals: Individuals selected to participate in Census-testing surveys. Purpose: The surveys are part of the testing program for the Census of Population. The objectives of the test surveys are to determine whether new or revised questions proposed for the Census can be easily understood and correctly answered, and to assess public reaction to these questions by testing them on a small-scale basis. Retention and Disposal Standards: The records are retained for 10 years. Related to PR#: STC COP 015 TBS Registration: 002096 Bank Number: STC PPU 007

Census Pension Searches Program
Description: This bank contains information relating to applicants to the Census Pension Searches Program and to members of the applicant's family. Search reference information such as name, date of birth, place of birth, place of residence is provided by the applicant in order to undertake a search of historical census and 1940 National Registration records. Results of a successful search will be furnished in the form of a certified transcript of the information found in the original records. Class of Individuals: General public. Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to provide the necessary personal information to undertake a search of historical census and 1940 National Registration records in order to provide proof of age, or length of residence in Canada. The service is normally provided in support of application for pensions, citizenship, passports and similar situations where other more preferred administrative records are required but no longer exist or, as in a number of cases, were never issued. Retention and Disposal Standards: Records are retained for 10 years. Related to PR#: STC COP 015 TBS Registration: 003117 Bank Number: STC PPU 012

General Social Survey

Description: The General Social Survey is an annual household survey. The first survey cycle collected data in 1985 on health and social support. Cycle 2 collected data in 1986 on daily activities, social mobility and languages. Cycle 3 collected data in 1988 on personal risk and victim services. Cycle 4 collected data in 1989 on work and education. Cycle 5 collected data in 1990 on the topic of family and friends. Cycle 6 collected data throughout 1991 and was the first cycle to return to previous core content – health. Cycle 7 collected data throughout 1992 on the time-use patterns of Canadians, repeating that of Cycle 2. To locate a record, in addition to the cycle (or year) of the survey in which a respondent has participated, for cycles 1-4, the name of the respondent and the telephone number at the time of the survey are required. For subsequent cycles, the name and address of the respondent is required, as well as the cycle (or year) of the survey. Class of Individuals: Individuals selected to participate in the surveys. Purpose: The General Social Survey has two principal objectives: first, to monitor temporal changes in Canadian society and, second, to provide information on current policy issues. Consistent Uses: Respondents from one cycle may be identified for a re-interview in a subsequent cycle and data from the cycles will be merged by linkage to create a composite file. Retention and Disposal Standards: Records are retained indefinitely. Related to PR#: STC HFS 027 TBS Registration: 003311 Bank Number: STC PPU 027

■ Household Surveys Division

Labour Force Survey

Description: The Labour Force Survey is a monthly survey conducted on a sample basis of approximately 59,000 households. The records are identified by name and carry information on the family composition, activities and characteristics of individuals in the labour force survey sample. Data content includes the demographic profile of the respondent, employment profile, such as name of employer, hours of work, and tenure. For those without work, information is available on work history, job search activities, and type of work sought. Data are also available on the educational pursuits of the respondent. The data are maintained in such a way as to permit the production of statistics at the level of selected Census Metropolitan Areas (CMA), economic regions and the provinces, and for selected non-CMA urban areas based on quarterly estimates. It is for this reason that information relating to an individual cannot be retrieved based on name alone. The requester must provide the month(s) and year surveyed and the precise address at the time of the survey. There are also a number of special surveys that are conducted as supplements to the Labour Force Survey covering a variety of topics including work patterns, leisure time activities, absence from work, travel to work, income, etc. To retrieve a record, the requester must provide the subject of the special survey, the year the survey was conducted, and the precise address at the time of the survey. Class of Individuals: Individuals who are employed, unemployed or not in the labour force. Purpose: The main purpose of the bank is to produce employment and unemployment figures. The data also enable a wide variety of additional information to be derived on the characteristics of the Canadian labour force and on the population over age 15 in general. Retention and Disposal Standards: The records are retained for 50 years. Related to PR#: STC HLD 035 TBS Registration: 001841 Bank Number: STC PPU 015

Self-Sufficiency Project

Description: This bank contains information on the selected recipients' marital status, labour market participation, education and training, child care requirements, and family and parenting concerns. Four interviews are planned, one at program intake, and three follow-up interviews at 18 months, 36 months and 54 months after program intake. Class of Individuals: Social Assistance Recipients in New Brunswick and British Columbia. Purpose: The Self-Sufficiency Project is a research demonstration designed to test the effectiveness of an earnings supplement to Social Assistance recipients who take jobs and agree to leave public assistance. Statistics Canada is responsible to develop and implement a data collection strategy and build the analysis files for the study. Consistent Uses: Respondents will be asked to sign a consent form to allow Statistics Canada to link a variety of data sources including administrative files held by Revenue Canada, Taxation and Unemployment Insurance and the provincial income assistance ministries. Respondents will be asked for authorization to share this information with the research firm administering the project and affiliated researchers. Retention and Disposal Standards: Records are retained indefinitely. Related to PR#: STC HLD 040 TBS Registration: 003214 Bank Number: STC PPU 026

Special Surveys

Description: This bank contains social and demographic data obtained from special ad hoc surveys, conducted by the Household Surveys Division, which do not form part of the regular survey-taking activity of the Agency. They cover a variety of socio-economic topics, including health, housing , education and literacy, as well as demographic data. The information may include name, social insurance number, addresses or telephone number. Class of Individuals: Individuals selected to participate in the special surveys. Purpose: The data are used by sponsoring agencies or Statistics Canada to either evaluate or benchmark existing socio-economic programs, or in the development of such programs. The data collected may be one-time ad hoc measures, or a series of point-in-time measures, including longitudinal. Retention and Disposal Standards: The paper records are retained for five years. The machine-readable records are retained indefinitely. Related to PR#: STC HLD 040 TBS Registration: 002189 Bank Number: STC PPU 016

Survey of Labour and Income Dynamics (SLID)
Description: The Survey of Labour and Income Dynamics is a longitudinal panel study that will provide data on the demographic, income, family and labour market characteristics of Canadians. The first annual labour component of the survey was conducted in January 1993 and the first income survey was conducted in April 1993. Respondents will subsequently be contacted twice each year, for a period of five years. New panels are to be introduced into the study every three years. Class of Individuals: Individuals aged 15 and over. Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to provide data about the way people's lives are affected by changes in jobs, in income, in place of residence, and other changes that influence the social and economic well-being of individuals and families. SLID will support research aimed at advancing an understanding of labour market behaviour and economic well-being, and ultimately support policy development. Consistent Uses: As a longitudinal survey, SLID will follow respondents over a 6-year period. Records for the same respondent, therefore, will be linked together over that period in order to identify changes experienced. Retention and Disposal Standards: Records will be retained indefinitely. Related to PR#: STC HLD 038 TBS Registration: 003301 Bank Number: STC PPU 017

■ Canadian Centre for Justice Statistics

Homicide Statistics
Description: This bank contains information obtained from police forces on characteristics of homicide incidents, characteristics of the victims and suspects, the relationship between suspects and victims, etc. Class of Individuals: Individuals who are victims of homicides and individuals who are suspected of committing a homicide. Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to provide information relating to the extent of homicide in Canada; to describe the types and circumstances of homicide incidents and offenses, as well as the essential characteristics of people involved in them; and to indicate how law enforcement agencies deal with the incidents as well as the apprehended suspects. Retention and Disposal Standards: Records are to be retained indefinitely. Related to PR#: STC CCJ 135 TBS Registration: 001861 Bank Number: STC PPU 025

■ Canadian Centre for Health Information

Canada Health Survey
Description: This bank contains information obtained from the Canada Health Survey, including demographic data, health status, health consequence and risk factor information as well as anthropometric measurements and blood test analyses. Class of Individuals: This information relates to individuals in Canada who responded to the Canada Health Survey conducted during 1978 and 1979 by Health and Welfare Canada and Statistics Canada. Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to produce data relating to the health of Canadians, including alcohol and tobacco use, activity and fitness, seatbelt use, immune status, health problems and disability, emotional health, blood pressure, health services and medication. The data serve as input to the planning of health care, health promotion and disease prevention by governments and others. Retention and Disposal Standards: The records will be retained for 25 years. Related to PR#: STC HLT 115 TBS Registration: 001852 Bank Number: STC PPU 075

Canadian Peritonitis Registry
Description: This bank contains demographic, diagnostic and treatment information on patients with end-stage renal failure, who are being treated by any form of peritoneal dialysis. Class of Individuals: Renal failure patients who receive peritoneal dialysis treatment and have developed peritonitis (January 1987 – September 1989). Purpose: To analyze data on peritonitis to determine risk factors and to provide results of the analysis to participating renal failure units. Retention and Disposal Standards: Records are retained indefinitely. TBS Registration: 002669 Bank Number: STC PPU 061

Canadian Renal Failure Register
Description: The information in this bank is provided by reports from hospital dialysis and transplantation centres, about all new patients starting treatment for chronic renal failure. Basic information includes the name of patient, socio-demographic characteristics of the patient, and diagnostic and treatment information. Class of Individuals: This information, collected annually from 1981 to 1986, relates to patients starting treatment for chronic renal failure. Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to access the number of cases under treatment and to produce data to be used in evaluating the efficiency of the treatment modes. Retention and Disposal Standards: The files are retained for 100 years. Related to PR#: STC HLT 095 TBS Registration: 001849 Bank Number: STC PPU 060

Dental Hygienists Database
Description: This bank contains socio-economic and demographic data on licensed/qualified dental hygienists. Variables include highest level of education, school years and place of graduation, type of employer, percentage of time spent in dental hygiene activities and numerically coded place of residence and employment. The files are not identified by a name but by a national registration number. The last survey was completed in 1983. Class of Individuals: This information, collected annually, (1975-1981), relates to licensed or qualified dental hygienists. Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to produce statistical data on the socio-economic and demographic characteristics of dental hygienists qualified to practise and reside in Canada, and to provide information to manpower planning groups and other users as a source of data for analysis and special studies. Retention and Disposal Standards: The files are retained for 25 years. Related to PR#: STC HLT 090 TBS Registration: 001846 Bank Number: STC PPU 045

Hospital Morbidity

Description: This data bank contains information obtained from general and allied special hospitals in Canada on patients that have separated (discharges and deaths). The files are identified by a number assigned by the hospital and contain demographic and medical information on the patient such as age, sex, diagnosis, surgical operations, length of stay, condition of discharge, residence of the patient, etc. Class of Individuals: This information, collected annually, relates to patients that have been separated from general and allied special hospitals in Canada. Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to provide national hospital morbidity statistics, including number of patients separated from general and allied special hospitals, average length of stay, and causes of hospitalization. Retention and Disposal Standards: The files are retained for 100 years. Related to PR#: STC HLT 080 TBS Registration: 001848 Bank Number: STC PPU 055

Integrated Vital Statistics Database

Description: This bank has integrated information obtained from the universal systems of registration of births, marriages, deaths and stillbirths. These are originally recorded and accumulated by registrars of vital statistics in each province and territory. The information on births relates to place of birth, particulars on parents (name, birthdate, marital status of mother) and particulars of the child (surname and name). The information on stillbirths relates to particulars of the child, (place of birth, sex, weight) and particulars of parents (name, birthdate, ethnic group). The marriage component of the database contains information on the bride and bridegroom (name, marital status, birthdate, mother tongue), particulars of parents (name, birthdate, birthplace) and on the date and place of marriage. Information on deaths relates to name of deceased; date, place and cause of death. The information has been obtained through formal arrangements with the provinces and is to be used for statistical purposes only. Statistics Canada, therefore, is unable to respond to requests for information contained in this bank, pursuant to section 19(1)(c) of the Privacy Act. Any individual wishing to obtain information relating to the registration of births, marriages or deaths should contact the appropriate provincial registrar. Class of Individuals: This information, collected annually, relates to all individuals who were born in Canada or the United States and are Canadian residents; married or died in Canada; or a Canadian resident who died in the United States. Purpose: The purpose of the bank is to provide input into the production of estimates of births, marriages and deaths for Canada and the provinces. These data are also used in special studies relating to, for example, mortality, fertility and life expectancy. Vital statistics are the prime components used in intercensal population estimates. Consistent Uses: The Mortality Database, which forms part of the Integrated Vital Statistics Database, is used as one of the input files in long-term medical follow-up studies. It provides information on date, place and cause of death for individuals in a particular study group (see Personal Information Bank STC PPU 076). Retention and Disposal Standards: The files are retained for 100 years. Related to PR#: STC HLT 095 TBS Registration: 001844 Bank Number: STC PPU 035

Long-Term Medical Follow-Up Study Files

Description: The Long-Term Medical Study Files are comprised of information from four sources: input study files which are often from groups outside Statistics Canada; the Canadian Cancer Data Base which is created from STC PPU 065; and the Canadian Mortality Data Base which is created from the Integrated Vital Statistics Database STC PPU 035, and the Canadian Birth Data Base which is created from the Integrated Vital Statistics Database STC PPU 035 plus provincial files. The input files contain records of individuals which have been supplied by employers, unions, health surveys or other research groups. These input files are then matched to the Canadian Cancer Data Base to determine the cause of cancer, to the Canadian Mortality Data Base to provide information on date, cause and place of death, or to the Canadian Birth Data Base to provide birth and parental details. In addition, the outcome files may be matched (e.g. infant birth and death records). The input study files may contain from several hundred to many hundreds of thousands of records depending on the size of the study group. Individual identifying information includes names, birthdate, sex birthplace and place of residence. The name of the individual's parents or spouse may also be included where this information is required to confirm the validity of a linkage. The input study file and the file containing, say, the death records to which the study file records were linked are kept separately. An identification number is present on both files which can bring corresponding records together if necessary. The files are passworded and stored in the Statistics Canada tape library. Class of Individuals: This database contains records of individuals who form part of population groups identified by employers, unions, health surveys, or other research organizations, as well as all individuals in the national files. Purpose: Health statistics, in general, are used to describe the state of health of the Canadian people and the occurrence of illnesses. In particular, these files are primarily used to provide researchers with data they need to compare the rates and causes of death and/or cancer in groups exposed to different levels or types of chemicals, diet, medical treatment, x-rays, disease, etc. This in turn gives information needed by policy makers to set appropriate levels of exposure to toxic agents in occupational, environmental and medical settings. Risk factor concerns relating to child and maternal health, including socio-economic birth and mortality differentials are being investigated. Retention and Disposal Standards: The files are generally retained for a minimum of five years. Related to PR#: STC HLT 095 TBS Registration: 001860 Bank Number: STC PPU 076

Medicare Records

Description: This bank contains medical and demographic information from the Medical Care Insurance files of the province of Manitoba commencing with the period 1984/85. This information has been obtained through formal arrangements with the province and is to be used for statistical purposes only. Statistics Canada is unable to respond to requests for information contained in this bank pursuant to section 19(1)(c) of the Privacy Act. Class of Individuals: Persons for whom a claim has been submitted to the Medical Care Insurance plan of the province of Manitoba. Purpose: To create and examine profiles of diseases in Canada from an epidemiologic perspective. Consistent Uses: To achieve the purpose described above will involve linkage of the Hospital Morbidity files (STC PPU 055) and the Mortality files (STC PPU 035). Retention and Disposal Standards: Records are retained indefinitely. Related to PR#: STC HLT 080 – Health Care TBS Registration: 002673 Bank Number: STC PPU 056

National Cancer Incidence Reporting System

Description: The information in this bank is provided by the 10 provincial cancer registries and health authorities responsible for cancer registration in the Yukon and Northwest Territories. The information relates to each newly diagnosed case of primary cancer and includes the name of the person with cancer, socio-demographic characteristics of the person, and diagnostic information. Class of Individuals: This information, collected annually, relates to all individuals diagnosed as having primary cancer as reported to provincial cancer registries and territorial health authorities. Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to produce data on the incidence of new primary sites of cancer reported to provincial and territorial cancer registries by site of tumour, age, sex and method of diagnosis. These data are to provide a large base of information for the study of variations in cancer incidence by personal characteristics and geographic region and to allow the monitoring of trends in cancer incidence over time. Retention and Disposal Standards: The files are retained for 100 years. Related to PR#: STC HLT 095 TBS Registration: 001850 Bank Number: STC PPU 065

Registered Nurses Database

Description: This bank contains socio-economic and demographic data obtained from provincial nurses' associations on registered nurses licensed to practise in Canada. The information includes basic and post-basic nursing education, year and location of graduation, activity status, type of employer, position and numerically coded location of residence and employment. The files are identified by a provincial registration number. Class of Individuals: This information, collected annually, relates to registered nurses licensed to practise in Canada. Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to produce data on nursing manpower. These data, along with data relating to other health occupations, provide a source of national health manpower data used by planning groups and other users for analysis and special studies. Retention and Disposal Standards: The files are retained for 25 years. Related to PR#: STC HLT 090 TBS Registration: 001847 Bank Number: STC PPU 050

Tuberculosis Database

Description: This database, provided by provincial and territorial offices of tuberculosis control, contains information on people with tuberculosis. The information includes socio-demographic variables such as age, sex, aboriginal status and birthplace, and medical data such as type of tuberculosis, bacillary status and previous vaccination. In 1990 new variables were added including method of detecting the cases, antibiotic resistance, chest x-ray results and, for deceased persons, cause of death. Class of Individuals: Since 1966 the information relates to people with new active and reactivated tuberculosis. Prior to 1966 (since 1937) the information related to people admitted to tuberculosis sanatoria. Purpose: This database contains information used for purposes of tuberculosis surveillance and control. Retention and Disposal Standards: The files are retained for 100 years. Related to PR#: STC HLT 095 TBS Registration: 001851 Bank Number: STC PPU 070

Creative and Performing Artists

Description: This bank contains information relating to characteristics of individual visual artists, writers, actors, directors, performing musicians, composers, conductors, dancers and choreographers. Information dates from the late 1970's to the early 1980's. Class of Individuals: Creative and performing artists in Canada. Purpose: The surveys were conducted to provide information on the background, career orientation and economic well-being of those attempting to work professionally as creative and performing artists in Canada. Retention and Disposal Standards: The information is retained indefinitely. Related to PR#: STC ECT 195 TBS Registration: 002098 Bank Number: STC PPU 102

Elementary/Secondary Teacher Database

Description: This bank contains information relating to characteristics of individuals who form part of the educational staff employed full– or part-time in public elementary-secondary schools for all provinces. Class of Individuals: This information, collected annually, relates to all individuals who form part of the educational staff employed full– or part-time in public elementary/secondary schools for all provinces. Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to produce statistical information relating to full-time instructional and administrative school staff at the elementary/secondary school levels in all provinces according to gender, age, staff position, and employment status. Retention and Disposal Standards: The files are to be retained for

55 years. Related to PR#: STC ECT 165 TBS Registration: 001853 Bank Number: STC PPU 080

National Graduates Survey

Description: Surveys among graduates of postsecondary education programs have been carried out in 1978, 1984, 1987, 1988, 1991 and 1992. The surveys were carried out using a sample of 1976 graduates (for the 1978 survey), 1982 graduates (for the 1984 and 1987 surveys) 1986 graduates (for the 1988 and 1991 surveys), and 1990 graduates (for the 1992 survey). In each case, lists of graduates from universities, colleges and trade-vocational schools were obtained. The lists contain information relating to approximately 112,000 1976 graduates (Quebec graduates excluded), 220,000 1982 graduates, 250,000 1986 graduates and 265,000 1990 graduates. The information includes the name, address, telephone number, graduation qualification and major field of study for each graduate. Approximately 50,000 persons were selected to be interviewed for each survey, with 36,000 responding in 1984. The 1987 survey attempted to re-interview these 36,000, obtaining approximately 31,000 responses. Information collected included the extent of work experience before graduation and in the years after graduation, occupations and industries for jobs being held two years (five years in the 1987 survey) after graduation, details of further studies since graduation, and general classificatory information (e.g., age, marital status, sex, language). The 1991 survey attempted to re-interview approximately 40,500 1986 graduates who responded in 1988. They were asked about labour force status and detailed questions about their job, if any. In the 1992 study, approximately 51,000 persons were selected and response was obtained from approximately 36,000. Class of Individuals: This information relates to graduates from trade-vocational, college and university programs in calendar years 1976, 1982, 1986 and 1990. Purpose: To produce statistical information for monitoring graduates' transition from school to work and their success in finding work related to their fields of study. The information is provided to students and guidance counsellors to help choose appropriate fields of study; and to education planners to organize courses and programs of study. It is also used by analysts to develop projection models of supply and demand of manpower by occupation, seeking out imbalances in the labour market. Also included are evaluations of the extent to which graduates succeed in findings jobs related to their fields of study, and the extent to which retraining leads to career changes. Retention and Disposal Standards: Records are retained for 100 years. Related to PR#: STC ECT 170 TBS Registration: 001858 Bank Number: STC PPU 100

Postsecondary Student Survey

Description: The survey population for the 1975 and 1984 Postsecondary Student Survey was provided by the registrars of postsecondary institutions. It included the name, address, telephone number and registration characteristics of all students registered in a regular credit course during the fall term of 1974-75 and 1983-1984. A sample of 100,000 and 64,000 individuals was selected for the survey and a total of 60,000 and 45,000 responses were received. The survey sought information relating to the current education, other education and employment of the respondent, as well as background characteristics. It also collected information with respect to how the respondents financed their education. Class of Individuals: This information relates to all students registered for credit courses in Canadian universities and community colleges or equivalent institutions at the time of the survey. Purpose: The purpose of the Postsecondary Student Survey is to provide comprehensive data on those who attend postsecondary institutions in Canada, their fields and levels of study, and how they finance their postsecondary education. The data will provide a basis for the analysis of such issues as accessibility to postsecondary education in Canada. Retention and Disposal Standards: Records are retained for 100 years. Related to PR#: STC ECT 170 TBS Registration: 001859 Bank Number: STC PPU 095

Postsecondary Teacher Database

Description: This bank contains information relating to the salary, qualifications, age, sex, immigration status, citizenship and discipline taught. There are no names in this data bank. Consequently, the number assigned to the individual by the institution is required for retrieval purposes, as well as the name of the institution and the year(s) the individual has taught at that institution. Class of Individuals: This bank is an annual census of all educational staff employed on a full-time basis in universities and other post-secondary institutions for all provinces. Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to produce statistical information relating to the population and salaries of full-time teachers, broken down into three distinct sections: salaries, age and qualification characteristics, and social and other characteristics. Retention and Disposal Standards: The files are to be retained for 55 years. Related to PR#: STC ECT 170 TBS Registration: 001854 Bank Number: STC PPU 085

School Leavers Survey

Description: The bank contains information collected in the 1991 School Leavers Survey, covering such topics as a socio-economic profile, respondent health, school performance, lifestyle, literacy, labour market activity. For dropouts, additional topics include reasons for leaving, intentions on returning, labour market activities before/after leaving and other types of training/education received since leaving. Class of Individuals: Individuals who at the time of the survey are 18 to 20 years old, who have completed secondary school, dropped out or are still in the educational system. Purpose: The purpose of the School Leavers Survey is to develop comparative profiles of three groups of secondary school attendees: those who have successfully completed school, those still in the education system and those who have "dropped out". The survey results will allow analysts to better understand the relationship between the leavers and their backgrounds and their subsequent labour market experiences. Consistent Uses: Statistics Canada has entered into data-sharing agreements under section 12 of the Statistics Act with Employment and Immigration Canada and with provincial ministries of education, manpower and labour. The information provided to these departments will not contain personal identifiers and will be kept confidential and used only for statistical purposes. Respondents were advised of these agreements and were given the opportunity to object to the sharing of their data. Retention and Disposal Standards: Records are retained indefinitely. Related to PR#: STC ECT 165 TBS Registration: 003013 Bank Number: STC PPU 093

Survey of Doctoral Degree Recipients

Description: This survey collected information on selected socio-economic characteristics of doctoral degree recipients in Canada, their educational background and work experience, and their career expectations. The survey began in 1981 and was discontinued in 1986. Class of Individuals: Recipients of a doctoral degree from a Canadian university. Purpose: The purpose of this survey was to produce statistical information used by the granting councils to study trends in post-graduate education with respect to the utilization of their funds, the employment pattern for graduates under the programs, the socio-demographic characteristics of the graduates, and to effect a cost analysis of the programs. Consistent Uses: Statistics Canada entered into data-sharing agreements under section 12 of the Statistics Act (R.S.C. 1985, ch. S19) with organizations identified on the questionnaire. Respondents were advised of these agreements and were given the opportunity to object to the sharing of their data. Retention and Disposal Standards: Records are retained indefinitely. Related to PR#: STC ECT 170 TBS Registration: 002436 Bank Number: STC PPU 097

University Student Data Bank

Description: The information in this bank is obtained from the administrative files of Canadian universities and colleges. It includes demographic data, and information relating to the individual's activities as a student, such as qualification sought, discipline or specialization, etc. There are no names in this data bank. Consequently, the number assigned to the individual by the institution is required for retrieval purposes as well as the name of the institution and the year(s) the individual has studied at that institution. Class of Individuals: This bank contains annual information on full-time and part-time students enrolled in a Canadian university. Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to produce statistical information on winter session enrolment by province, institution, program and sex. Retention and Disposal Standards: The files are to be retained for 55 years. Related to PR#: STC ECT 170 TBS Registration: 001855 Bank Number: STC PPU 090

■ Post Censal Survey Program

Aboriginal Peoples Database

Description: The database contains information on Aboriginal peoples resulting from the 1991 Post-Censal Survey of Aboriginal Peoples, covering such topics as schooling, labour force, culture, language, housing, health, disability, income, mobility, etc. Although the name of the selected respondent was collected at the time of the survey, it is not data-captured and, therefore, does not appear on the automated database. The precise address of the selected respondent at the time of the survey is required to locate a record. Class of Individuals: Persons who indicated that they identify with an Aboriginal group (North American Indian, Métis or Inuit) and/or reported being registered under the Indian Act of Canada. It includes individuals living on and off Indian reserves and settlements. Purpose: The objective of the Post-Censal Survey of Aboriginal Peoples is to provide a social and economic profile of Aboriginal peoples, including such information as housing conditions, lifestyle and social issues, health, employment history, schooling, mobility, disability, etc. Retention and Disposal Standards: Records are retained indefinitely. Related to PR#: STC PCS 122 TBS Registration: 003014 Bank Number: STC PPU 116

Database on Persons With Disabilities

Description: This database contains information on persons with disabilities in Canada, including the number of persons with disabilities, the nature and severity of the disability and the barriers faced by persons with disabilities. The information also addresses the need for, as well as the use and availability of, special aids and services. Although the name of the selected respondent was collected at the time of the survey, it is not data-captured and, therefore, does not appear on the automated database. The precise address of the selected respondent at the time of the survey is required to locate a record. Class of Individuals: Persons with disabilities living in households and institutions in Canada, at the time of the 1986 and 1991 Census. Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to identify those Canadians who, for health-related reasons, are limited in the amount of activity they can perform on a day-to-day basis, and the nature and severity of the disability and the barriers that they face. This information is essential, particularly to governments and private organizations, to the process of developing programs and policies to eliminate these barriers. Consistent Uses: With respect to the Canada Health and Disability Survey, five-sixths of the Labour Force Survey (LFS) sample was used to identify a sample of persons with disabilities who were subsequently interviewed. The output of the survey was linked back to the LFS to obtain labour force activity data which were not included in the questionnaire. With respect to the Health and Activity Limitation Survey, the 1986 and 1991 Census of Population was used to identify a sample of persons with disabilities who were subsequently interviewed. The output of this survey was linked back to the 1986 and 1991 Census of Population file to obtain demographic data which were not included in the survey questionnaire. This would ease the burden on respondents since they had already provided these data for the Census. Retention and Disposal Standards: Records are retained indefinitely. Related to PR#: STC HLT 110 TBS Registration: 001862 Bank Number: STC PPU 115

■ Agriculture Division

Agriculture Database
Description: This database contains information obtained from the Census of Agriculture which is a statutory requirement, and from both farm and non-farm surveys. The records carry information on the socio-economic characteristics of farm operators and information relating to crops, livestock, poultry, machinery, farm operating expenses and agriculture receipts. From the non-farm surveys, information is available on production, inventory and sales in both the fruit and vegetable processing and the dairy processing sectors. The database also contains information from both the grain and oilseed industries. Class of Individuals: Individuals considered to be farm operators. Purpose: This bank provides a base inventory of Canadian agriculture, provides input to the System of National Accounts and provides information for production, marketing and policy decisions. Consistent Uses: Statistics Canada may release name and address information to other members of the national agricultural statistical system for statistical purposes if both the legal requirements imposed by the Statistics Act under section 17 and departmental list release policy guidelines are met. Retention and Disposal Standards: Currently, records are retained for 100 years. Related to PR#: STC AGR 445, 450 TBS Registration: 001843 Bank Number: STC PPU 030

Classes of Personal Information

Business Statistics

The business database contains information which relates to the major industrial and services sectors of the economy. The information is obtained from establishments within companies through surveys, and from administrative records. It is used to describe the whole range of business activity in Canada, the goods and services produced, the cost structure of each industry and the location of industrial activity. It measures the kind and quality of goods produced, the costs of materials, labour and capital employed and the prices of both material and final products. The information is also a vital input to the System of National Accounts.

As some of the businesses surveyed are unincorporated, there is personal information in this database relating to owners of unincorporated businesses who can be identified by a social insurance number. The business data bank may contain personal information in respect of unincorporated businesses in the forestry, mining, energy and resource and manufacturing sectors; in retail and wholesale trade; in rail, road and water transportation industries; in services, communications and tourism industries; relating to general and trade contractors; and to importers and exporters.

Household Surveys

The Household Surveys Division is responsible for a number of household surveys including surveys on family expenditures, household facilities and equipment, and incomes of Canadian families and individuals. In some cases, the name of an individual respondent is collected. In other cases, the respondent may be a household unit. In all cases, however, the information is maintained geographically and is not intended to be retrieved by name or other personal identifier.

The following is a description of the classes of personal information maintained by the division.

Consumer Finances Survey

This is an annual survey of households, conducted on a sample basis, designed to measure the distribution of income and to provide other yardsticks of the economic well-being of Canadian families and individuals. The records carry information on wages and salaries and other income, selected family and personal characteristics. To retrieve a record from this class of personal information, the requester must provide the year he/she was surveyed and the precise address at the time of the survey. For those years when the survey is carried out in conjunction with the Labour Force Survey, it may be possible to locate records relating to an individual. However, for those years when it is conducted independent of the Labour Force Survey, after the processing cycle is complete and the questionnaires are destroyed (usually after one year), it would be necessary to provide certain personal characteristics such as age and sex to permit the identification of an individual in a household group.

Family Expenditures Survey

Collects information, obtained by a sample survey of households, on expenditures by families and single persons living in private households, covering their complete budgets. A primary use of the information is for reviewing and updating the weights for the Consumer Price Index. As with the other classes of personal information maintained by the agency, this information is not intended to be retrieved by name or other personal identifier.

Administrative Files Obtained from Federal Government Departments for Statistical Purposes

The Statistics Act, under which Statistics Canada operates, gives to the Agency the authority to access records maintained in any federal department or municipal office, corporation, business or organization where the information sought relates to the mandate of this Agency. Accordingly, Statistics Canada has entered into a number of arrangements with other federal government departments to access administrative files of those departments for the purpose of extracting data for statistical purposes. This has allowed Statistics Canada to exempt many respondents, particularly small businesses, from the filing of regular questionnaires.

Since the use made by Statistics Canada of this information is secondary to the original purpose for which it was gathered, requests for access to personal information from these files should be addressed to the department responsible for the original collection of the data. Any requests received by Statistics Canada, either for a copy of an individual record or for corrections to a record, will be referred to the originating department for response.

Routine Correspondence and Other Subject Files
In the course of conducting the programs and activities of Statistics Canada, categories of personal information may be accumulated which are not contained in specific information banks described in this entry. Such information includes inquiries, complaints and general correspondence which are stored as part of the general subject files and are not retrievable by any personal identifier. This form of personal information is normally retrievable by means of specific information such as subject and/or date of communication. The retention periods associated with this information are consistent with those associated with the general subject files wherein they are stored.

Manuals

The manuals used by Statistics Canada in carrying out its policies, programs and activities are instruction manuals developed to cover all phases of data acquisition, production and publication. These manuals can be accessed by identifying the subject.

Status of Women Canada
Chapter 102

General Information

Background

In 1971, the federal government created the Office of the Coordinator, Status of Women within the Privy Council Office. In 1976, the Office of the Coordinator, Status of Women was removed from the Privy Council Office. It was named a department under Order-in-Council P.C. 1976-779 and became known as Status of Women Canada.

Responsibilities

Status of Women Canada ensures that the federal government carries out its commitment to women's equality in all spheres of Canadian life.

Legislation

- Order in Council, P.C. 1976-779

Organization

■ Policy Analysis and Development Directorate

This function involves the systematic analysis of the impact of existing or proposed government programs, initiatives, policies and legislation with regard to their impact on women. This directorate is also responsible for developing policies and projects concerning the status of women and for the administration of a federal aboriginal women economic development program. Policy analysis and development are carried out at the federal level, as well as in co-operation with provincial and territorial governments.

■ Intergovernmental and Non-governmental Relations Directorate

This function consists of ongoing consultations with provincial and territorial governments, women's groups, academics and other groups and individuals at all levels interested in women's issues in Canada and abroad. It is aimed at informing the Minister of the current environment and assisting these groups and individuals in their contacts with the federal government. Status of Women Canada also represents Canada at the United Nations Commission on the Status of Women, the Organization for Economic Co-operation and Development's Working Party on the Role of Women in the Economy as well as the Inter-American Commission of Women (CIM).

■ Communications Directorate

This function informs women's groups and the general public of federal priorities and programs relating to the status of women. It undertakes the preparation of speeches, correspondence, and media briefings. It also carries out media and correspondence analysis, responds to queries from the public, issues publications and organizes special events.

■ Corporate Systems and Services Directorate

This directorate ensures the statutory accountability and provides corporate services in the areas of financial management, human resource management, administration, management of government information holdings and information technology for the Agency and the Office of the Minister Responsible for the Status of Women.

Classes of Personal Information

In the course of conducting its activities, Status of Women Canada accumulates categories of personal information which are stored as part of the general subject files where records are not normally retrieved by name of individual or other personal identifier. Such personal information may have been accumulated in the process of handling such complaints and enquiries as are made to the Minister and the Department. Due to the special nature of the Department's activities, these personal complaints and enquiries are usually forwarded to the appropriate department for individual assistance. The Department handles policy and program issues, but not personal program delivery matters. This form of personal information is normally retrievable only if specifics are provided concerning the issue of complaint, and the date and name of complainant. All issues dealing with federal government legislation, policies and programs as they impact on women are included. The retention periods for these classes of personal information are controlled by the record schedules of the general subject files in which they are stored.

Organization

Overall responsibility for the direction of the affairs of the Department rests with the Deputy Minister, who is its permanent head and senior adviser to the Minister of Transport.

The following agencies report to Parliament through the Minister of Transport: the National Transportation Agency, the Grain Transportation Agency, Canadian National Railways, Canada Harbour Place Corporation, Marine Atlantic Inc., VIA Rail, The St. Lawrence Seaway Authority, Canada Ports Corporation, seven local port corporations and the Atlantic, Laurentian, Great Lakes and Pacific Pilotage Authorities.

Public Affairs Group

Public Affairs is responsible for providing support for the implementation of the Department's aims and objectives by handling media relations and public information programs, including advertising, special publications and exhibits. It provides general information about the Department through headquarters facilities in Ottawa and regional offices in St. John's, Dartmouth, Montreal, Toronto, Winnipeg, Edmonton and Vancouver. Contact may be made in person, by phone, or by writing to the public affairs officer at one of the addresses listed under "Access Procedures" at the end of this chapter.

Review Group

Fosters improvements in the efficiency and effectiveness of all departmental operations and administration and the accountability of management by providing independent evaluation, internal audit and review of all departmental activities, as well as providing management consulting services. Review is the focal point for Inspector General Transportation Safety, Auditor General audits and annual reports, Regulatory Review and departmental safety monitoring activities.

Security and Emergency Planning Group

The Security and Emergency Planning Group is the principal focus in the Department of Transport for coordinating the development and implementation of policies and programs to ensure the security and emergency readiness of the National Transportation System and of departmental assets.

■ Security Policy, Planning and Legislative Programs Branch

This Branch plans and develops policies, standards and legislation to ensure adequate levels of security for the National Transportation System, formulates the departmental position on international security activities, provides assistance in the implementation of transportation security policies, and establishes policies and standards with respect to departmental security.

■ Security Operations Branch

This Branch provides advice and assistance in the protection of assets throughout the Department and multi-modal transportation system. It is the departmental liaison with the RCMP and other police agencies on security and criminal matters. It is responsibility for Headquarters protective and security services, monitors the effectiveness of Departmental and modal security programs, develops standards for the use of security, technology, advises on acquisition and monitors its effectiveness, directs the departmental communications programs (Communications Electronic Security, Electronic Data Processing Security, and Technical Intrusion) and manages the Department's security research and development program. Finally, the Branch monitors the delivery of pre-board security screening training programs, and acts as the functional authority for regional Directors, Security, to help industry achieve compliance with security legislation.

■ Intelligence, Personnel Security and Security Training Branch

This Branch directs the collection, analysis and dissemination of intelligence information from national and international agencies and provides the principal departmental liaison with the Canadian Security Intelligence Service, Intelligence Committees and other agencies concerning intelligence matters. Provides intelligence reports and briefings in support of departmental objectives as well as threat assessments, estimates and evaluations relevant to the protection of departmental assets and the National Transportation System. Directs the Personnel Security program, including the Security Clearances for Access to Restricted Areas of the National Transportation System. Develops departmental Security Training policies and plans and directs the design and delivery of training for professional security development and security awareness. Develops training for the operation and maintenance of new security equipment; reviews and approves all departmental security training and exercises quality control over its delivery.

■ Emergency Preparedness Branch

This Branch is responsible for the operation of the Transport Canada Crisis Centre (TCCC) for planning and coordinating emergency preparedness exercises, coordinating multi-modal crisis planning, and preparing, coordinating and maintaining Department of Transport peace and wartime plans.

■ Regional Directors, Security

The six Regional Directors are responsible for inspecting and testing departmental security plans, policies, and standards and for identifying vulnerabilities in them. They monitor the effectiveness of site security exercises, carry out certification of security screening personnel, ensure compliance of industry with transportation security legislation and provide advice and assistance in the protection of assets throughout the region for the departmental and multi-modal transportation industry.

Policy and Coordination

The Assistant Deputy Minister, Policy and Coordination (ADMPC), is responsible for the formulation, development and maintenance of the Department of Transport's long-range transportation objectives, strategies and policies. The ADM provides advice to the Deputy Minister on policies, programs and objectives which have implications for one or more modes of transport; on the management of transportation subsidy policy programs of the approved grants and contributions to organizations for transportation research and development; and on shared initiatives between private industry and various levels of government. The ADM advises the Minister on policy issues regarding Transport Crown Corporations, accessible transportation, on the development and implementation of technological research and on the maintenance of the Department's external relations (federal, provincial, international and industry). The ADM is supported by an associate assistant deputy minister and six directorates. The ADM is also supported by seven regional directors who are responsible at the corporate level for communications activities, policy liaison, and non-operational program development and management in the regions.

■ Coordination Directorate

This Directorate directs departmental responses to complex issues that involve several departmental groups. It coordinates the Department's federal, provincial, industry and international relations, acts as the focal point for the management of the regional directors and has overall responsibility for the negotiation and management of economic and regional development transportation sub-agreements. It also develops policies and programs concerned with transportation facilities for persons with disabilities. The Directorate is currently responsible for management of the Department's corporate planning cycle and the drafting of the Corporate Directions document published each spring. The Cabinet Liaison Service, which provides strategic intelligence on upcoming Cabinet meetings and strategic advice to the Minister on Cabinet submissions, is also part of the Coordination Directorate. As well, it is responsible for the Departmental Secretariat, which provides comprehensive coordination systems for the development and scheduling of policies through the departmental and Cabinet decision-making process, and prepares executive correspondence for the ministers. The Secretariat also prepares parliamentary returns and provides briefing services for the Minister, the Deputy Minister and senior departmental officials. The Director, Departmental Secretariat, is the departmental coordinator for privacy, access to information and human rights, and maintains a central consolidated registry of departmental statutes and regulations. In the Department of Transport, the federal government's information collection and public opinion survey program is coordinated by the Secretariat. The Directorate coordinates the development and implementation of departmental environmental policies and programs, particularly as these relate to environmental assessment and the federal code of Environmental Stewardship.

■ Research and Development Directorate

This Directorate, which includes the Transportation Development Centre in Montreal, plans, programs and manages the Department's Central Research and Development Program comprising exploratory, long-term applications and sector-directed initiatives. This program is complemented by initiatives such as Energy Research and Development program and National Strategy for the Integration of Persons with Disabilities Program. The Directorate is also responsible for strategic planning, policy, coordination and evaluation relating to transportation research and development. The Transportation Development Centre serves as the Department's centre of expertise on research and development and transportation technology and innovation. Contracted out to a variety of organizations, mainly in the private sectors, the Centre's projects cover all modes of transportation: marine, air, road and rail.

■ Economic Analysis Directorate

This Directorate provides the Department with transportation statistics and forecasts, and analyzes these data for use in program planning and policy decisions by senior officials in the Department. It provides policy assessment, analysis services and advice on multi-modal transportation issues and monitors and analyzes transportation systems. It also undertakes economic analysis in support of federal transportation policy initiatives and provides economic analysis services to the modal policy directorates.

■ Marine Policy and Programs Directorate

This Directorate is responsible for the development of policies, plans and programs for all aspects of water transportation assistance and associated services, over inland and coastal waters, as required by the federal government. It develops international and domestic shipping policies, including international bulk and liner shipping policies, and policy with regard to a Canadian flag deep-sea fleet and the need for defensive legislation. The activity includes the development of Canadian positions for multilateral negotiations conducted within intergovernmental organizations (e.g. OECD, UNCTAD, IMO, GATT) and the development of domestic shipping policies, including such matters as coastal trade, economic regulatory policy and shipping engaged in offshore exploration and development. Ports and pilotage policies are also developed and applied. The provision of a corporate overview of policies developed elsewhere in the government and their impact upon shipping, ports and the marine environment, including operating policies is also included in this activity. Further, this activity coordinates, analyses and advises on matters concerning major Crown Corporations such as Marine Atlantic Inc., Canada Ports Corporation and the St. Lawrence Seaway Authority.

■ Air Policy and Programs Directorate

This Directorate is responsible for the development and implementation of the government's policy initiatives for domestic, transborder and international air transportation services, and for Canadian representation at the Council of the International Civil Aviation Organization. In particular, it is responsible for the preparation of mandate papers for the negotiation of bilateral air agreements. It must also provide ongoing policy and program advice to the Minister of Transport on measures to ensure an appropriate framework that will permit air carriers to provide adequate and efficient air transportation services which will respond to the needs of the general public for air travel within Canada and internationally.

■ Surface Policy and Programs Directorate

This Directorate is responsible for the development, formulation and implementation of the surface transportation policies and programs, and for the management of all operational, developmental and economic regulatory activities of the Department in support of surface transportation. This includes all railway freight policies and programs (including grain); all surface passenger transportation policies and programs, including the development and administration of rail passenger legislation and regulations. It also includes all federal government policy applicable to trucking and motor coach transportation undertakings including operational truck and bus safety; and all highway policies and programs associated with the federal government, including negotiation and implementation of federal highway capital expenditures programs as well as contribution agreements with the provinces.

Personnel Group

The development and implementation of all departmental personnel policies and programs is planned and directed by the Assistant Deputy Minister, Personnel, whose responsibility it is to ensure the effective recruitment, compensation, utilization and retention of human resources in the Department.

■ Executive Services

Reporting to the Assistant Deputy Minister, Personnel, this Branch provides a full range of Resource Management and Administration and Translation services to the Personnel Group. Departmental Awards Coordination as well as Human Rights Commission complaints and Access to Information and Privacy services are also provided.

■ Personnel Policy and Planning Directorate

This directorate develops, promulgates and monitors policies, programs and services in the areas of human resource planning, official languages, employment equity, staffing, classification, organizational changes, harassment in the workplace and personnel management information. It also provides functional advice and assistance to managers, and exercises functional authority over twelve regions on all of those subjects, and represents the Department in dealings with central agencies and personnel management information/the Transport Integrated Personnel System (TIPS).

■ Training Directorate

This Directorate is the central coordinating authority for training and development within the Department of Transport. The Directorate provides the policy framework for the management of the Department's training function, and the administrative infrastructure for the planning and control of departmental training requirements which are national in scope. It is also responsible for the management of the Canadian Coast Guard College, which prepares officer-cadets for a career as navigating or engineering officers in the Canadian Coast Guard.

The Training Directorate conducts research into future learning systems, training methodology and instructional techniques with specific emphasis on the field of transportation. In addition, it directs the coordination and implementation of inter-group training, and coordinates and controls the Department's involvement in international training programs. It ensures the quality and assesses the continuing validity of training programs and activities through a Training Evaluation and Review Division. The Training Directorate provides support and assistance to the Department in managing major change initiatives.

■ Transport Canada Training Institute

TCTI's mandate is to provide essential operational (e.g. air traffic controller), technical (e.g. radar maintenance) and management (e.g. senior transportation course) training and development in support of Transport Canada.

■ Staff Relations and Compensation Directorate

This Directorate assists departmental management in the development and maintenance of harmonious relationships between the Department and the nine unions representing employees of the Department. It also represents the interests of management in all aspects of staff relations as defined in the Public Service Staff Relations Act, Treasury Board policies and ministerial policies. Its mandate also includes functional direction and control over all compensation policies and procedures, issues and systems within the Department. In addition, the Directorate monitors the implementation and administration of conflict of interest policy, recommends necessary amendments, processes all cases identified as level 2 and submits recommendations to the Deputy Minister for a final decision. The Directorate also has functional control and responsibility for the development and monitoring of policies, programs and procedures concerning occupational safety and health.

■ Senior Management Resourcing Division (APM)

This Division reports to the Assistant Deputy Minister, Personnel, and is responsible for providing all personnel services to the Deputy Minister and his/her delegates in support of the management of the EX population in the Department.

■ Personnel Operations Directorate

Reporting to the Assistant Deputy Minister, Personnel, the Directorate provides a full range of personnel services and functions to all departmental employees through fourteen regional personnel offices. It also ensures the feasibility of operational implementation in respect of all personnel policy proposals emanating from Personnel functional groups.

■ Regional Directors of Personnel

The Regional Director of Personnel is responsible for the provision of a full personnel service to all regional management groups, (Aviation, Airports, Marine, Surface) and to Central Groups. As a member of several management committees, the Regional Director is the focal point for advocacy of departmental personnel policies from corporate and regional perspectives. The Regional Director participates on management teams with the various groups to ensure that regional needs are addressed, to resolve conflicts or to develop procedures and standards.

Finance and Administration Group

The Assistant Deputy Minister (ADM), Finance and Administration is responsible for ensuring the provision of financial management, financial policy and operations, materiel, contracting and facility and information management services, information technology services and economic evaluation and cost recovery, advice, services and support. In addition to the National Headquarters Branch Heads, five regional directors also report to the ADM.

Aviation Group

The Assistant Deputy Minister, Aviation, directs the management of all operational, developmental, and regulatory activities of the Aviation Group in support of aeronautics, and maintains and promotes all aspects of air safety. The Group implements, on behalf of the Minister, Parts I and III of the Aeronautics Act. The Assistant Deputy Minister, Aviation is assisted by five directors general and two directors in Ottawa plus one director general located in each of the six regions across Canada. The Headquarters Directors General will focus on the development of legislation, regulations, orders, standards and policy documents for application in the regions. The Regional Directors General will be responsible for carrying out operational tasks.

■ Air Navigation System Directorate

This Directorate provides, operates, and maintains Canada's air navigation system, which consists of a national system of airways, air traffic services and aeronautical information services. The Directorate plans, implements, monitors, and evaluates the performance of all aspects of the air navigation system. It also develops contingency plans for dealing with crisis situations affecting the system. The Directorate is divided into four branches:

Air Navigation System Requirements Branch:

Responsible for the operational requirements, the levels of service, and the general integrity of the air navigation system. This includes airspace management, aviation weather facilities, en route and terminal aids, surveillance and communication systems, aerodrome certification and flight information services. The Branch also directs and manages policies and standards for the air navigation system as well as aeronautical information services and flight inspection.

Air Traffic Services Branch:

Develops and implements national policies for air traffic services and establishes systems and goals necessary to achieve the safe and efficient movement of air traffic within Canadian-controlled airspace and designated International Civil Aviation Organization (ICAO) airspace. It includes the Air Traffic Services Research and Experimentation Centre in Ottawa, Ontario.

Technical Services Branch:

Responsible for the coordination and effective utilization of telecommunications and electronics resources in the service and aid of civil aviation, to ensure the safety and efficiency of all flights operating in Canadian airspace. The Branch is also responsible for the design, development, installation, and maintenance of all electronic and computer-based systems required on a national basis to provide navigation, surveillance, communications, airport security, and information systems.

Program Planning, Coordination and Administration Branch:

Responsible for the effective and efficient utilization of capital, operation and maintenance, and human resources by the Air Navigation branches at headquarters. The Branch is also responsible for ensuring compliance with federal government administrative policies and directives throughout the Directorate.

■ Aviation Regulation Directorate

This Directorate is responsible for establishing and administering the regulations necessary for the safe conduct of Canadian civil aviation. The Directorate is divided into six branches:

Air Carrier Standards and Operations:

Responsible for inspecting international and national commercial air carrier operations, equipment and facilities. The Branch is also responsible for developing standards for, and certifying domestic and foreign commercial aircraft operators. Standards are also established for cabin safety; and the transportation of dangerous goods.

Airworthiness:

Responsible for inspecting, approving and accrediting persons, companies and institutions engaged in the design, manufacture, distribution or maintenance of aeronautical products; and the training and development of aircraft maintenance engineers. The Branch is also responsible for approving initial, and changes to, the type design of aeronautical products.

Aviation Licensing:

Responsible for certifying aircraft and licensing of aviation personnel, including pilots, Aircraft Maintenance Engineers, Air Traffic Controllers, Flights Engineers and Flight Navigators. Flight training units are also monitored to ensure the content and delivery of their training programs meet established standards. The Branch also carries out flight tests for pilots, navigators and engineers engaged in non-commercial air transportation.

Civil Aviation Medicine (a Division of NHW):

Provides medical advice and assistance in setting medical standards as well as in assessing the medical fitness of civil aviation personnel. It conducts aeromedical training sessions for air crews, medical examiners and air traffic controllers. It identifies, coordinates and executes aeromedical research and development. It also provides advice on all problems relating to the health of air travellers.

Legislation and Compliance:

Responsible for developing and maintaining aeronautical legislation and taking measures in implementing regulatory compliance. The Branch is also responsible for the Occupational Safe and Health (OSH) program which is designed to ensure a safe and healthy working environment for air carrier employees who work on board aircraft. The Branch is also responsible for the development and standardization of aeronautical terminology.

Program Planning and Resource Management:

Responsible for supporting the other Branches in the Directorate in providing specialist services in the areas of program planning, policy analysis, resource management, communications and information management.

Inspector/Engineer Training and Development Branch:

Responsible for providing training for Civil Aviation Inspectors, Technical Inspectors, Aeronautical Engineers, Passenger Safety Inspectors and Dangerous Goods Inspectors within the Aviation Regulation Program. The Branch is also responsible for developing training and career development.

■ Aircraft Services Directorate

This Directorate is responsible for the Department's fleet of 80 aircraft which is assigned to various tasks across Canada, such as flight inspection, training, and operations with the Canadian Coast Guard, including environmental protection against oil spills. The Directorate also provides aircraft services for other federal departments and agencies such as the Canadian Aviation Safety Board.

In addition, the Directorate owns, on behalf of the Canadian government, 16 Canadair CL-215 Water Bomber aircraft which are leased to six provinces, and the Northwest Territories. The aircraft are used to combat forest fires. The Directorate also owns one de Havilland Dash 7R aircraft, which is operated under lease by a commercial air carrier in support of the Department of Environment's Ice Reconnaissance Program.

The Directorate is divided into seven branches: Flight Operations; Technical Services; Training, Special Projects and Operational Planning; Engineering and Design; and Aviation Safety.

■ Policy, Planning and Resource Management Directorate

This Directorate provides for the policy development, planning, management and reporting associated with the allocation and utilization of the Aviation Group's resources, in accordance with corporate policies and objectives. The responsibilities of the Directorate include developing group strategy to address corporate issues and assisting in the development, communication and management of the objectives of the Group. The Directorate is also responsible for the determination of financial and human resource needs; the review, challenge and presentation of all the Group's resource requirements; analysis and control of resource utilization; and the development of a coordination program for investment, operation and maintenance expenditures.

■ System Safety Directorate

This Directorate contributes to the development of a safe National Air Transportation System (NATS) by: evaluating the ongoing safety performance of Canada's civil aviation activities; identifying safety hazards; providing aviation safety advice and information to senior Department managers to enable them to evaluate the efficient and strategic use of resources in order to fulfil their mandate; and conducting aviation safety promotional activities designed to prevent aircraft accidents by informing personnel within the aviation community about safe operating practices.

Airports Group

The Airports Group (AG) is headed by an Assistant Deputy Minister who is responsible for ensuring the provision of civil airport facilities and services in Canada consistent with market demands and government objectives, including national emergency preparedness objectives, to ensure a safe and efficient national airport system.

The Group has an ongoing involvement of 156 airports across the country through ownership, operation, or lease with or without subsidy.

The Assistant Deputy Minister is assisted by four Directors General. Also reporting to the Assistant Deputy Minister are the Airport General Managers of Toronto – Lester B. Pearson International Airport, Halifax International Airport, Ottawa-Macdonald-Cartier Airport, Winnipeg International Airport and six Regional Directors General located in Moncton, Montreal, Toronto, Winnipeg, Edmonton and Vancouver.

Each Regional Director General is assisted by a director of airport operations, a manager of resource management, a manager of safety and security services, a manager of commercial development, and a director of professional services. Their responsibilities include airport programs, commercial development, property management, resource acquisition and management, and the knowledgeable client function for engineering and architecture services provided by the Department of Public Works and the provision of professional and technical services. In addition, Regional Directors General have advisers on community relations and communications.

Corporate Planning and Airport Transfers:
Responsible for strategic planning and for negotiating the transfer of airports to Local Airport Authorities.

Commercial Development and Marketing:
Responsible for property management and the administration of commercial agreements and contracts and for promoting revenue and commercial opportunities both nationally and internationally.

Resource Management:
Concentrates its efforts on all of the financial and administrative functions required centrally for the Group.

Safety and Technical Services:
Responsible for contributing to the safety of the travelling public by providing technical leadership and functional direction on all operational issues within the Transport Canada airport system. The Directorate is also the functional focal point for the life cycle management of Transport Canada airport facilities and protection of the environment at Transport Canada airports which includes executing the knowledgeable client function for engineering and architecture services provided by Public Works Canada.

Human Resources and Executive Services:
Responsible for internal communications, human resource planning and Human Resource Management programs.

Marine Group/Canadian Coast Guard

The Assistant Deputy Minister/Commissioner of the Canadian Coast Guard is responsible for the development, provision and operation of a safe and efficient national marine transportation system in support of government marine objectives. As such, the ADM/Commissioner is the focal point for marine affairs.

The Group is responsible for major operational programs, safety and regulatory matters, and changes and amendments to relevant legislation, such as the Canada Shipping Act, the Arctic Shipping Pollution Prevention Act and the Navigable Waters Protection Act to ensure the proper enforcement of the marine regulatory system.

A description of the organization and responsibilities of The St. Lawrence Seaway Authority, Canada Ports Corporation and the four Pilotage Authorities, as well as the records held by them, are provided elsewhere in this register.

■ Harbours and Ports Directorate

This Directorate administers public harbours and port facilities serving commercial water transportation interests, and provides functional direction to the regions in these areas. It also serves as a focal point for harbour commissions' interests with the federal government.

■ Marine Navigation Services Directorate

This Directorate develops and recommends operational policies for the provision of aids to marine navigation; provides functional direction to the Canadian Coast Guard regions for marine aids to navigation and vessel traffic services; reviews and approves works in navigable waters; and directs the development of commercial navigable waterways. It prepares legislation and regulations for marine aids to navigation, vessel traffic services and the Navigable Waters Protection Act. It is also responsible for the custody and disposal of wrecked vessels.

■ Telecommunications and Electronics Directorate

This Directorate develops and recommends policies for the provision of maritime mobile safety communications, directs the operation of the Coast Guard radio station network and the radio navigation system, and directs the provision of all telecommunications and electronics systems utilized by the Coast Guard. It also prepares legislation and regulations for the performance and inspection of radio equipment fitted in ships for safety purposes.

■ Fleet Systems Directorate

This Directorate develops national policies and plans for the composition, operation and maintenance of the Canadian Coast Guard Fleet, which provides marine users with ice-breaking and ice-escort services, gives support to other functions, such as aids to navigation, and participates in research and sea rescue activities.

■ Search and Rescue Branch

This Branch develops, maintains and ensures the efficient operation of facilities and services to minimize loss of life and personal injuries in the marine environment as a result of search-and-rescue incidents.

■ Ship Safety Directorate

This Branch develops and applies safety standards for the design, construction, operation and maintenance of ships, Mobile Offshore Drilling Units (MODU) and air-cushion vehicles, as well as for their machinery and equipment, for navigation, for handling and stowage of cargo, for the qualification and certification of ships, MODU and aircushion vehicle personnel, and for the prevention of pollution by ships. It also participates in the development of international codes, conventions and regulations concerning marine safety, and maintains registries of vessels and ships' personnel.

■ Marine Environmental Response and Emergency Planning Branch

This Branch is involved in clean-up of pollution from shipping and acts as a resource agency for marine pollution incidents from other sources. It evaluates, acquires and maintains the Coast Guard's pollution counter measures equipment and regularly provides exercises for the Coast Guard and other personnel. The Branch is responsible for the planning component of emergency planning in support of the Department of Transport requirements and Canada's commitments to NATO.

■ Northern Directorate

This Directorate develops and implements policies and plans for the establishment of an all-season Arctic operational region. Responsibilities include: the provision of ship safety inspections north of 60 degrees North; pollution prevention responsibilities under the Arctic Waters Pollution Prevention Act (AWPPA) in regard to ships; the administration of a research and development program to update regulations and standards; the coordination of an annual Eastern Arctic Sealift to resupply northern settlements and defence sites; and the development of navigation systems policies and practices. The Branch also provides liaison with other government departments, northern governments, interest groups and Inuit communities on subjects such as: processes, sovereignty issues, ship support to offshore exploration, ship trials, experimental voyages and season extension permissions.

Surface Group

The Assistant Deputy Minister, Surface, directs: the development, implementation and monitoring of policies and programs concerning railway safety, road safety, motor vehicle regulation and transport of dangerous goods. The Assistant Deputy Minister, Surface, also directs the development and updating of emergency plans and procedures for the surface transportation modes as well as their implementation during national emergencies.

The Surface Group is divided into three Directorates and one branch.

■ Railway Safety Directorate

This Directorate administers the Railway Safety Act, implements safety aspects of the national transportation policy and coordinates all programs relating to railway safety in Canada. The main responsibilities include development and enforcement of regulations, rules, standards and procedures governing safe railway operations in Canada. As well, it administers federal government funding programs designed to improve the safety of railway operations, including improvements to grade crossings. This Directorate also develops the contingency plans, procedures, organizations and facilities necessary to ensure the efficient and effective operation of rail, ferry and highway transportation systems and facilities that are essential to the national transportation system during periods of national crisis, international tension or war.

■ Road Safety and Motor Vehicle Regulation Directorate

This Directorate coordinates federal government activities in road safety and motor vehicle regulation in order to reduce deaths, the severity of injuries, health impairment, property damage and fuel consumption. Principal responsibilities include development and enforcement of safety standards for motor vehicles, development of road safety countermeasures, liaison with motor vehicle agencies in other countries, management of the Motor Vehicle Test Centre and fuel economy programs, and participation in co-operative federal-provincial road safety programs.

■ Transport of Dangerous Goods Directorate

This Directorate administers the federal Transportation of Dangerous Goods (TDG) program to promote public safety in the transportation of dangerous goods by all modes of transport throughout Canada. Activities include the development of standards and regulations and enforcement of the regulations governing the handling, offering for transport, transportation, in-transit storage of dangerous goods and distribution of standardized means of containment. It coordinates federal-provincial/territorial activities to ensure consistent Canada-wide delivery of the dangerous goods program and to facilitate interface between modes; and administers the availability of emergency response information through the operation of CANUTEC, a 24-hour bilingual emergency response and information centre for transportation accidents involving dangerous goods. (To contact CANUTEC in case of an emergency, call collect (613) 996-6666. For information, call (613) 992-4624.) The Directorate publishes a Dangerous Goods Newsletter and a number of awareness and explanatory brochures which can be obtained from the Publication Administrator, Transport Dangerous Goods Directorate, Transport Canada, 344 Slater Street, Canada Building, Ottawa, Ontario K1A 0N5, or by telephoning (613) 998-6539.

■ Resource Management and Executive Services Branch

This Branch provides effective resource management as well as executive and coordination services to assist the surface group.

■ Policy and Coordination

Access to Information and Privacy; Human Rights Complaints; Information Collection and Public Opinion Research

Description: Institutional policies and procedures concerning access to information and privacy legislation, human rights complaints, information collection and public opinion research and the paper burden reduction program. Topics: Access to government records; human rights; information collection and public opinion research. Program Record Number: DOT COD 050

Air Forecast Information

Description: Information on future aviation traffic for passengers, aircraft movements, air cargo in Canada. The traffic forecasts fall into two major categories: national forecasts and site-specific (airport) forecasts and also include macro forecasts of registered aircraft, licensed personnel, revenue passenger-kilometres, total hours flown, unit IFR flight plans by regions and Terminal Control Units. Access: Aviation forecasts can be retrieved by forecast subject and by airport. They are also available in various aggregate forms (Top 30 airports, national and regional). Storage Medium: Hard copy by forecast subject and by airport as well as by micro and EDP systems (Self-Serve Computer Retrieval System). Program Record Number: DOT ACA 300

Appeals from NTA Decisions

Description: Information on individual appeals filed with the Minister of Transport (prior to 1988), and petitions filed with the Governor in Council concerning National Transportation Agency decisions, pursuant to sections 64 and 258 of the National Transportation Act, 1987. Topics: Notices of appeal; submissions of appeals; answers and replies; analysis and recommendations to Minister; ministerial opinions; petitions; interventions; recommendations to council; Orders-in-Council. Program Record Number: DOT ACE 030

Conferences and Committees

Description: Information on all conferences, committees and associated sub-committees in which the Department collaborates with other federal departments, agencies of other governments both national and international, international organizations and industry groups. Topics: Committees and conferences (interdepartmental, intergovernmental, international); organizations (e.g., OECD, ECMT, ECE, UNCTAD). Access: Files arranged by subject or name of committee; government; governmental department or agency; organization. Program Record Number: DOT COD 015

Crown Corporations

Description: Information on the Crown corporations, their components and subsidiaries, corporate plans, acquisitions and divestiture proposals; central agency and departmental policies on Crown corporations. Topics: Transport Canada Crown corporations; subsidiaries; acquisitions; financing; corporation plans; legislation. Program Record Number: DOT COD 025

Domestic Air Policy

Description: Information on the development and implementation of government policy initiatives on domestic and transborder air services. Topics: Bilateral agreement with United States; economic regulatory reform; subsidies; accessibility standards; specialty services; computer reservation systems; exemptions from Canadian ownership requirement; airline mergers and acquisitions. Program Record Number: DOT ACE 310

Highways

Description: Information on policies, studies and programs for the planning, development and management of highways, international bridges and tunnels, and federal-provincial collaboration in highway projects. Topics: Highway economics; engineering; construction and operations. Access: Files arranged by subject, name of project or highway, or geographical location. Program Record Number: DOT DSH 255

International Air Policy

Description: Information on the development and implementation of government policy initiatives with respect to the negotiation of bilateral air agreements with foreign countries, and regarding international civil aviation. Topics: Administration; air rights and air relations; country files (including mandate papers); international civil aviation and economic organizations; transport policy; airlines. Program Record Number: DOT ACE 315

Legislation

Description: Information on all federal legislation to which the Department is subject and which it must implement. Program Record Number: DOT COD 045

Marine Forecast Information

Description: Information on future marine traffic, by commodity and region, in Canada. The traffic forecasts fall into two categories: commodity flows and vessel movements, with forecasts for both categories available for 37 major commodities and by vessel type. The vessel movement forecasts also include forecasts for ballast vessel movements. The information is disaggregated as follows: seven Canadian regions, two U.S. regions and one Rest-of-the-World region. Access: The forecasts can be retrieved at the levels of disaggregation described above. Storage Medium: Hard copy. Program Record Number: DOT ACA 305

Marine Transportation Program

Description: Information on policies and programs for the administration of subsidies to ferry and coastal services. Topics: Ferry and coastal services; subsidies; levels of service; and tariffs. Program Record Number: DOT MPC 280

Motor Carriers

Description: Information on interprovincial and international motor carrier industry, intergovernmental relations, both federal-provincial and international. Topics: Commercial and private trucking; household goods; commercial buses; freight forwarding; federal and provincial regulations and laws; and studies. Program Record Number: DOT DSH 260

Parliamentary Affairs
Description: Information on written and oral questions in Parliament and other information required by Parliament, its committees, or other government institutions. Topics: Order Paper questions and petitions; oral questions; government and private members' bills; motions for production of papers; tabling of annual reports and returns; special committee of council; Standing Joint Committee for the Scrutiny of Regulations. Program Record Number: DOT COD 055

Railway Passenger Services
Description: Information on railway passenger services and systems in Canada, policies, programs and regulations. Topics: Passenger services, VIA Rail, finance and subsidies. Access: By subject, project and location. Program Record Number: DOT DSH 290

Railways/Freight and Grain
Description: Information on railway policies, programs, regulations, freight transportation operations and services, capacity, grain transportation and handling. Topics: Lands; buildings; legislation; regulations; leases; finance; operations; maintenance; traffic; freight; rates; rights-of-way; main and branch lines; terminals; labour, environment. Access: By subject, project and location. Program Record Number: DOT DSH 285

Regulatory Activities (L1502 Block 5250, Series 5003)
Description: Information on the monitoring of departmental rule-making, participation in projects involving departmental statutes and subordinate legislation, and the implementation of systems and procedures to provide departmental users and the private sector with consolidated regulatory material. Topics: Regulatory reform; regulations consolidation; central registry for regulations and statutory instruments; regulations held on microfiche. Program Record Number: DOT COD 060

Research and Development
Description: Information dealing with departmental, federal, sectoral and international transportation research and development policies, plans and programs. Topics: government policies affecting research and development in transport; research, development and demonstration projects addressing: microelectronic applications; transportation of dangerous goods; aeronautics; airports; marine technologies; alternative fuel use in automotive, rail and marine applications; rail freight; highway and urban transportation technologies; accessible transportation systems and technologies; and energy. Program Record Number: DOT RDD 040

Strategic Planning
Description: Information on the departmental strategic planning process and on corporate priorities as well as the periodic review of departmental objectives. Program Record Number: DOT PPD 005

Strategic Policy Development
Description: Information on policy development services and advice on multi-modal transport issues, monitoring and analysing transport systems and formulating system strategies and proposals for government action as appropriate. Program Record Number: DOT PPD 010

Transportation Persons with Disabilities
Description: Information on activities related to the implementation of the federal policy on transportation of persons with disabilities and seniors; research, development and demonstration; Minister's Advisory Committee on Accessible Transportation and Federal/Provincial/Territorial Committee on Road Transportation for Disabled Persons. Topics: Federal policy on transportation of persons with disabilities and seniors; research, development and demonstration; public education; National Strategy for the Integration of Persons with Disabilities. Program Record Number: DOT COD 020

■ Marine Group/Canadian Coast Guard

Aids to Navigation – Marine
Description: Information on the establishment, operation and maintenance of fixed and floating marine navigation aids. Topics: Buoys; lights; beacons; fog signals; notices to shipping; notices to mariners; site acquisitions; buildings; structures; service contracts and vessel traffic services. Access: By subject and geographic site. Storage Medium: EDP systems and microfilm. Program Record Number: DOT MAW 155

Air Cushion Vehicles (ACV)
Description: Information on all aspects of air cushion vehicles. Topics: Regulations; registration; licensing; certification; inspection; examination and certification of personnel; companies; equipment; material; research and development; and accidents and investigations. Access: Files arranged by subject, names of personnel, and name, type and registration mark of ACV. Storage Medium: EDP systems. Program Record Number: DOT MSS 240

Control of Shipping
Description: Information on the control of shipping, including national shipping policy, ports, pilotage and marine services policy and international shipping policy. Topics: Coasting trade, freight movements, commodities, marine irregularities, merchant marine, port traffic. Program Record Number: DOT MPC 210

Harbours and Ports
Description: Information on the establishment, administration, development, operation and maintenance of ports and harbours, including the establishment and collection of user charges. Topics: Facilities; studies; harbours and ports; headlines; harbour masters; property records; rules and regulations; tariffs and fees; returns and refunds. Access: By subject and geographic name of harbour or port. Program Record Number: DOT MPH 135

Harbours and Ports – Cargo Loading
Description: Information on rules and regulations concerning the handling and stowage of ships' cargoes and the appointment of surveyors and port wardens. Topics: Rules and regulations; reports and returns; and appointments of surveyors and port wardens. Program Record Number: DOT MSS 195

Ice Operations – Coast Guard
Description: Information on icebreaking, ice reporting, ice escorting and the International Ice Patrol. Topics: Icebreaking; ice reporting; ice reconnaissance; ice escorting; International Ice Patrol; methods and equipment. Program Record Number: DOT MFS 190

Navigable Waters – Obstructions
Description: Information on obstructions in navigable waters. Topics: Obstructions in navigable waters; wrecks and derelicts. Access: Files arranged by subject, individual, company, geographic location, waterway, type of obstruction or names of derelicts or wrecked vessels. Storage Medium: Microfilm, computerized data bank, lists and files. Program Record Number: DOT MAW 170

Navigable Waters – Protection
Description: Information on policies and regulations, and applications and approvals for industrial and other construction plans affecting navigable waters. Topics: Applications for approval; approval of construction; types of work; designation of navigable waters. Access: Files arranged by subject, individuals or companies, waterway, geographic location, type of building or work. Storage Medium: Microfilm, files, computerized data bank. Program Record Number: DOT MAW 160

Navigation and Seamanship
Description: Information on navigation, seamanship. Topics: Navigation, seamanship, collision regulations, speed of vessels, anchorages, schools, apparatus and equipment. Program Record Number: DOT MSS 205

Pollution
Description: Information on rules, regulations and policies for the prevention of pollution in inland waters and at sea. It includes emergency plans and operations concerning the clean-up of oil or other pollutants. Topics: Rules; regulations; policies; plans; operations; reports; methods and equipment. Program Record Number: DOT MSS 250

Search and Rescue – Coast Guard
Description: This class covers information relating to search and rescue operations, and lifesaving stations. Topics: Lifesaving stations; search and rescue; equipment and supplies. Access: Files arranged by subject, and geographically by name of lifesaving station. Program Record Number: DOT MSR 185

Ship Inspection – Appliances and Equipment
Description: Information on the testing and approval of ships' appliances and equipment. Topics: Engines; boilers; machinery; fire protection equipment; pollution prevention equipment; lifesaving equipment and materials used in construction of ships. Storage Medium: Microfilm. Program Record Number: DOT MSS 225

Ships – Canadian Government
Description: Information on the operations, functions and services performed by the Canadian Coast Guard fleet, such as northern supply operations, support to aids to navigation, icebreaking and search-and-rescue. This includes the Polar Icebreaker Vessel Project and information on the operation and maintenance of Canadian Coast Guard vessels, such as acquisitions and supplies. Topics: Purchases; charters; sales; services; northern transportation; accidents and damage claims; fuel; movements; provisioning; repairs and inspections. Access: Files arranged by subject and name of Coast Guard vessel. Program Record Number: DOT MFS 180

Ships – Inspection
Description: Information on inspection, regulations and procedures, including small vessel inspection, and capacity and horsepower plates. Topics: Regulations; procedures; small vessel inspection; and capacity and horsepower plates. Access: Files arranged by subject and names of small vessels. Program Record Number: DOT MSS 220

Ships, Inspection – Safety
Description: Information on the inspection and certification of ships used in the carriage of dangerous goods and load lines. Topics: Explosives; dangerous goods; and load lines. Access: Files arranged by subject and names of ships. Program Record Number: DOT MSS 230

Ships, Inspection – Specific
Description: Information on rules and regulations governing safety inspections of ships. There are individual case files for specific vessels containing inspection reports and certificates, survey reports, etc. Topics: Ferries, drilling rigs, ships, ships' tackle and survey reports. Access: Files arranged by subject and names of ships. Storage Medium: EDP systems. Program Record Number: DOT MSS 235

Ships – Measuring and Surveying
Description: Information on the rules, regulations and procedures for measuring and surveying ships; and tonnage measurements. Topics: Rules; regulations; appointment of measuring surveyors, and agreements with other countries. Program Record Number: DOT MSS 245

Ships – Registration and Licensing
Description: Information on the registration and licensing of ships other than small vessels. Topics: Ports of registry; ships registered and ships licensed. Access: Files arranged by subject and names of ships. Storage Medium: EDP Systems. Program Record Number: DOT MSS 215

Ships' Officers and Seamen
Description: Information on the qualification and certification of ships' officers and seamen. Topics: Masters; mates; engineers; seamen; discharge books; shipping masters; examinations; certificates; welfare and discipline; and clearances of vessels. Access: Files arranged by subject and names of ships' officers and seamen. Storage Medium: EDP systems. Program Record Number: DOT MSS 200

Telecommunications and Electronics – Marine
Description: Information on the establishment, operation and maintenance of stations and systems that provide communications and electronic navigation aids to the Canadian Coast Guard and marine transportation, including design and procurement of equipment. Topics: Establishment; construction; operation; maintenance; services; buildings; site acquisitions; concessions and leases; apparatus; supplies; equipment; utilities; security and frequencies. Access: Files arranged by subject, geographical location and name of Coast Guard ship. Storage Medium: EDP systems and microfilm. Program Record Number: DOT MTE 175

Waterways
Description: Information on water levels and gauges, St. Lawrence waterways and the Canso Canal. Topics: Water levels and gauges; St. Lawrence waterways; Canso Canal; and St. Lawrence ship channel. Program Record Number: DOT MAW 165

Wharves
Description: Information on the administration, operation and maintenance of marine facilities under the jurisdiction of the Harbours and Ports Directorate, including the planning and development of port facilities and the establishment and collection of tariffs. Topics: Administration; rules and regulations; tariffs and fees; leases; inspections and wharf-owners. Program Record Number: DOT MPH 140

■ Surface Group

Dangerous Goods
Description: Information on policies, regulations, education programs and administrative matters relating to the transportation and handling of dangerous goods. Topics: Dangerous Goods and Regulations; commodities; engineering and safety standards; U.N. performance standards; type of packaging; nature and application of permit; enforcement; training and certification; awareness and information; CANUTEC; evaluation analysis and risk assessments; research and development; liaison and agreements; committees and task forces; advisory board; education programs; inspections. Program Record Number: DOT TDG 035

Railway Safety
Description: Information on railway safety programs, policy development, rules, regulations, standards and their enforcement. Topics: Railway safety regulations; rules; standards; operations control; engineering; equipment; research and development; railway grade crossings; grade separations and railway relocation. Program Record Number: DOT DRS 295

Road Safety and Motor Vehicle Regulation
Description: Information on road and motor vehicle safety, research and development of countermeasures, engineering development and enforcement of safety and emission standards, and safety regulations, management of the Motor Vehicle Test Centre and fuel economy programs. Topics: Road safety and motor vehicle regulation; countermeasures development; accident and defect investigations; public complaints; recall campaigns; motor vehicle engineering and safety standards; motor vehicle safety rules and regulations; Motor Vehicle Test Centre; compliance auditing and testing; national and international organizations and associations dealing with road and vehicle safety; motor vehicle emissions control; and fuel economy. Access: Files arranged by subject, project, company and safety standard. Storage Medium: EDP systems, test film, microfilm, and video tape. Program Record Number: DOT DTS 275

Transportation Safety Board of Canada
Chapter 104

General Information

Background

The Canadian Transportation Accident Investigation and Safety Board Act was proclaimed on 29 March 1990, establishing an independent multi-modal agency which is known by its applied title, "Transportation Safety Board of Canada (TSB)".

The TSB's sole object is the advancement of transportation safety. It has a mandate to do so in a number of ways, chiefly by conducting independent investigations and studies in order to identify transportation safety deficiencies and make recommendations designed to eliminate or reduce these deficiencies.

With establishment of the new Board, transportation accident investigation and related functions will be carried out by an agency which is independent of the government agencies responsible for the regulation and operation of transportation facilities and services. The Board approaches its work in a different context and with a different perspective from that of the units within the regulatory agencies (Transport Canada, the National Transportation Agency and the National Energy Board) formerly responsible for transportation accident investigation in the marine, rail and commodity pipeline modes of transport.

Responsibilities

The Board's responsibilities are set out in the Canadian Transportation Accident Investigation and Safety Board Act.

The object of the Transportation Safety Board is to advance transportation safety. It is to do this by: a) conducting independent investigations and if necessary, public inquiries into air, marine, rail and pipeline occurrences in order to make findings as to their causes and contributing factors; b) reporting publicly on its investigations and public inquiries and on the related findings; c) identifying safety deficiencies as evidenced by transportation occurrences; d) making recommendations designed to eliminate or reduce any such safety deficiencies; and e) initiating and conducting special investigations and studies on matters pertaining to safety in transportation.

When it investigates an occurrence, the Transportation Safety Board has the exclusive jurisdiction to investigate for the purpose of making findings as to the causes and contributing factors; other federal agencies cannot investigate for this purpose when the TSB is investigating. The Board reports publicly on its investigations and public inquiries and on the related findings. Board reports must, wherever possible, include safety recommendations.

In making its findings as to causes and contributing factors of a transportation occurrence, it is not the function of the Board to assign fault or determine civil or criminal liability. But, the Board must not refrain from fully reporting on the causes and contributing factors merely because fault or liability might be inferred from its findings. The Act provides that no finding of the Board shall be construed as assigning fault or determining civil or criminal liability, and the findings of the Board are not binding on the parties to any legal, disciplinary or other proceedings.

The Board reports annually to Parliament through the President of the Queen's Privy Council for Canada.

Legislation

- Canadian Transportation Accident Investigation and Safety Board Act
- Canadian Transportation Accident Investigation and Safety Board Regulations

Organization

The Board

The Statute provides for a Board consisting of up to five full-time members, including the Chairperson. The Act requires that members be collectively knowledgeable about marine, commodity pipeline, rail and air transportation. They are appointed by the Governor in Council and supported by a public service staff. Members' duties include establishing policies respecting the classes of occurrences to be investigated and policies to be followed in the conduct of investigations, reviewing investigation reports, determining findings as to causes and contributing factors, identifying safety deficiencies and making safety recommendations. Reporting to the Chairperson is the Executive Director.

Executive Director

The Chairman has delegated to the Executive Director the role and functions of a Chief Operating Officer. As such he is responsible for seeing to the day-to-day management and coordination of all TSB's activities and operations to ensure they are conducted effectively and efficiently; included are responsibilities for the acquisition and allocation of human and financial resources, and the provision of ongoing support and advice to the Chairperson.

Policy and Planning:

The policy area is accountable for developing proposals and providing advice with respect to any TSB activities which have policy implications. It also advises on the development of TSB general policies, and the establishment of TSB goals and objectives. The planning area is accountable for developing a strategy and plan to implement the goals and objectives adopted in line with the Board's policies.

Legal Services:

This area provides services with respect to all legal matters which arise in connection with TSB activities, including services and advice in connection with proceedings by or against the Board in legal or other proceedings.

Corporate Services Branch

This Branch assists operating branches in achieving efficient, effective and economical delivery of departmental programs through provision of administrative, financial and personnel services and controls. This Branch is also responsible for the activities of the Secretariat.

■ Personnel

Provides a full range of personnel services and controls to management and employees of the Board. This includes advice and support to senior management on staff relations, human resources and career planning, staffing, classification, official languages, management and professional development, program development and policy interpretation. Personnel coordinates an employee assistance program to advise managers on supervisory problems and a counselling service to assess, treat and resolve problems in order to restore the employee's performance to an optimum level.

■ Administrative Services

This sector provides service to the agency in administrative functions. It provides the framework for administrative activities such as materiel management, corporate information holdings, security and reception. It also ensures that there are enough controls to assure the public that the administration responsibilities of the agency are effectively and efficiently accomplished.

■ Finance

This sector is responsible for services and advice to management and for financial reporting and control to ensure that the agency can be administered effectively and efficiently.

■ Secretariat

This sector is responsible for managing administrative activities related to the preparation and coordination of Board meetings, the administrative support required by the Board for the conduct of public inquiries, and for the coordination of report production. It is also responsible for administering the Access to Information Act and the Privacy Act including informal requests for information, and for the administration of the Harassment policy.

Investigation Operations Directorate

The Directorate is responsible for all aspects of the agency's marine, rail, commodity pipeline and air transportation safety investigations. The Directorate is divided into five branches:

Marine Investigation Branch:

The Director of this Branch has exclusive responsibility to direct the conduct of marine investigations on behalf of the Board. Marine investigators are experienced master mariners, chief engineers, or naval architects.

Rail and Commodity Pipeline Investigation Branch:

The Director of this Branch has exclusive responsibility to direct the conduct of rail and commodity pipeline investigations on behalf of the Board. Rail investigators are experienced in the many disciplines of rail operations (locomotive operations, equipment design and maintenance, roadbed, tracks and signals, operating rules, and dangerous goods). A Commodity Pipelines investigator must be familiar with pipeline design and operations as well as dangerous goods matters.

Air Investigation Branch:

The Director of this Branch has exclusive responsibility to direct the conduct of air investigations on behalf of the Board. The investigators are experienced pilots, aircraft maintenance engineers, or air traffic controllers.

Engineering Branch:

This Branch specializes in laboratory testing and analysis of parts, structural components, systems, instruments, and wreckage of materials and components from transportation occurrences. Additional responsibilities include underwater search and recovery of wreckage, documentation of occurrence sites, and the extraction and interpretation of data from on-board voice and data records. The Engineering Branch has also developed expertise in document restoration, image analysis, and new investigation techniques based on photogrammetric and remote sensing technology.

Safety Medicine Branch:

Safety Medicine provides support in all the medical aspects of occurrence investigations and safety deficiency analysis. This includes ensuring the laboratory testing and analysis of human tissue and fluids to search for substances or evidence of diseases which may have degraded crew performance; applying the techniques of pathology and toxicology in the determination of events in the accident sequence; assisting in the identification of victims of fatal accidents; analyzing injury patterns; and identifying means of reducing accident injury severity.

Safety Analysis and Communications Directorate

This Directorate is responsible for developing safety action proposals primarily based on the analysis of safety deficiencies identified through occurrence investigations or studies; it is also responsible for communicating the results of the Board's work. This directorate is responsible for the following activities:

Accident Prevention:

is responsible for the development and management of systems and procedures for investigating hazards, managing the conduct of multi-modal studies and of individual marine, rail, commodity pipeline and air safety studies, developing procedures for evaluating safety deficiencies identified through such studies or through accident/incident investigations, and for developing, coordinating and monitoring the implementation of recommendations designed to eliminate or reduce safety deficiencies. It is also responsible for the management of a voluntary confidential occurrence reporting program and for developing the confidence of the transportation community in the use of this program.

Statistics and Informatics:

is responsible for the development and operation of Canada's transportation occurrence database and other computer systems required in support of the Board's activities, and the application of advanced statistical analysis and forecasting techniques to aid in the early identification and correction of transportation safety deficiencies. This sector is also responsible for the response to internal and external requests for transportation safety statistics or statistical analyses.

Human Performance:

This activity consists of the behavioral and ergonomic aspects of the broad field known as human factors. It encompasses sensory perception and reaction, training, crew coordination, the impact of fatigue or stress, as well as interactions among humans and between humans, machines and the environment. A head office unit provides standards and training for investigators and assists in the conduct of complex investigations and safety deficiency analysis.

Communications:

is responsible for providing advice with respect to the formulation of TSB communications policies and for the implementation and evaluation of these policies. It provides TSB with information regarding the public response to current issues and trends on transportation safety. In addition it provides effective communications support to the agency during the investigation of major occurrences and in the planning, implementation and evaluation of programs.

Access to Information and Privacy Requests Data Bank
Description: This bank contains request forms and letters sent by individuals to the Board under the Access to Information Act and Privacy Act. The bank also contains replies made to such requests, and all records related to the processing of these requests, including, if applicable, exemptions claimed, intervention of third parties, complaints received and reports and recommendations of the Information and Privacy Commissioners. Class of Individuals: All applicants, under the Access to Information or Privacy Act, for information controlled by the Board. Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to store information about requests made under the Access to Information Act and the Privacy Act. Consistent Uses: Compiling statistics relating to the administration of the Acts. Retention and Disposal Standards: Two years after last administrative action. TBS Registration: 002979 Bank Number: TSB PPU 015

Applications for Employment
Description: This bank contains applications for employment with the Board. These requests usually consist of a letter and curriculum vitae. Applications are examined and considered for available or future positions. Class of Individuals: General Public. Purpose: This information was not solicited but was provided voluntarily by individuals seeking employment with the Board. Retention and Disposal Standards: These records are retained in the Board for one year, then destroyed. TBS Registration: 002980 Bank Number: TSB PPU 010

Confidential Reporting
Description: This bank was established to encourage members of the aviation transportation community to report hazards and possible safety deficiencies with a view to preventing accidents and incidents. Class of Individuals: Pilots and other crew members, mechanics, ramp employees, air traffic controllers etc and the general public. Purpose: To prevent accidents and incidents. Consistent Uses: Compiling statistics analyzing information and drafting Recommendations designed to prevent accidents and incidents. Retention and Disposal Standards: 20 years; but, pursuant to the Regulations, information provided to the Board on the identity of the reporter is returned within ten clear days from receipt of the report and no record of the identity of the person making the report, or any information that could reveal his or her identity is retained. TBS Registration: 002977 Bank Number: TSB PPU 020

Investigation Files – Marine, Rail, Pipeline, Air
Description: Accident/incident files contain information gathered during the course of an investigation, and may contain personal information on individuals. During the field phase, all basic information is documented. Treasury Board of Canada Secretariat

Chapter 105

General Information

Background

The Treasury Board is a committee of the federal Cabinet. The President of the Treasury Board is the chairman of the committee, and its members include the Minister of Finance and four other ministers who are appointed by the Governor in Council. The Board was created by Order-in-Council in 1867 and received statutory approval in 1869. Its Secretariat was part of the Department of Finance until 1966, when it became a separate Department

Responsibilities

The Board's responsibilities, as set out in the Financial Administration Act, include administrative policy, organization of the public service, financial management, personnel management, expenditure management and management of information and information technology. The 1988 Official Languages Act invests the Treasury Board with responsibility for the general direction and coordination of the Official Languages' policies and programs of the government in federal institutions. The Treasury Board Secretariat serves as the employer for negotiating federal Public Service collective agreements under the Public Service Staff Relations Act. It sets policy in the areas of these specific responsibilities and examines and approves the proposed spending plans of government departments. The Treasury Board is served in these functions by the Treasury Board Secretariat.

The Secretary is the Deputy Minister, who directs the work of the Department and advises the President and the Board on all areas concerning the organization and management of the public service under the jurisdiction of the Treasury Board.

Organization

■ Office of the Secretary

The Office of the Secretary consists of the office of the Secretary, the Communication and Coordination Directorate and the Submission Control Unit. The Office of the Secretary is also responsible for the coordination of requests received under the Access to Information Act and the Privacy Act for information held by the Treasury Board Secretariat.

■ Administrative Policy Branch

The Administrative Policy Branch is responsible for advising the Treasury Board on all matters, including departmental proposals, relating to general administrative policy in the Public Service of Canada. The Branch develops, interprets and monitors the implementation of administrative policies, ensuring that the principles of equity, prudence and probity are upheld in the management of federal government materiel, services and information. The Branch is responsible for promoting the efficient operation of departments, the effectiveness of federal programs and ensuring fair information practices in government. The Branch also includes the Bureau of Real Property Management and the Regulatory Affairs Division. The Bureau is responsible for the development of real property policies and for the maintenance of information on property holdings. The Regulatory Affairs Division is concerned with ensuring efficient regulatory management within the federal government, a regulatory process that is more open and accountable to elected representatives and the public, and regulatory policies which ensure that benefits exceed costs. In 1993, the Branch became responsible for Government Review (which encompasses the effective development and operation of audit, evaluation, performance measurement and environmental auditing in departments) as well as Quality Management and Accountability and Policy Review.

■ Human Resources Policy Branch

The Branch provides a framework that enables managers to better manage the people who deliver government programs and it promotes effective employer/employee relations in the Public Service of Canada. Its role is to develop, communicate and provide for the implementation and evaluation of the personnel policies, systems and methods necessary to ensure that the human resources needed to carry out government programs effectively are determined, obtained at competitive cost, managed and developed efficiently. The interests of the individual and collective rights of employees are duly taken into account.

The Branch's specific areas of responsibility include general personnel management; human resources planning; pensions and planning; evaluation and policy; training and development, developmental programs, deployment, performance review; career planning and counselling; and empowerment.

The Staff Relations Division of the Human Resources Policy Branch is responsible for conducting labour negotiations on the employer's behalf in the federal Public Service as described in Schedule 1, Part 1, Public Service Staff Relations Act (PSSRA), and in the process, for carrying out consultations with the Public Service unions at the national level, and for engaging in effective two-way communications with departmental management with respect to Public Service employer-employee relations. The Division conducts, administers and advises on collective bargaining, negotiations, consultations, exclusions, designations, certification, grievances and adjudication, and employer-employee relations training.

■ Official Languages and Employment Equity Branch

This branch develops, coordinates and communicates federal policies on language of service, language of work and participation of anglophones and francophones in the federal public sector. It drafts policies and guidelines on Employment Equity in the Public Service. It maintains a central personnel information file on designated groups, namely persons in a visible minority in Canada, Aboriginal peoples, persons with disabilities and women. It also consults broadly and provides advice to departments and agencies on the implementation of official languages and employment equity programs.

■ Program Branch

The Branch is responsible for providing advice to the Treasury board and Cabinet on matters relating to expenditure planning, including assessment of departmental spending proposals, expenditure and financial management of the federal government, government-wide financial and accounting policies, and to the efficiency and effectiveness of government programs and design and delivery alternatives. With the combined responsibility for expenditure and financial management policy, the Branch provides primary support to the Secretary of the Treasury Board in his role as Comptroller General for the Government of Canada.

The Branch analyses departmental plans and programs to recommend to the Treasury Board and Cabinet the acceptance or modification of specific expenditure proposals to reflect the priorities of the government; to increase the effectiveness of existing and proposed programs and to increase the efficiency with which total resources are used in the delivery of government programs. The Branch reviews Multi-Year Operational Plans and individual departmental submissions to advise the Treasury Board on optimal allocation of resources. It communicates to departments the policies, directives and decisions emanating from the Treasury Board that affect the use and level of resources and monitors the implementation of decisions as required. Records on operational plans and estimates are maintained by the Branch.

The Branch provides advice and recommendations to the President of the Treasury Board on the operating budgets, capital budgets, corporate plans and financial requirements of Crown corporations and their subsidiaries, possible privatization plans and on the development of policy and legislation governing Crown corporations.

The Branch provides advice and recommendations on government-wide financial and expenditure initiatives, including government financial control and authorities, government accounting policy and financial statements, cash management, costing and cost accounting policies, operating budgets, Special Operating Agencies, service standards, the form of the Estimates and user fees. The combined responsibility for financial management and control policy and for expenditure management policy provides a single integrated source of leadership, direction and advice on comptrollership issues for departments and agencies. The Branch is also responsible for the production, in a timely manner, of Main and Supplementary Estimates to convey the government's spending plans to Parliament. The Branch develops and maintains the necessary central systems and issues the instructions and guidelines necessary to meet these requirements.

The Branch staff is required to maintain close working relationships with departmental and Crown corporation managers and officials of the Department of Finance and the Privy Council Office.

■ Office of Information Management, Systems and Technology

The Office is responsible for providing a Government-wide focus for effective management of information and information technology, aimed at improving service, reducing program delivery and overhead costs. It is also responsible for developing plans outlining specific initiatives which will result in common services in areas in which departments previously worked independently.

■ Corporate Services Branch

This branch assists the Secretary of the Treasury Board and the Deputy Minister of Finance in the management of the internal administration of their organizations, and provides financial, personnel, administrative and management advice to branches and divisions.

The Branch consists of five divisions: Administrative Services, Financial Services, Personnel Services, Security Services and Informatics Services Division. In addition to the functions of these divisions, the Branch is responsible for a number of other activities which are under the direction of the Assistant Deputy Minister. These are: task force organization; coordination of the Canada Savings Bonds campaign and the United Way campaign for the three departments; coordination of blood donor clinic; coordination of one-time campaigns: Children's Hospital of Eastern Ontario fund-raising campaign; and administration of Incentive Awards Plan.

Delivery of Government Services
Description: "Stretching the Tax Dollar: Making the Organization More Efficient" and "Stretching the Tax dollar: Make or Buy?" are tools to help Public Service employees save taxpayers dollars in their every day activities. Managers and staff in many federal departments and agencies contributed to developing these guides and tested them on operational programs. Departments identified ways to increase efficiency and reduce costs. "Stretching the Tax Dollar – Make the Organization More Efficient" sets out an approach managers can use to determine how to deliver quality government services at least costs. The methodology involves conducting a preliminary assessment, specifying the results expected, assessing service delivery options, and designing the most efficient in-house approach. "Stretching the Tax Dollar – Make or Buy?" helps managers compare the cost of providing services in-house with the cost of contracting out. The process involves getting the costs right, ensuring an objective assessment and comparing similar services. Topics: Employee takeover; foreign; liaison with departments and agencies; make or buy; most efficient organization (MEO); Nielsen Task Force (ministerial task force on program review); Public Service 2000; restructuring. Program Record Number: TBS APB 229

Veterans Affairs Canada
Chapter 106

General Information

Background

Nearly 1,750,000 men and women served in wartime for Canada. Approximately 110,000 died as a result of war. The Veterans Affairs Portfolio is responsible for commemorating their sacrifice and for assisting eligible Canadians who belong to any of the following groups:

- Military personnel and merchant mariners who served in the First and Second World Wars and in the United Nations operations -Korea – 1950-53;
- Certain civilians who are entitled to benefits because of their wartime service;
- Former members of the regular forces (including those who have served in Special Duty Areas) and the Royal Canadian Mounted Police; and
- Survivors and dependants of military and civilian personnel.

There are approximately 550,000 veterans alive today, of which nearly 52,800 are women. One in every three Canadian men over the age of 65 is a war veteran. The average age of Canada's veteran population is 70.

Responsibilities

The mandate of the Veterans Affairs Portfolio is to provide veterans, qualified civilians and their families with the benefits and services to which they are entitled; to promote their well-being and self-sufficiency as participating members of their communities; and to keep the memory of their achievements and sacrifices alive for all Canadians.

Veterans Affairs Canada is responsible for the administration of 16 acts and 28 sets of regulations and orders. These instruments give the Minister responsibility for the economic, social, mental and physical well-being of veterans, specified persons and their dependants. The range of services provided includes income support, pensions, health care including special equipment and long-term care, counselling, education assistance, and the acquisition of title to property.

Today, most veterans are approaching the end of their working lives, and programs such as the Veterans Independence Program (VIP) are being tailored to meet their needs as they grow older.

Organization

The Veterans Affairs Portfolio consists of the Department of Veterans Affairs and the Bureau of Pensions Advocates, which report to the Minister of Veterans Affairs; and the Canadian Pension Commission and the Veterans Appeal Board, which report to Parliament through the Minister of Veterans Affairs.

The Department of Veterans Affairs is made up of two branches and two divisions which report directly to the Deputy Minister of Veterans Affairs: the Veterans Services Branch; the Corporate Services Branch; and the Communications Division and Portfolio Executive Services.

Towards the end of the Second World War, the Department of Veterans Affairs was formed to oversee expanded rehabilitation programs. The Canadian Pension Commission was formed in 1933 as the successor to the Board of Pension Commissioners that had been in operation since 1919. The War Veterans Allowance Board was established in 1936, when it replaced the War Veterans Allowance Committee. The Pension Review Board and the Bureau of Pensions Advocates were both created in 1971 as a result of amendments to the Pension Act. In 1987, the Pension Review Board and the War Veterans Allowance Board were amalgamated to form the Veterans Appeal Board.

Personal information contained in the Department of Veterans Affairs personal information banks is used by all components of the Portfolio.

Department of Veterans Affairs

Veterans Services Branch:

This branch is responsible for delivering pensions and health care, and for providing social and economic support to veterans and qualified civilians in all regions of Canada. Health care is provided to eligible veterans in the departmental hospital at Ste-Anne-de-Bellevue, in veterans' homes, in contract hospital beds and in hospitals of choice. The branch is also responsible for providing emergency and ongoing income support, social counselling and referral services.

The Branch Head Office in Charlottetown maintains functional and line authority over program operations within the health care, pensions and economic support activities. It is also responsible for negotiating with the provinces and for delivering certain other centrally-managed programs including Battlefield Memorials and Foreign Countries Operations.

Corporate Services Branch:

This branch is responsible for the financial, human, information technology and materiel resources of the Portfolio; ensuring the effective and efficient use and protection of these resources; conducting internal audits and evaluations for all Veterans Affairs operations on a cyclical basis; administering property agreements with participating veterans and assisting veterans settled under the Veterans' Land Act; providing Portfolio support services, i.e. records and facilities management and videoconferencing; Business Resumption Planning; security and emergency preparedness measures; employment equity and official languages programs; and coordination of PS 2000, service standards and locally shared services initiatives.

Portfolio Executive Services:

This secretariat is responsible for providing Chief of Staff services to the Deputy Minister and executive support to the Minister. It is also responsible for ensuring policy consistency internally and externally, as well as for liaison with veterans' organizations, Parliamentary committees, and central agencies. The secretariat is also responsible for converting approved policy into legislation and for ensuring that government policy is reflected in legislation and regulations.

Communications Division:

This division manages the development of Portfolio communications policies and programs, commemoration activities and special events, and provides public and media relations, media training, information, and publishing services and advice in support of Portfolio activities. Access to information and privacy activities, and Portfolio library services, also fall under this division.

Associated Agencies

■ Veterans Appeal Board

The Veterans Appeal Board, established under the Veterans Appeal Board Act, is an independent agency reporting to Parliament through the Minister of Veterans Affairs. The Board, which replaced the former Pension Review Board and the War Veterans Allowance Board, began operations on September 14, 1987. Within the Veterans Affairs Portfolio, the Board is the final tribunal for ex-members of the armed forces, the Royal Canadian Mounted Police and certain civilians and/or their dependants, who are dissatisfied with decisions regarding pensions and allowances of the Entitlement and/or Assessment Boards of the Canadian Pension Commission or the Department of Veterans Affairs. The Board is also responsible for providing interpretations of the Pension Act, the Merchant Navy Veteran and Civilian War-related Benefits Act, the War Veterans Allowance Act and related statutes.

■ Canadian Pension Commission

The Canadian Pension Commission is a quasi-judicial body reporting to Parliament through the Minister of Veterans Affairs. The Commissions's mandate is to provide compensation for death or disability arising from military service. Flowing from its mandate is the responsibility for adjudicating claims under the Pension Act for death or disability resulting from service in the Canadian Forces during the First and Second World Wars, Special Force service (Korea), and from military service in peacetime.

The Commission also adjudicates, administers or is consulted on claims made under Parts I to X of the Merchant Navy Veteran and Civilian War-related Benefits Act; Royal Canadian Mounted Police Superannuation and Pension Continuation Acts; Flying Accidents Compensation Regulations; Halifax Relief Commission Pension Continuation Act, Gallantry Gratuities and Annuities Order, Women's Royal Naval Services and the South African Military Nursing Services (Benefits) Act; Penitentiary Inmates Accident Compensation Regulations; Special Indemnities Plan for Dependants of Canadian Forces Attachés; and Defence Services Pension Continuation Act.

■ Bureau of Pensions Advocates

The Bureau of Pensions Advocates was established as an independent agency in 1971, replacing the Veterans Bureau which was then part of the Department of Veterans Affairs. The Chief Pensions Advocate, appointed by the Governor in Council, is the Bureau's Chief Executive Officer and, as such, reports directly to the Minister of Veterans Affairs. The Deputy Chief Pensions Advocate heads the operational activities of the Bureau. The objective of the Bureau is to ensure that persons seeking to establish claims under the Pension Act and related statutes, or appeals under the War Veterans Allowance Act, have access to an independent professional legal aid service providing a solicitor-client relationship. The Bureau also assists those applicants seeking benefits under the Merchant Navy Veteran and Civilian War-related Benefits Act (Part I to XI) and the RCMP Superannuation and Pension Continuation Acts.

Western Economic Diversification Canada
Chapter 107

General Information

Background

The Department of Western Economic Diversification (WD) was established by the Western Economic Diversification Act (S.C. 1988, c. 17) on June 28, 1988. Some of the programs now under the Department's mandate were transferred from the Department of Regional Industrial Expansion.

Responsibilities

The Department administers the Western Diversification Program, a program designed to bring the West more fully into the mainstream of national economic development through judicious investments in projects with the greatest potential for economic development and diversification. The Department also acts as a pathfinder for western Canadian businesses seeking access to federal economic programs, and it ensures that western interests are represented in the development of federal economic policies. In addition, it intends to serve as a focus for federal economic activities in western Canada, particularly those that are aimed at the development of new businesses and industries, and related business infrastructures.

The Department also administers the following programs for the West, previously administered by the Department of Regional Industrial Expansion: Economic and Regional Development Agreements (ERDAs); General Development Agreements (GDAs); Western Transportation Industrial Development Program (WTID); and Industrial and Regional Development Program (IRDP).

Legislation

- Industrial and Regional Development Act
- Small Businesses Loans Act
- Special Areas Act
- Western Economic Diversification Act, S.C. 1988, c. 17

Organization

The Department of Western Economic Diversification is headed by the Deputy Minister, supported by the Senior Assistant Deputy Minister responsible for the Ottawa Liaison Office, and by the four Assistant Deputy Ministers each responsible for a regional office.

■ Headquarters

The major organizational components of Headquarters are the Program and Planning Branch, the Public Affairs Branch, and the Sectors.

■ Programs and Planning Branch

The Programs and Planning Branch coordinates inter-sectoral and inter-provincial policy, planning and economic analysis; monitors the business operations of the regional offices in the delivery of the programs; ensures quality regarding the project approval process; and reviews project proposals for recommendation to the Deputy Minister.

■ Public Affairs Branch

The Public Affairs Branch develops and administers the Department's public affairs and communications program. The Branch also provides the business community, the public and departmental managers with information about policies, programs and activities of the Department.

■ Sectors

As part of its mandate, the Department has been assigned sectors of responsibility. These sectoral responsibilities are carried out by the Deputy Minister, the Senior Assistant Deputy Minister, the four Assistant Deputy Ministers, and six sectoral Director Generals, located in the regional offices and headquarters.

These sectors are: energy, technology and tourism (administered by Headquarters); services and trade (administered by the Manitoba Regional Office); agriculture and mining (administered by the Saskatchewan Regional Office); manufacturing (administered by the Alberta Regional Office); transportation and forestry (administered by the British Columbia Regional Office); taxation and fiscal policy (administered by the Ottawa Liaison Office).

The sectors officials develop sectoral policies and criteria to be utilized in evaluating project proposals; provide expert sectoral assessment of business and economic development proposals; review the legislative, regulatory and policy development initiatives affecting the West; identify opportunities for diversification within their respective sectors; and manage significant inter-regional, sector-specific projects.

■ Regional Offices

The Regional Offices provide the full range of Department programs in their respective region and administer these programs locally. In addition, they carry out the Department's broad regional economic development policy and program coordination of federal and federal-provincial initiatives contributing to economic growth in the West. This regional development mandate includes the coordination of economic research and planning activities affecting each region; and the definition of provincial needs and priorities. The mandate also includes the representation of departmental interests with provincial governments; with trade, labour, and industry organizations; and with other federal departments and the general public. The mandate also includes the receipt, assessment, and approval of business proposals; and problem-solving and pathfinding to help enterprises overcome impediments to expansion and diversification.

■ Ottawa Liaison Office

The Ottawa Liaison Office directs the administration of the Department including the provision of executive support services to the Minister and support services to the whole Department. The Office also provides for the development of programs, for framework policy development and coordination, and for the advocacy of western interests within the federal government.

The major organizational components of the Ottawa Liaison Office are the Executive Services and Evaluation Branch, the Policy Development and Coordination Branch, the Finance and Professional Services Branch and the Human Resources Branch.

■ Executive Services and Evaluation Branch

The Executive Services and Evaluation Branch provides writing and advisory services in the area of ministerial correspondence and analysis; and advisory services relating to policy development activities, parliamentary liaison and briefings, and coordination of briefings for ministerial travel and meetings. It also carries out periodic, objective reviews of all departmental programs, operations and management systems. Such reviews help determine the efficiency and cost-effectiveness of programs and provide the Department with timely and objective information which is useful in making decisions about program continuance, resource allocation and accountability. The reviews also enable the Branch to recommend improvements in planning, program design and policy development.

■ Policy Development and Coordination Branch

The Policy Development and Coordination Branch develops and coordinates the Department's framework policies in the sectoral areas of economic, industrial and trade policy for the West. It monitors policy issues across the whole range of Cabinet committees, and provides strategic policy, economic, and statistical analysis and intelligence, including the analysis of departmental policies, programs and services. In addition, it advocates the economic development interests of the Western provinces within the federal government by influencing federal policies, programs and expenditure changes.

■ Finance and Professional Services Branch

The Finance and Professional Services Branch provides the Department with financial planning and accounting services, administrative services, security, facilities management, and informatics.

■ Human Resources Branch

The Human Resources Branch provides personnel services and advises managers on all matters involving human resource management.

Yukon Territory Water Board
Chapter 108

General Information

Background
The Yukon Territory Water Board was established by the Northern Inland Waters Act in 1970.

Responsibilities
The responsibility of the Yukon Territory Water Board is to manage and protect the Yukon's surface and sub-surface water resources. Water Use Licences are issued for hard rock mining, hydropower generation, municipal use in some cases, placer gold mining and other industrial purposes. A licence application received by the Board is reviewed at a public hearing which is advertised in the Canada Gazette and the local newspapers. At the hearing, the applicant presents his case before the Board; in addition, members of the public who have submitted a written Notice of Intention to Intervene before the hearing, may present arguments for or against the issuance of a licence to the applicant.

If no intervenors come forward before the date set for the public hearing, it may be cancelled. The Board considers the application without public input, and a licence is either issued or denied. A licence drafted by the Board generally contains terms and conditions which reflect a balance between protection of the water resources and their exploitation as proposed by the applicant. The licence is then sent to the Minister whose signature renders it legally effective.

The Regional Manager Water Resources, Yukon Region, Department of Indian Affairs and Northern Development enforces the terms and conditions of Water Use Licences.

Legislation
- Northern Inland Waters Act, 1970
- Regulations approved by Governor in Council in 1972

Organization
The Yukon Territory Water Board has nine members appointed by, and responsible to, the Minister of Indian Affairs and Northern Development The Board includes a Secretariat, consisting of five employees of the Department of Indian Affairs and Northern Development, Northern Affairs Program.
